DECEMBER 86

HAPPY CHRISTMAS

*"Countless individuals commonly united to form
one massive, unstoppable movement!"*

A DONNINGTON ALTERNATIVE

Donnington employees are protesting about the privatisation proposals for the Ordnance depots, saying that it could cost 400 jobs at COD. (One wonders what Warren Hawksley MP will say now after his earlier statements that Donnington would be at risk under a non-Tory government).

TANG thinks that the Trade Union reps from Donnington could do well to consider a much more radical step which has as good a chance as any of maintaining employment.

Namely this :- to establish a group of shop stewards and others to consider, plan and demonstrate that the production of socially more useful goods and services would be an attractive option both in terms of employment and profitability.

The result of these deliberations? Jobs could be created rather than lost. Standards of living rather than standards of weapons could be enhanced.

It will need imagination, ideas and hard work. But to secure jobs one needs to do more than merely protest : one needs to be creative.

There are likely to be even fewer jobs in the Ministry of Defence in the next decade, what with the costs of new technology (and Trident) increasingly squeezing the budget. TANG would like to see Donnington and its Unions be in the forefront of developing alternative jobs instead.

We await a response with interest, and would welcome ideas from current and former employees as well as unions.

AWAY IN A BUNKER

Tune. Away In A Manger.

Away in a bunker dug deep underground
The bureacrats sleep is untroubled and sound.
They've lots of provisions to last for a year
So down in the bunker what have they to fear ?

No cattle are lowing, no baby awakes.
They've all been destroyed by our rulers mistakes.
They nuked all the Russians, so Russia nuked me,
But down in the bunker It's muffins for tea.

Be near me, dear Maggie, I ask you to stay
As I vomit and burn and dehydrate away.
Bless all of the public in thy tender care
And give us one thought from your bunker down there.

Xanthes Mum.

CAPENHURST SNOWBALL

The fourth Capenhurst Snowball at the British Nuclear Fuels plant took place on Saturday November 1st. 53 people were arrested (3 were not charged) for cutting the perimeter fence. A large number of people took part in the march and in support of the cutters.

Nationally 407 people were arrested at 27 bases and nuclear installations. Over 500 actually cut the wire but some were not arrested.

The next Snowball at Capenhurst will be on the weekend of January 24th or 25th. A day school to plan for January will take place at Bishop Lloyds Palace, Watergate St, Chester. 10.30 to 4.00pm on DECEMBER 7th.

Middle East

President Reagan sends arms to Iran in the hope that that will predispose Lebanese Shia militiamen to release American hostages.

Masses of blame redounds on Syria from the actions of the Hindawi brothers, though tactlessly Chirac lets slip that French Intelligence thinks that they were being manipulated by Mossad (Israeli external intelligence.)

Mossad to prove the length of its arm anyway manages to induce a political refugee from Israel to return ("of his own free will" though contrary to his previous expressions of this.)

All the Media are careful not to mention that as the German Hindawi brother is confessing to a German bombing (laying blame on Syria) which Reagan had said (backed up by "our own dear Margaret") that he had proof was done by Libyan agents, & which was the excuse for bombing Libya; Reagan's excuse for that raid is totally disproved.

None of it adds up to a sane or coherent - even though evil - policy. The high moral ground that "statesmen" adopt when they are condemning "terrorism" has always been markedly hypocritical. The bully yelling foul when the victim dares protect him/her self; - & none has ever doubted that principles give way to profit, that there will always be an arms dealer ready to provide guns for any purpose; however much the dealer may claim to deplore that purpose.

We have Dr "Death" Owen's word (News at One) - & he must be reckoned an expert on governmental skullduggery - that Britain, France & Germany have all been selling Iran arms; despite their pledges not to sell them to either side in the Iran-Iraq war.

The world speculates as to whether the fear of Iran manifest in the Gulf States and Saudi Arabia outweighs their desire to see the market for oil stabilize; whether in consequence the USA will have alienated her wealthy Arab allies or won their further sympathy. So soon after the sacking of Shaik Yamani much could hang on that knife edge.

The world also speculates on what is happening within Iran, and how this ties in with the American sales. "Weighty" commentators who in October were painting Montazeri (Khomeini's heir designate) as a moderate likely to be ousted, (his son in law is under arrest,) now depict him as a revolutionary fundamentalist who has resisted Khomein's deals with the U.S.A. (Always a merit when a pundit contradicts her/himself, whatever happens (she can then claim to be proved right.))

TANG makes no claim to know what is going on; but we support no military power, & we are not greatly suprised to see a number of such powers behaving in ways that belie their own principles.

Sir Robert Armstrong admits to economizing with truth, - i.e. allowing a false impression to be suggested, - as in the case of cash, monetarist governments appear positively niggardly with truth.

"See how these armies mill and swarm
And troop and muster and assail;
God we could keep this planet warm
By friction, if the sun should fail.

Love does not help to understand
The logic of a bursting shell."

SIZEWELL B NO THANKS

Several members of TANG and Wrekin Green Party travelled down to Sizewell in Suffolk on Nov 22nd to take part in a demonstration calling for the shutdown of Sizewell A and for stopping the Sizewell B nuclear reactor project.

After a very pleasant car journey (thanks to Robert) through some very beautiful English countryside, we joined about 1500 people in the two mile walk to the power station. Sizewell A is situated on the edge of the coast along an attractive beach scattered with fishing boats & wooden huts. While sitting on the beach and admiring the sea view I could't help but think of the awe-inspiring power that was being generated within the monolithic looking building behind me and the potential it had for bringing death and destruction on an enormous scale. Even though we had a short time at the site due to our long journey home we felt that our participation in the demo was important not only in reaffirming our anti-nuclear power commitment but in helping to draw public attention to the dangers of the current nuclear programme and the governments plans to increase nuclear power production as represented by the Sizewell B project.

PWR

Sizewell B is a pressurised water reactor the same type which suffered a partial 'meltdown' at Three Mile Island in 1979.

Last month the recommendations from the 340 day long Sizewell public enquiry went to the government and is due to be published at any time. This means that the decision to go through with the project will be made in the next few weeks (with or without parliamentary debate). If Sizewell B goes ahead it will mark the expansion of the nuclear power programme with its new and potentially more dangerous reactor technology. If it doesn't its the beginning of the end for the nuclear power industry.

PTO

Friends of the Earth are calling for letter writing to M.Ps expressing opposition to Sizewell B. Letters don't have to be brilliantly argued, outstandingly well informed or long, at this stage it's the quantity that counts.

Here are some points worth mentioning

1) It is a Pressurised Water Reactor, the same type as the one that suffered a partial meltdown at Three Mile Island in 1979. PWRs are more dense, their temperatures rise faster when coolant is interrupted and there are about 11 major unsolved safety problems associated with them, according to the US nuclear regulatory Commission.

2) The US Nuclear Regulatory Commission has also stated that there is a 45-50% likelihood that an American-designed PWR will suffer a meltdown WITHIN THE NEXT 20 YEARS.

3) The CEGB has always maintained that nuclear power is cheap, and that the whole reason for building Sizewell B is to take advantage of this. FOE just commissioned a study which found that Sizewell B will lose over £1 billion in its lifetime.

4) Nuclear power does not really create jobs. It costs about £1 million capital investment to create a job in the nuclear industry: for the same sum, you could create far more jobs in less capital intensive areas such as energy conservation or renewables. And of course nuclear power creates unemployment amongst coal miners.

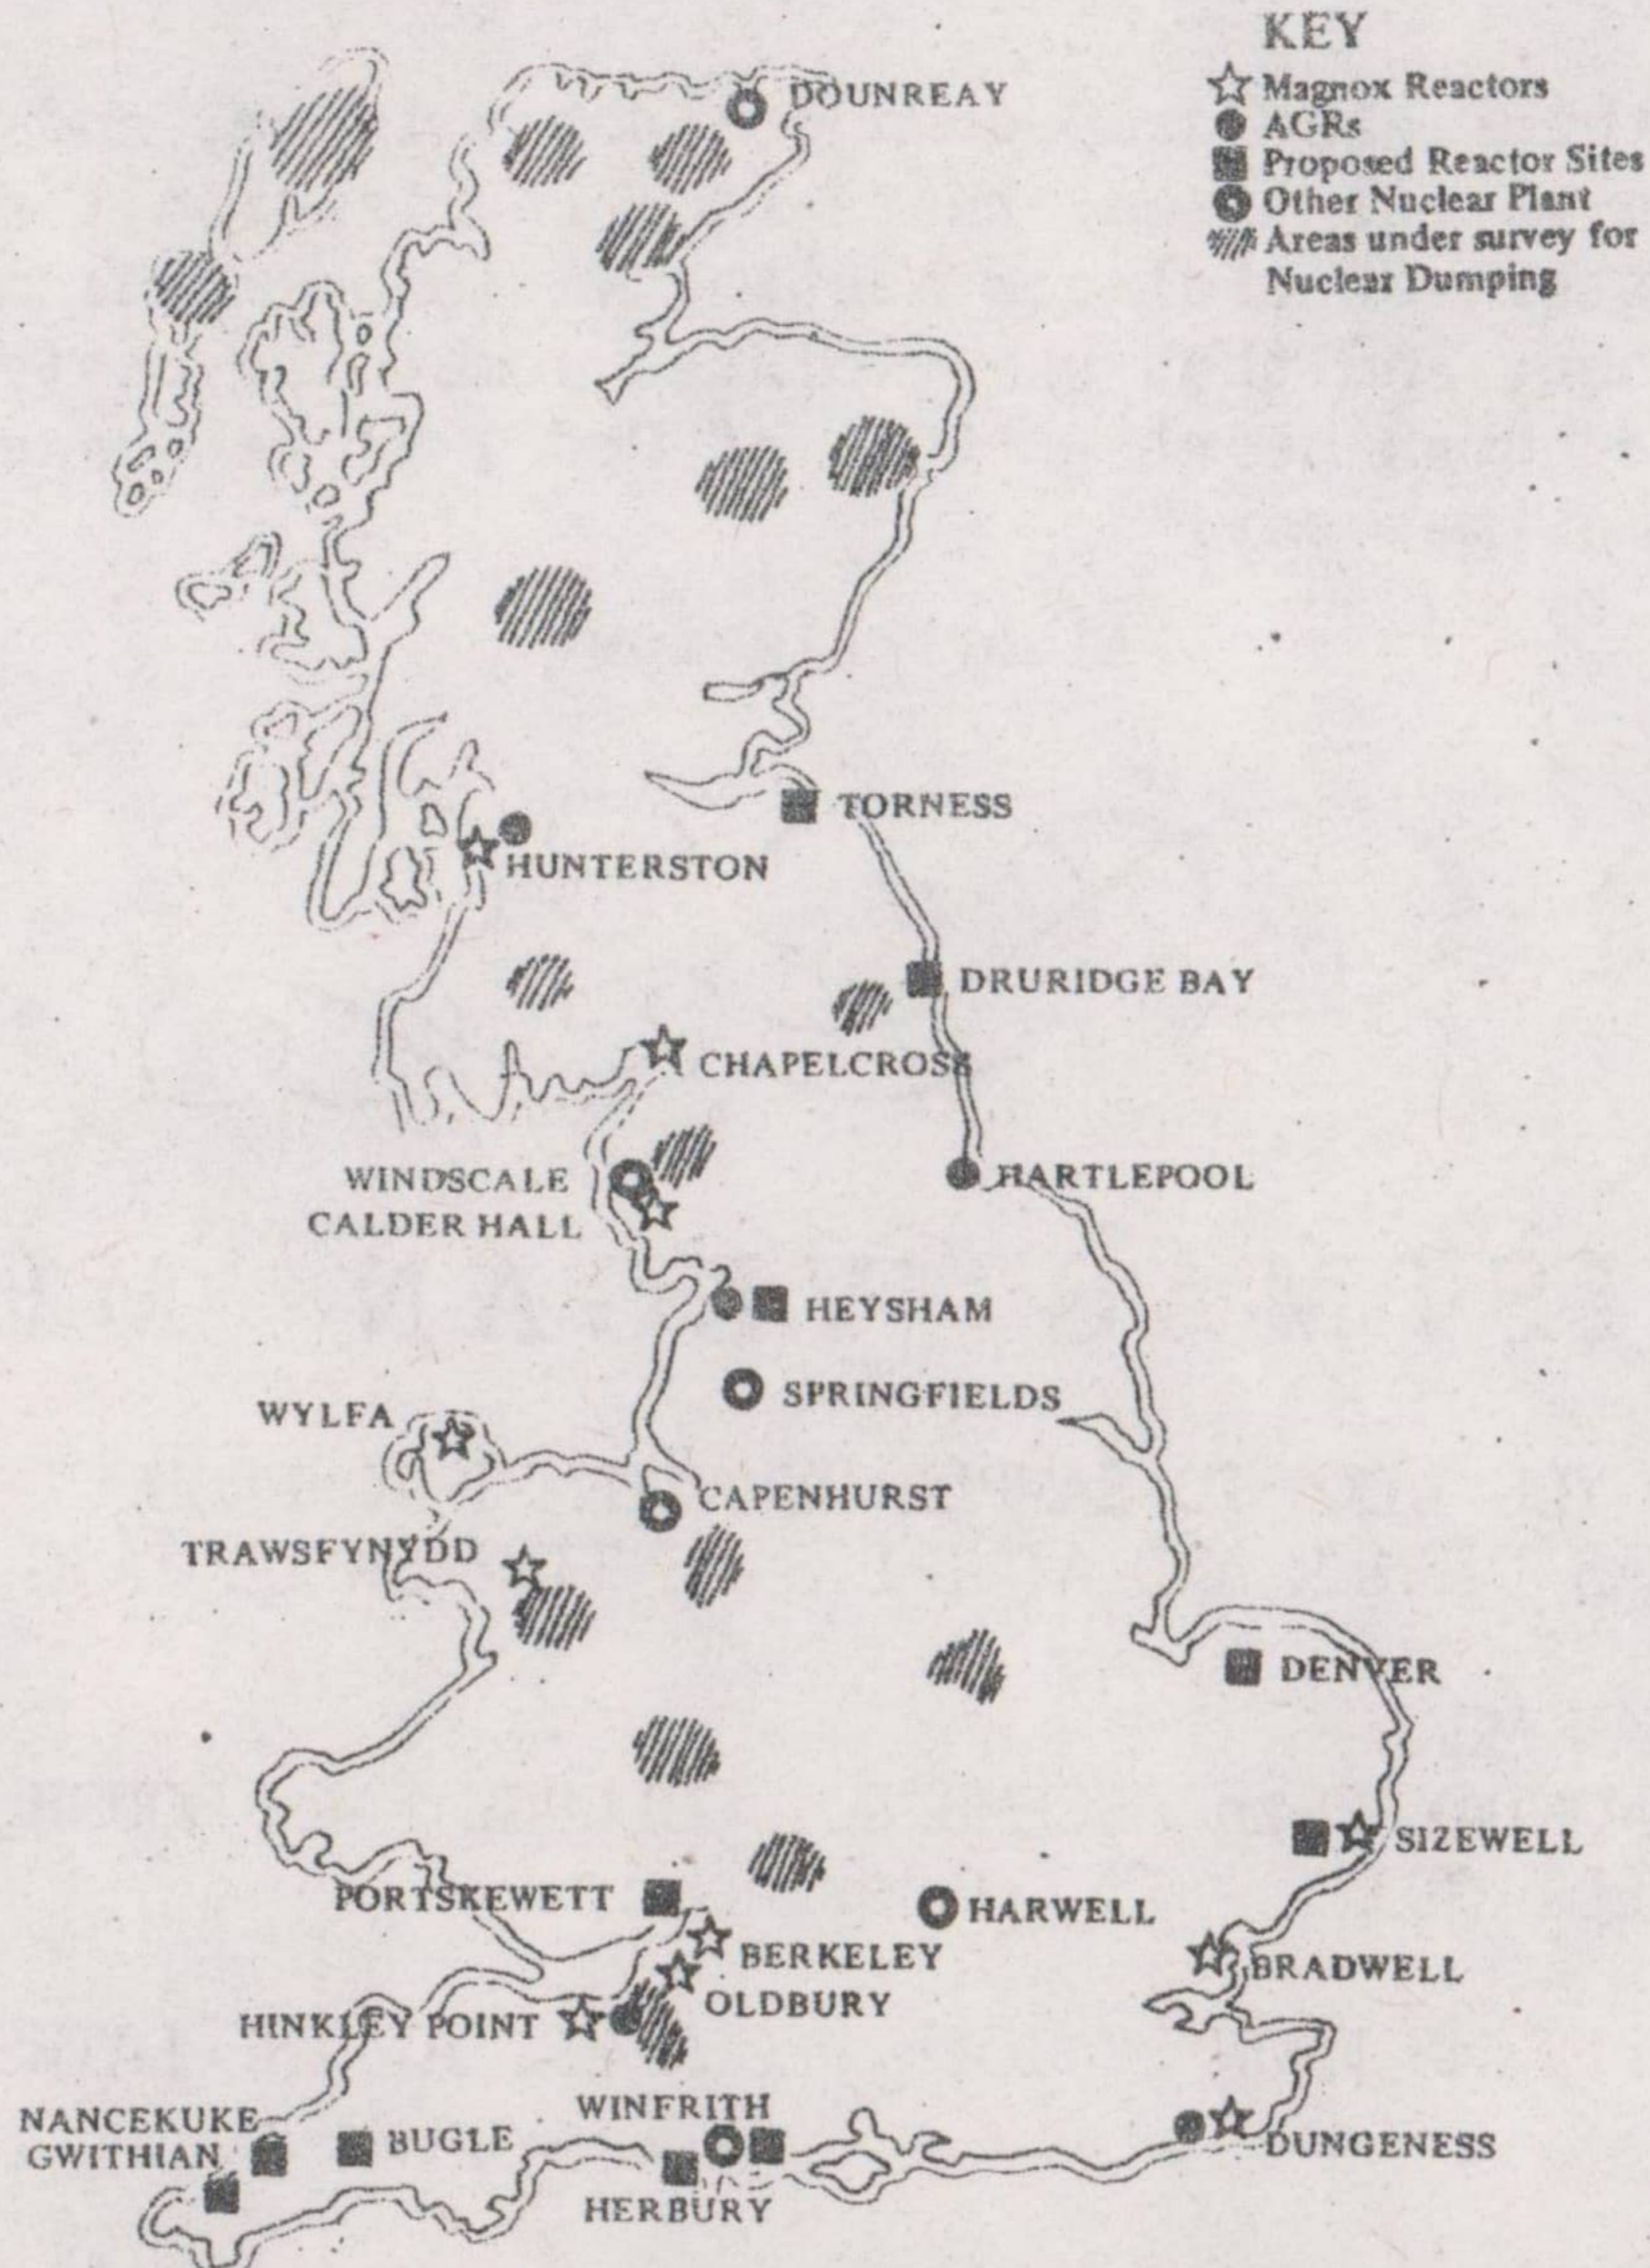

5) We don't need Sizewell B. Nuclear power provides only 18% of our total electricity (4% of our total energy), and we already generate more energy than we need. We have enough coal, oil and gas for the near future. Conservation the efficient use of the resources we do have combined with an overall energy policy which combines fossil fuels with alternatives such as wind, solar, biomass, geothermal and tidal energy CAN meet our energy needs. Only £14m annually is now invested in these alternatives, against £300 million for nuclear.

6) Another line you could take is to ask for reassurance about local emergency plans in the event of a major disaster at (eg) Berkeley, Oldbury or Trawsfynydd. A reactor 100 miles away is a very local issue, and many M.Ps need to be reminded of this. As the honest answer is not reassuring one, you may have to be persistent.

WHY NOT VISIT YOUR MP: IF YOU NEED MORE INFO TEL 021 632 6909.

Critical Decision: FOE report on the Sizewell Inquiry by Juliette Majot, Walt Patterson and Stewart Boyle £4 Free if you can arrange to present it to your MP.

GREENHAM ZAPPING

Women living at Greenham have for over two years suspected that some kind of electromagnetic/electronic pollution was affecting their physical and mental health. There is now a certain amount of evidence to suggest that electromagnetic weapons are indeed being used against peace-campers. The effects of "zapping" vary on different individuals and it may be that different types of weapon are being experimented with. Symptoms reported include severe migraines, b nausea, very disturbed menstrual cycles, miscarriages, loss of memory, disorientation, and waking up at night in a state of paralysing terror, followed by long-term sleeplessness. Food and water have been tested for contamination but none found.

RESEARCH

It is known that research into microwave radiation as an anti-personnel weapon has been under way in the U.S. for some years. Permitted levels of this type of radiation are 10,000 times higher in the U.K. and U.S. than in the Soviet Union. Measurements have been taken and tests carried out at Greenham with results which are within these limits but which are certainly capable of harming human beings and are ten times higher than those found at other military bases with similar transmitting equipment. It is also possible that the signals are pulsed, indicating peaks far higher than the recorded levels. Readings tend to increase where the women are most active eg the camp at Green Gate and when a demonstration starts, and correspond to where the women say they have suffered ill-effects.

The police in this country have available certain radio frequency weapons marketed for "crowd control or seige-busting" purposes. The police, of course co-operate in security at Greenham. The National Radiological Protection Board was asked for help in measuring radiation levels but after lending one instrument which recorded high levels, they claimed it was faulty and refused further help. Long-term effects of microwave and radio-frequency radiation are not known but it is thought probable that they cause genetic and carcinogenic damage to some degree.

Kim Besley is co-ordinating the investigation at Greenham and is documenting the health problems reported. Visitors have been affected as well as residents at the camps and any ill-effects should be noted and reported to her at:

In March 1985 Cathy Massiter, a former MI5 intelligence officer went on tv to blow the whistle on what she thought was improper surveillance of CND by the security forces. She later agreed to put this in writing so CND could take legal action on her evidence.

What she revealed was only the tip of the iceberg. Britain's four national intelligence agencies and the Special Branch hold four million personal files on individuals who may have done nothing more subversive than attend a meeting or a peaceful demonstration.

Over the years CND has built up a dossier of events experienced by its members which suggests that surveillance is happening on a massive scale.

This pamphlet gives first-hand accounts of what it's like to be snooped on by the security forces. It describes the two court cases CND is bringing on behalf of its members— one in the British High court (which has already taken place), the other at the European Court of Human Rights. It summarises Ms Massiter's evidence. It profiles the agencies that do the snooping; and it exposes how they go about their business. OFFENCE OF THE REALM will be an eye-opener for those who believe it could never happen here. And it will be a spur to action to all those who believe that our civil liberties are worth fighting for, and that we should be free to dissent from government policies in a democratic society.

AFGHANISTAN A WAR WITH NO VICTORY

Seven years ago this Christmas eve, Soviet troops walked into Afghanistan. It is not easy to clearly see the causes of this, though it is only fair to mention that Western powers chiefly America had for a long time pumped in vast amounts of cash to the Mujahedin (the anti-communist guerrillas) That moreover many (if not most) of the Mujahedin leaders are powerful heroin traders. Whatever the truth of this there was no justification for invasion.

Since December 1979 Soviet forces have met heavy resistance from the Mujahedin guerillas based in the mountainous areas of the country. With an estimated 115,000 troops and modern military technology such as gunships, strike aircraft and tanks Soviet forces have failed to take control of the country. Only cities and larger villages are under their control. The half million Mujahedin say they are in control of 80-90% of the land.

The costs to the Afghan people has been high with an estimated 500,000 deaths, towns and villages have been attacked by Russian strike aircraft in an attempt to crush resistance. There have been reports of mass executions of captured partisans taking place. It has been calculated* that three million Afghans have taken refuge in Pakistan one million in Iran and half a million in Afghanistan itself. It is unclear how many Russian soldiers have been killed estimates are put at between 10-15,000 with around 25,000 wounded. With no victory in sight for either side the war is set to continue and thousands more people will die.

Within the Soviet Union the Afghan war has become unpopular (if it was ever not so). The horrific figures of World War Two casualties (20 million) are still very much a part of the collective memory of the Soviet people.

Footnote * These are Western figures, and we should add that not merely Russia but also Benazir Bhutto claim that there are more Pakistani refugees in Afghanistan than viceverse.

There is growing resentment of the fact that young conscripts are being sent to fight and die in a far away country in a war that has little or no strategic importance. The official line that the Soviet Union is giving "International and brotherly help" to the Afghan people no longer bears weight, when it is clear from the heavy casualties that there are no grateful masses and the brotherly help has been met by general hatred and total resistance. It is doubtful that the sort of public protest that played a major part in halting the US involvement in Vietnam will ever be allowed to arise in the Soviet Union, but acts of open resistance have been reported in some areas. It is quite clear that the Soviet authorities cannot afford to ignore the signs of anti-war sentiment among the population. With the drain on the Soviet economy, the strain it has caused on East/West relations and relations with China, Moslem countries and Third World countries the Afghan war has inflicted a deep and bleeding wound on the Soviet Union.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has already indicated that he would like to see a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, in a proposal put forward in July this year it was agreed that 6,000 troops would be withdrawn from the country by the end of the year. Whether this was an attempt to quell protest on the domestic front or merely for western consumption or a genuine attempt to begin withdrawal from Afghanistan is unclear, but it clearly illustrates Soviet sensitivity to adverse world opinion.

The peace movement has always condemned the invasion of Afghanistan from the beginning, But I believe it must now become more involved in the issue. The interventionary policies of both the US and USSR must be met head on. The continuation of such policies will in the end result in the nuclear conflict we seek to prevent.

Since the 1985 European Nuclear Disarmament Convention in Amsterdam, sections of the peace movement have begun working together with the Afghan Solidarity Committee to develop a workable strategy. The most recent ideas put forward by Jan Ter Laak General Secretary of Pax Christi/Netherlands is the formation of an Afghanistan Peace Committee.

1. West European peace movement representatives should visit Peshawar, Pakistan and Afghanistan.
2. Afghanistans should be invited to Western Europe.
3. Another workshop on Afghanistan should be organised at the next E.N.D. conference in Great Britain. Afghani guests should be present.
4. Afghanistan should be included in the agenda of bilateral meetings with the Soviet Peace Committee.
5. During meetings with the Soviet Peace Committee and other organisations we should urge permission to allow the Red Cross to visit Kabul prisons.
6. Resistance to Soviet interventionary policies has not been taken up outside right wing political parties in many countries. Western European Peace organisations should follow the Swedish model and plan solidarity demos on March 21st.

it's not their hatred causing pain,

"When you pacifists are doing the sort of work you have taken on, essentially an Apostolic work, you may have to meet the fact that your work will be apparently worthless and achieve no results at all, if not results opposite to what you expect. Peace

“Christian nonviolence is not built on a presupposed division, but on the basic unity of man. It is not out for the conversion of the wicked to the ideas of the good, but for the healing and reconciliation of man with himself, man the person and man the human family.”

CND's Anti-Racist Working Group is launching a quarterly newsletter this autumn. The first issue looks at many issues including the lessons of Chernobyl, uranium mining in illegally occupied Namibia as well as black people's perspectives of peace.

The Working Group was set up to look at racism both inside and outside CND as well as the wider peace movement and how the connections can be made. The Working Group has representatives on other CND Committees and aims to include an anti-racist perspective in all areas of campaigning.

The group would welcome input from other areas of the Campaign including local CND groups. For further information or copies of the newsletter, please write to Sarah Sawyerr, Secretary at 22-24 Underwood Street, London N1 7JG.

Martin Luther King said...

"One may well ask: 'How can you advocate breaking some laws and obeying others?' The answer lies in the fact that there are two types of laws: just and unjust. I would be the first to advocate obeying just laws. One has not only a legal but a moral responsibility to obey just laws. Conversely, one has a moral responsibility to disobey unjust laws.

SUPERPOWERS ARE EQUAL

We are forever being told that the USA needs more nuclear weapons in order to 'catch up' with the Soviet arsenal. Indeed, this argument is commonly used as a justification for more weapons of all kinds.

This is not true, particularly for strategic or long range missiles. The annual assessment of the military Balance 1986-87 by the International Institute for Strategic Studies concludes:

"Overall we judge the US and Soviet strategic forces are in rough balance. The data does not support the contention that the US forces are inferior to those of the USSR."

The institute-highly regarded by the military for its accurate information-says that the Soviets have more nuclear missiles, but the Americans have more nuclear warheads.

Perhaps it was this realisation of near-parity that provided the basis for the radical-agreement-that never was in Iceland between Reagan and Gorbachev ?

TANG would like to see pro-nuclear groups (Peace through NATO for example) emphasising this strategic balance and campaigning for lower levels of parity.
