The Anarchist Federation is an organisation of class struggle anarchists aiming to abolish capitalism and all oppression to create a free and equal society. This is Anarchist Communism.

We see today's society as being divided into two main opposing classes: the ruling class which controls all the power and wealth, and the working class which the rulers exploit to maintain this. By racism, sexism and other forms of oppression, as well as war and environmental destruction the rulers weaken and divide us. Only the direct action of working class people can defeat these attacks and ultimately overthrow capitalism.

As the capitalist system rules the whole world, its destruction must be complete and world wide. We reject attempts to reform it, such as working through parliament and national liberation movements, as they fail to challenge capitalism itself. Unions also work as a part of the capitalist system, so although workers struggle within them they will be unable to bring about capitalism's destruction unless they go beyond these limits.

Organisation is vital if we're to beat the bosses, so we work for a united anarchist movement and are affiliated to the International of Anarchist Federations.

The Anarchist Federation has members across Britain fighting for the kind of world outlined above. Contact:

Operation Infinite Profit

FOLLOWING the recent terrorist attacks in the USA President George Bush and Prime Minister Tony Blair have declared that the guilty parties must be held responsible.

We at resistance couldn't agree more. The problem we have with them is over who the guilty parties are. Osama bin Laden? The Taliban? If so, then also the SAS and CIA who trained them, the British and American States who funded them. When the separate quests for wealth and power of the western elite and the Taliban coincided they were best of friends. Now they have diverged they will fight each other.

Bush has declared that the atrocity has provided "an opportunity to wage war against terrorism". Conveniently, it has also provided the opportunity for Bush and Blair to boost their pitiful popularity ratings. It provides the opportunity for them to distract people from the effects of the ever deepening recession through a patriotism which opposes the view of society fractured along class lines. The airline industry bosses are using the attack as an excuse to do what they have been trying to do for months - totally restructure the global industry. More than 100,000 people booted out of work already with more to follow. Patriotism and 'doing your bit' will be used to pacify those falling on the economic scrap-heap of a worldwide recession.

And as anarchists have always said: "War is the health of the state". The budget and prestige of the military will to be brought in and there will be even more powers for stifling dissent under the guise of 'anti-terrorism'.

It is important that we all cut through the fine words and smart images of the world leaders. Their friends in the media are bombarding us with images of them as caring people with our interests and the interests of humanity as a whole at heart. Nonsense, they never hesitate to cut our standard of living, or drop bombs on innocent people in other countries if there is money and power in it for them. We must see them for what they are and remain focused on what is really going on.

Just like any other war, this one will involve the demonisation of one man - Osama bin Laden - as an excuse for murdering thousands of innocent civilians. Just like any other war, the leaders will be as fit and healthy at the end as at the beginning - remember all of the crap about the Gulf War being to 'get' Saddam Hussein? There he is 10 years later, still lording it up while his people suffer.

In the same way that the terrorist assaults on Americans have worked in Bush and Blair's favour, so their military response will work in the favour the Islamic fundamentalism of Osama bin Laden and the Taliban who have been chosen as the guilty parties. An assault on Afghanistan will result in much of the Muslim world falling in behind the Taliban.

A war set up by the great and good of our society as a battle between East and West, Barbarians and Civilisation, Dictators and Democracy, Islam and Christianity, will suit leaders on all sides very well indeed. After all, there is nothing better than a 'foreign' enemy to strengthen the dominant ideology and keep the masses back at home in line.

Terrorism, war, recession and mass redundancies are all products of the system. They will remain with us for as long as capitalism does.

On the day the first bombs fall protest against the war at 6pm in Trafalgar Square.

THE ECONOMY OF WAR

AS THE bosses try to get us to wave their flag and knuckle down to a war economy in the name of freedom, we take our regular look at the history of revolt: opposition to the Vietnam war.

In the 1960s and 70s a generation of young people began to reject the rubbish they had been fed at school about America being the champion of freedom and democracy. As many looked deeper into the reasons why America was in Vietnam, they began to see what the real problem was: an economic and political system that adopted policies that were wanted by the few while the ordinary people, the working class suffered. In other words the real enemy was capitalism. This realisation soon gave way to anger and rage at the entire system.

This awareness led people to look for alternatives. Unfortunately the alternatives were very limited. Some advocated 'turning on, tuning in and dropping out'. People experimented with drugs and alternative life styles, setting up communes or living rough on the streets of the city. Others in their rejection of American capitalism supported unquestioningly the countries that claimed to be socialist. Ho Chi Minh was idolised and activity against the war became activity in support of the Vietnamese 'communist' regime.

Various factions emerged based primarily on the support of a particular regime or ideologue. Pro-Albanians debated with pro-Soviets as Trotskyists clashed with Maoists. They also romanticised all 'Third World' national liberation struggles, putting them forward as the vanguard in the fight against world capitalism.

And mutiny in the army...

Resistance among the American military was a major but little publicised factor in the ending of the war. In June 1971 Colonel Robert D. Heinl wrote in the Armed Forces Journal: "By every conceivable factor our army that remains in Vietnam is in a state approaching collapse, with individual units avoiding or having refused combat, murdering their officers and non-commissioned officers, drug ridden and dispirited when not near mutinous".

Attacks on officers ('fraggings') rose from 126 in 1969 to 271 in 1970. In 1968 there were 68 recorded incidents of combat refusal. By 1969 entire units were refusing orders and by 1970 there were 35 separate refusals in the Air Cavalry alone. Desertion and AWOL (Absent Without Leave) became epidemic with one GI leaving every three minutes at the height of the war.

Lets hope that in this latest war rebels at home and in the armed forces will also make a formidable enemy for the capitalists. ★

"We call it socialism from above"

"We call it bombing"

THE INTERNATIONAL airline industry had been going through a major shake up before the slaughter at the World Trade Centre and Pentagon. As reported in recent issues of Resistance plenty of strikes were going on due to attempted sackings by Airline companies. Ansett (Australian), Aer Lingus (Ireland), Lufthansa (Germany), Alitalia (Italy), Aeromexico, Asian Airlines, Aeroflot (Russia), Air Liberte (France), Sabena (Belgian), KLM Dutch Airlines, have all had strikes in the last few months.

Now panicking bosses are ditching workers like dangerous ballast, hoping to save their skins and profits from a hard crash.

The following sackings have taken place already, or have been announced as imminent: Boeing - 30,000, British Aerospace owner AMR - 20,000, United Airlines 20,000 workers, Honeywell avionics manufacturer - 12,000, Continental - 12,000 workers, US Airways - 11,000, Virgin Atlantic - 1,200 workers, Aer Lingus - 600, British Airways - 7000, Northwest Airlines - 10,000, Aloha Airlines - 250.

These staff reductions will allow airline bosses to reduce levels of air traffic, and so orders for new planes, which will have a knock on effect throughout the travel industry (manufacturers, ground crew, baggage handlers, ticket sellers, travel agents). People remaining in the industry will see wages frozen or reduced, and benefits slashed as the bosses make sure that workers carry all of the burden of the loss of income.

It is very clear that thousands more workers will be sacked over the months ahead. These mass sackings will happen across many industries world-wide. But will these attacks on workers be met with resistance? Will strikes and other forms of resistance be fought on international lines as we hope? We think this depends on a number of key points. The first is how far workers allow themselves to be controlled by the trade unions. The unions and political parties that attempt to represent workers will be shouting the 'anti-terrorist' propaganda as loud as the rest of the bosses. Keeping fk e d - off workers in line is the role of unions within the structure of democracy. As anarchists we want a autonomous methods of struggle to develop, a movement that breaks out of the restrictive ideas and apparatus of the Left, and potentially challenges the war machine and the system as a whole.

The second hurdle to be overcome will be jingoistic flag waving in the name of 'anti-terrorism'. We are all anti-terrorist! It is important to realise that Governments are the biggest terrorists of all, and that support for them through the irrationality of patriotism is support for further war-mongering. We must not let politicians con us with patriotism and lead us in to the acceptance of war, job cuts and attacks on wages and conditions, as part of being a 'good citizen' - making patriotic victims of yet another capitalist onslaught. ★

ONE MANS MISFORTUNE.....

NO WAR OR JUST JAW JAW?

THE CURRENT outbreak in hostilities between two different ruling elites (Western and Taliban) is yet another manifestation of the greed and power-lust of the enemies of humanity. How will those apparently on the side of humanity respond? Past experience leaves little room for optimism.

The Left, as ever, will attempt to muddy the waters (anti-imperialism, national liberation, support of this or that faction). Part of the politics of authoritarian groups is making situations that are easily comprehensible infinitely complicated, so leaving the political strategy to those clued up enough on the correct ideology (Marxism, Leninism, Trotskyism, Maoism, etc.). The job of the party members is not to understand, but to learn a few slogans and follow the orders of their wise leaders.

During the bombing of Yugoslavia the various left groups all chose their favourite army to back, though some even managed to switch allegiance in the middle of the conflict.

Pacifists will be calling for a non-violent response, but within the framework of the capitalist state. Asking states to be non-violent is like telling the tide to stop coming in. It's not enough just to ask the state to be nicer - the state must be destroyed. During the gulf war pacifists called for sanctions instead of bombs against Iraq. These sanctions have now killed hundreds of thousands more than the bombs ever did!

Are anarchist different?

Anarchists claim to be different. We realise that the biggest weapon the ruling class have got is not this or that gun, tank or missile, but the power over our minds, over what we think. Disinformation amplified by the media and mystification through religion and patriotism add up to formidable tools.

These aim to prevent us from understanding what's really going on in our lives and the world and how we should respond to it. So as anarchists we aim to raise our level of understanding and encourage others to do likewise.

Will Britain's anarchists rise to the challenge of this war, in words and deeds, by putting across a clear revolutionary analysis of the situation? Will there be attempts to get a strong, aggressive, class based message across to working class people? Will we make people think?

The response from many anarchists to previous wars has been at best confused, and many just retreated into the anarchist/anti-capitalist social scene and spent endless hours hand wringing and arguing among themselves in irrelevant meetings that no sane person would go within a mile of.

How ridiculous that every time a war starts the same 20-30 odd people get together in London to hold 'No War But meetings. A fine slogan, for sure, but who else hears it beyond the walls in which they meet? Are we brave enough to decide a clear message and take it out onto the streets? During the Gulf War one meeting of 'NWBTCW' had to spend ages deciding whether to even go on an anti-war march. It's difficult to think of a more pointless way to spend time.

And what of the so-called 'anti-capitalist' scene? Will it develop into an anti-war movement? When bombs were falling on Yugoslavia the political weakness of this scene was clearly exposed. First there was hopeless confusion, as there was no simple 'good guys vs. bad guys' to support. Soon after attempts at analysis were abandoned and the war was to a large extent ignored.

'Anti-capitalism' is a strange blend of Christians, Liberals, Left-wing parties, environmentalists, pacifists, do-gooders and occasional anarchists. It never has, and never will have, any relevance to the majority of people. It has no foundation in workplaces, no roots in communities, and the times it has looked most interesting are when already existing social movements have temporarily got involved.

Make war on the ruling class!

The people involved in 'anti-capitalism' have got to decide. More of the same 'celebrations of the diversity of our struggles', or the realisation that this is a directionless and politically inept movement with no hope of contributing to the creation of a free and equal society?

The can be only one response to capitalist war - a clear call for a war against the rulers and would be rulers of all states. To end war we must end capitalism. ★

STRUGGLES CONTINUE

As the Western leaders prepare for war struggles around the world continue...

THREE hundred people marched through Athy, Ireland recently in support of workers at Peerless Rugs (PR) who have been on strike against bosses since July. PR announced closure of their plant, and have refused to pay out promised redundancies to workers, declaring itself bankrupt in spite of the fact that they have merely transferred work to plants elsewhere.

Workers responded however by occupying their factory, catching their frightened union by surprise. In the process, PR boss Martin Buckley was trapped inside his office for several hours before being rescued by local police.

The occupation, a typical anarchist tactic, has massive support from local people while even some local businesses have shown solidarity with the workers.

In the meantime, worried union leaders while publicly expressing support for the occupation are contriving with bosses for a more 'sensible' resolution to the stand-off, one of which will inevitably involve persuading workers to end their occupation in return for meaningless concessions that will probably never be made.

ONE THOUSAND people displaced by the Three Gorges Dam project in China rose up after being denied compensation for the loss of their homes. The Beijing government is believed to have already moved over half a million people and plans to flood 2 cities and over 100 towns by 2009.

Those who have been deported have become sickened by the large-scale corruption of the government. Fights broke out with police at Yongzhou, where people have been relocated. 1,000 demonstrators threatened to commandeer a train to go back to their home of Chongqing after demanding immediate payment of a £200 living subsidy.

£40 million of the £1.4 billion earmarked for resettlement payment has already been embezzled, the Government itself admitted.
