THE KURDISH UPRISING
& Kurdistan's Nationalist
Shop Front & Its
Negotiations with the
Baathist/Fascist Regime
BM Blob/Combustion
28 pages
£0.70

An account of the uprising in Kurdistan in 1991, together with a historical critique of the Kurdish nationalist parties. Far from being the work of the nationalist parties of the north, or Sh'ite religious fanatics of the south — which is what western media would have us believe — these uprisings were genuinely popular, and threatened the aims of both sides of the Gulf war.

WHY THE 'REVOLUTIONARIES' HAVE FAILED
Andy & Mark Anderson
Splat Collective
22 pages
£1.50

A challenge to the 'libertarian-communist-anarchist-socialist revolutionaries' to stop hiding 'behind a smoke-screen of pseudo-intellectual jargon and meaningless terminology', and clarify what they really mean. The text is an unpublished letter to the Anarchist Workers' Group's magazine Socialism From Below (which is now called Organise!), together with an annotated version of their private reply. Controversial stuff. Available only from the Splat Collective, c/o 5 Cadbury Road, Moseley, Birmingham 13. Cheques to be made payable to: Mark Anderson.

The study of a process of accumulating power, and controlling ideology.

PHOENIX PRESS

Some thoughts on anarchist publishing in general and one anarchist publisher in particular, by the founder of Phoenix Press.

One of the many inadequacies of the British libertarian movement is its book publishing. What we should have is at least half a dozen publishers, each with 20 or 30 books in print, each publishing half a dozen titles every year. The reality falls way short of this. Only Freedom Press meets the necessary criteria. This is a quick account of one of the smaller publishers, Phoenix Press, which has been going about six years and aims, in another six, to have 20 books in print, and to be able to publish half a dozen books a year.

After the revolution, money will either have been abolished or will grow on trees, I forget which. In the present decadent pre-revolutionary phase we still have money and printers have to be paid for their work. Obviously the money for anarchist publishing has to be put down by anarchists, that is, is (and if we're not prepared to put our money where our mouths are, who is going to take us seriously?). The full cost of getting a book printed, at least £2000 for even a small book, is beyond most people's reach but if the cost is broken down into 100 lots of £20 then many people can afford that amount. When enough money has been raised the book is published and when enough copies have been sold the people who lent the money are offered it back (but of course they are asked to continue the loan for the latest book). This is the idea that launched Phoenix Press.

Phoenix has now published seven books using this loan system, the most recent being Out of the Ghetto by Joe Jacobs (£9.00), a 320-page autobiographical account of anti-fascism in the East End of London in the 1930s. (The book ends with Joe being kicked out of the Communist Party for being more strongly anti-fascist than the party line.) The resurgence of fascism in Europe makes Joe's book, a unique mix of the personal and the political, particularly important at the moment.

Phoenix also publishes pamphlets. The best of these is Valerie Solanas' Scum Manifesto (£1.50) surely the most astonishing political tract ever written. Phoenix also publishes the Anarchist Yearbook (£1.50) and this guide to anarchism in Britain is now on its second year. Also of note are Fredy Perlman's The Reproduction of Daily Life (£0.75) and The Continuing Appeal of Nationalism (£0.99). These essays and others are going to appear in Phoenix's next book, an as yet untitled collection of Fredy's shorter writings, to be ready at the 1992 Anarchist Bookfair in October.

Fredy was the author of, among other titles, Against His-Story, Against Leviathan, The Strait, the spoof Manual for Revolutionary Leaders, and his early death in 1985 robbed the libertarian movement of one of its most important contemporary thinkers. The book will chart the course of Fredy's intellectual development, from the view of capital accumulation given in Reproduction to the strongly pro-ecology, anti-nationalist and anti-imperialist Continuing Appeal. Your loan of £20 can get this important book into print.

Stop pissing it up in the pub at £1.50 a pint and make home brew instead. You'll save £20 in no time. You'll get a copy of the book and, several years hence, the offer of your money back. Plus you'll get a free copy of any pamphlets Phoenix Press does while your loan is outstanding. Rush your life savings in multiples of £20, plus your name and address, to Phoenix Press at PO Box 824, London N1 9DL.

The Beano and Ideology

If you're an ex-Beano reader, this book is right up your street. The ideology of bangers and mash, and everything else. "Brilliant. I didn't understand a word of it" — Smiffy.

On Comedy: The Beano and Ideology (and The Encroachment Part I — a study o. accumulating power and control, and dominant ideologies, also by Leo Baxendale and likewise published by Reaper Books) are distributed by A Distribution and are also available from Freedom Press.
