"Let's stop playing games and take a good look,
At the vague values we're all taught from books,
If dignity and freedom are every human's rights,
Why do the few that have them all seem to be WHITE?"

Time To Remove The Dust Sheets

Love/Hate. Left/Right. Good/Bad. It's as simple as black and white, which is far from simple. Thoughts for this issue go out on racism; its causes, its manifestations and its results. Although there are several pieces directed at the Ku Klux Klan within these pages, racism is far from being as obvious as grown men and women in designer satin dust sheets. It's not always as black and white as hoods in hoods. Such manifestations are just the surface of racism. Scratch at the veneer of such displays and you find that racism exists in all spectrums of our "liberal and democratic" society.

The Civil (Rights) War was lost on both sides. The right to the freedom to be enslaved within white corporate America was won. Inferiority through inequality. Fear of an equal planet. There are no pass laws in the U.S.A., but being the wrong color in the wrong place will spell apartheid. The lynch mob neighborhoods in the neighborhood watch program. Sharpeville is Rodney King, and all the others that aren't "lucky" enough to be captured on America's Ugliest Home Videos.

Racism is not reason, except by reason of insanity. Racism is just another excuse, another need to find targets and place blame on others to displace a lack of identity or substance or integrity. Racism is pointing fingers at others because it's a hell of a lot easier and safer than putting your finger on what's really wrong. It can sometimes hurt and cause revulsion to face the mirror. Racism is schism. Pure and simple.

America - The Pitiful: The United States is a contradiction in terms. One nation under (a white) God under the influence of the White House. America is all right so long as it is all Right. An inherent abhorrence handed down (de)generation to (de)generation that paints red, WHITE and blue images of "patriots" like George Armstrong Custer, and allows victims of his actions like Leonard Peltier to be labeled a terrorist. The standard bearers of the double standards are always there when Johnny comes marching home.

At the risk of sounding like a cliché, we are all people, just flesh and bone with a few different flesh tones thrown in to add a little variety to what would otherwise be a very uniform, very sterile and boring existence.

Like religion and politics, racism is another of our little power games. Another set of sides and enemies to align to, or against. All our problems stem from the use and abuse of power. Its manipulation and its interpretation. The flexing of muscle in an inflexible world is always going to lead to trouble. It seems like we're always preoccupied with finding targets. Racism is not a one way street. It exists in all cultures and races and in many different ways, but the results are nearly always the same. And it's wrong.

To explain the title for this issue briefly, when I say dust sheets I use it as a reference for the stubborn, ignorant and pathetic shields used against racial and social change. And the dust being such change and progress. It is time to remove the dust sheets. Let the dust settle. Bring the noise.

END STATE RACISM!

" We tend to think of racism as something perpetrated by the Ku Klux Klan or the National Front - by 'another kind of person', crop-headed, red-necked and aggressive in their pathetic notions of white superiority. That's avery comfortable view. Certainly no one should play down the pernicious effects of the extreme Right. But it is not the small fascist organisations which cause black people to die 20 years earlier than whites in Australia; which leave them twice as likely to be unemployed in Britain; and which makes their income two-thirds that of whites in Canada. The racism that does this damage, that hems black people in on all sides, is woven into the fabric of our societies. And if we are silent about this we are condoning it. It's time we woke up to what racism really means."

Chris Brazier, New Internationalist No 145.

THERE IS ONLY ONE RACE: THE HUMAN RACE

"There is no such thing as a 'race'. The human family is not split up into different, self-contained racial types - caucasian, mongoloid and negroid. That was a piece of psuedo scientific racism which helped whites to persuade themselves that black people were fundamentally different.

Racism is discrimination based neither on ethnic type nor geographical origin but on colour. Racism came into being in eighteenth century Britain because it was economically useful. The first merchants who entered the slave trade weren't doing so because they were prejudiced against Africans - they did it to make money. But once that foundation of economic profit had been laid it became very useful to think of black people as inferior, as not altogether human. So all those ignorant rumours about black people's savagery and stupidity coagulated into a set of beliefs , an ideology that justified slavery and, later on, colonial empires."

Chris Brazier, New Internationalist No 145.

BLACK AND WHITE UNITE AND FIGHT!

"The cause of anti-racism is not just the cause of the black minorities in our own countries or of the black majority in South Africa; it is the cause of the millions in Africa, Asia and Latin America still suffering from the legacy of the exploitation that produced our wealth as well as our racism. Its up to us, not to fly down from the sky in our chariot, making things right, reaching out our hands to the poor helpless blacks - thats just the other, paternalist side of the same old racist coin. But to listen to what black people have to say, to respond to their initiatives and to work with them for social change.

The great Trinidadian writer C. L. R. James once said 'The blacks will know as friends only those whites who are fighting in the ranks beside them. And whites will be there'. We have yet to prove him right."

Chris Brazier, New Internationalist No 145.
