Glasgow: Direct action takes on Labour Councils

"Parent power has definitely won this battle. Now we have shown what we can do, we plan to carry on", James Gunn, Netherton. The victory of parents and children on May 14th, defending their Primary schools from closure in Glasgow, was due to aggressive campaigning which included sit-ins and illegal demonstrations.

No Divide & Rule!

Glasgow schools, including Netherton in Castlemilk, Greenfield in Govan and Whiteinch, were reprieved by embattled Labour Councillors who had originally earmarked 22 schools for closure for financial reasons after Local Government re-organisation. Through the 'Save Our Schools' network, parents of reprieved schools are involved in Sit-ins at St. Bonaventures & Abbotsford in the Gorbals & Levern in Pollok, to get these schools saved too.

With further threats to educational facilities, from the Highlands to Liverpool, likely to intensify in the year ahead, there will be pressures to 'opt out' as four schools have done in Glasgow to postpone closure.

Self-managed struggle

In Cornwall St. Kinning Park, a 24 hour occupation by user groups of the Neighbourhood Centre started on May 3rd. as officials tried to close the centre down. This attracted support from 'Save Our Schools' campaigners, Shipyards workers, SNP activists, and anarchists associated with anti-cuts actions in Clydeside. Links have been made with other workers, including librarians threatened with having their shift allowance withdrawn.

Labour Councillors in the Govan area have sacrificed 3 neighbourhood centres in a 'divide & rule' trade-off to keep St. Gerard's Secondary open. Split by a bitter Parliamentary selection contest another Labour faction led by MP Mike Watson supports a plan to set up a self-managed centre in Kinning Park. This can only succeed if the sit-in (and others planned in Govan) are successful in preventing closure and land sell-offs.

In Dundee on 30th April, an attempt to occupy Linlathen High (one of 6 selected for closure) was prevented by severe police intimidation, who threatened parents with placing their children 'in care'. In West Dunbartonshire there is coordinated action to overturn planned closures, with action at a Community Resource centre in Blantyre - and at Stanely Centre in Paisley also.

With cuts in services throughout Scotland, the lesson is that only determined action by local people, prepared to disregard the Law, can defend community resources from the callous plans of politicians.

Strike in the post

IN LATE MAY postal workers were voting on whether to strike country-wide against Royal Mail's "Employee Agenda" proposals.

Royal Mail want to introduce a new team working system, intended to break up posties' collective organisation. Management want increased productivity and a divisive bonus system.

A postie writes "The Employee Agenda is all about increased exploitation of the workforce, only in this case they are hoping to enlist the help of the self same workforce in their own exploitation. This must not be allowed to happen." (Edinburgh and Lothian Workers Liaison Committee leaflet)

Workers' self-organisation, and a willingness to defy both the law and compromising trade union leaders, will be vital if the posties are to win.

THE WORLD IS OUR PICKET LINE

ON 3 April, a mass meeting of the Liverpool dockers unanimously agreed to abandon all further negotiations with the Mersey Docks and Harbour Company, and to aim for an all out international boycott of the Port of Liverpool.

This followed the rejection of a compromise deal by the MHDC, whose arrogant attitude suggests that they've engineered the dispute as part of the casualisation process, preventing the dockers' collective class consciousness being passed on to the younger generation at Torside and Nelson.

Delegations continue to go abroad and many Women of the Waterfront have been on speaking tours. 3,500 meetings have been addressed and over £1M raised. Pickets sent to the American West Coast were inspired by a group of Mexican truckers they'd stopped. Instead of the expected confrontation, the non-unionised drivers simply wanted to know if they could join a union that sent pickets 6,000 miles. Next day some of them mounted their own 24 hour picket.

International solidarity actions cheer everybody: Liverpool boats have been blacked in Portugal, and in Bilbao, Spain. Swedish syndicalist dockers refused to move empty ACL containers - MHDC's biggest customer. On 11 May 30 supporters occupied the ACL office in Stockholm to demand a boycott of Liverpool.

UNOFFICIAL STRENGTH

On April 27, 200 attended a meeting in Liverpool to set up a National Co-ordinating Committee of Dockers Support Groups. While the groups seemed to view their role as fund-raisers, most speakers appeared fixated by the idea that they could organise strike action. Despite notable exceptions, such as AC Delco workers in Kirkby, mass supportive strike actions are an unrealistic expectation. The usual Leftist nonsense of pressurising the union leaders was heard amid demands to make the dispute official.

But one docker argued strongly that the strike's unofficial nature has been its strength - it means that the dockers themselves are running the dispute.

Transport is an important issue. Road transport has failed to respect the dockers' pickets. Such lack of solidarity stems from the break-up of collective organisation forced by modern capital. But transport is the production process's weak link as demonstrated by French and German workers who've used road disruption to achieve instant results. So far, the stewards have not named the scab transport firms but sooner or later they'll have to be targetted.

Although industrial collective organisation may appear alien to many under 30, currently there is a collective struggle being fought against the Job Seekers Allowance, as the state attempts to control the unemployed. Can the 2 struggles become one? Will the participants recognise each other?

Workers Solidarity for a new Ireland.

With the effective ending of the Irish Peace Process by the bombs in London in February -all of which have been claimed by the IRA, an important opportunity has been lost.

The British government failed to meet minimum concerns: there was no release of political prisoners - in fact the conditions for the prisoners held in the UK deteriorated during this time. There was no substantial reduction in the number of troops 'stationed' in the six counties. John Major was more concerned with the survival of his Government than with advancing the peace-process.

As anarchists we welcomed the cease-fire but condemned the Peace Process in the sense that it has never at any time concerned itself with the reality of life that faces working class people in Ireland, both north and south of the border. Unemployment remains high in Ireland, as do levels of poverty and inequality. This disastrous situation has been created and 'managed' by two of the most important players within the Peace Process - the Irish and British Governments.

These social conditions, and the fertile grounds they offer to the politics of sectarianism within Ireland, are the real problems that must be faced. Nationalism doesn't recognise this; it offers no solutions to capitalism.

We are working for a new Ireland, an anarchist society where production is to satisfy needs and where control rests in the hands of the working class. The colour of the flag that flies over our heads is not important, but the quality of our lives is. Compared to the possibility of real socialism and real freedom, republicanism is politically bankrupt.

Taking power from the State

After the Dunblane & Port Arthur massacres, immense public pressure has built up on the State to reduce public access to handguns & other weaponry. Even before the Oklahoma massacre last year, President Clinton was gaining at the polls by his efforts to take on the gun-lobby.

Ordinary people are rightly outraged at the access that right-wing fanatics and cranks have to such lethal weapons. With the possible exception of Dunblane, most of the massacres are carried out by white, male supremacists filled with contempt for ordinary people, prepared with their crazed outlook to engage in indiscriminate massacres to advance their aims.

However, it is important to realise that many weapons are 'illegal', not registered, and come from thefts within army bases. The State continues to hold massive amounts of weaponry which it can deploy against the population when it is in their interests to do so. Clinton & other State leaders want to gain credibility by passing a few restrictions on licensed gun holders, while keeping their own huge armed forces from examination. Only through a social revolution can the weapons be taken from the landowners, criminal gangs & the State, along with deranged individuals, whose inhumanity is a mirror image of divided, class-ridden society.

FREE SATPAL RAM!

IN Birmingham, November 1986, Satpal Ram was attacked in a Bengali restaurant by 6 white males. Repeatedly stabbed about the head and arms with a broken tumbler, Satpal defended himself with a small knife, stabbing one attacker who refused medical attention and subsequently died. Satpal was charged with murder.

Forty minutes before the trial started, Satpal met his barrister who decided to drop the self-defence plea. The prosecution was based on the attackers' defence and no interpreter for the Bengali defence witnesses was provided. The judge acted as interpreter, but he didn't understand Bengali! The all-white jury found Satpal guilty and he was sentenced to life.

Nine and a half years on and still awaiting an appeal, Satpal is held in Long Lartin prison where he has been classed as a 'troublemaker' for collecting statements from prisoners protesting the illegal practice of forcing them to squat for internal examinations. Satpal has been held in solitary in a 8 x 7 ft 'strongbox'. He writes, 'I have been denied phone calls to family and solicitor because I refused to squat during a stripsearch. I have been held in the 'strongbox' with no natural light, no furniture, bedding or clothes and no toilet or wash facilities. I have been dragged out unconscious by prison officers and denied hospital treatment!'

The Free Satpal Campaign is extremely concerned for his safety and is calling for protests to be made to Long Lartin governor Mullin on 01386-830101, Fax: 01386-832-834.

GROUNDSWELL AGAINST Jobseekers Slavery Act

AS UNEMPLOYMENT Benefit was cut from 12 to 6 months on 9 April, 50 anti Job Seekers Allowance demonstrators stormed the Department of Education and Employment in central London. All 250 staff evacuated the building.

From October the Job Seekers Allowance (JSA) will mean - unemployment benefit cut for under 25's - increased harassment into low paid jobs - 100% benefit cuts for breaking regulations - wide new discretionary powers to make courses, training, workfare schemes compulsory. Plus they want 10,000 benefit office redundancies.

Project Work is a pilot compulsory slave labour scheme - benefit plus £10 - for all unemployed over 2 years, operating in Hull and the Medway, Kent.

These schemes attack the whole working class, undermining wages and conditions.

Resistance grows

400 marched in Hull and 200 in Chatham, Kent on 13 April to oppose Project Work. Hull City Council is boycotting Project Work - and so must the voluntary sector.

20 anti JSA demonstrators invaded Cheetham Hill Unemployment Benefit Office, Manchester on 18 April. The manager was photographed and advised to watch out for posters featuring his mug. Benefit offices were occupied in Peckham, London on 1 April and in Newcastle on May Day, while 200 marched in Plymouth on 30

March.

Edinburgh Claimants have a new direct action policy. Officials who harass claimants or cut their benefit receive 2 warning letters. A third "strike" means the official's photo will be flyposted and a demo mounted in their own offices. Claimants delivered the first warning letters during an anti JSA demo on 9 April.

Edinburgh Claimants are also producing publicity against the benefit fraud campaign. 'Persons Unknown' have emblazoned MACFARLANE SNOOPER SCUM on the head snooper's Castle Terrace office.

Benefit agency workers in several London offices including Tottenham, Hillingdon and Southall plus workers in Leeds and Sheffield struck over the JSA in April and May, sometimes to oppose JSA trials, and also against compulsory transfers to JSA work. However another demand has been for "security screens", a reactionary demand which management could meet and thereby defuse opposition to the JSA itself.

With Labour too supporting workfare, Groundswell declare "We do not expect any solutions from politicians or bureaucrats... Instead we call on the waged and unwaged everywhere to work together and resist JSA by means of non-co-operation, industrial and direct action."

DOING IT FOR OURSELVES

INSPIRED by the strike at JJ Fast Foods and backed by the JJ Strikers and supporters, workers in 4 north London textile factories have recently won unofficial strikes.

On 19 February workers struck at Jenny's Textiles. Flying pickets visited other textile works. The strike was 100% and after one day the boss settled. The workers won Union recognition, written contracts, overtime pay, tea-breaks and a proper kitchen and toilets.

Workers in another Tottenham textile factory, Euroscene, walked out on 17 April after a worker had been sacked and attacked by the boss. Local factories were leafleted urging other workers to join the picket. New workers recruited by the boss turned away after pickets explained the situation.

On 23 April the boss agreed to take back the dismissed worker,

Landless defy State terror

SINCE 1980, 1357 workers have been killed fighting for land in Brazil. No police or hired thugs recruited by landlords have been charged. In the past year, over 40 rural workers have been murdered, including 20 on 18th April in Para.

Libera * reports that in Corumbiara, "300 military police invaded an area occupied by 550 families opening fire on them. A few attempted to defend themselves - there were 9 'landless' dead, seven of them executed by bullets in the back of the head. Two military police were killed, with 138 landless wounded or beaten up. 200 were tortured, women were raped and 9 'disappeared'. 74 workers were charged with 'laying a trap for the police'!"

Inequality, Brazilian style

Publicity about the massacre has exposed the Government's policies, with 12 million landless throughout Brazil, 80 million hectares lying 'idle' and a Government which only represents the agri-business interests. Movements of landless workers are active promoting further occupations, including Prontol do Paranapanema with 4,000 families.

Urban unrest

On 28th March, 6,000 secondary school students marched against cuts in Sao Paulo, with demonstrations in outlying towns. In April a national strike of Federal State workers threatened to "transform Brazil into a New France", making reference to last year's radical French strike action.

Also in Sao Paulo, street battles between unemployed and repressive Police left 40 wounded in March. The so-called "Workers Party" (PT) and its trade-union

DESPERATE TIMES, STRONG MEASURES

The dispossessed of Latin America continue to organise and take direct action in the face of oppression and exploitation.

Mexico: Last September, Morelos peasants occupied the small town of Tepoztlan to prevent developers building a golf course and tourism complex there. On 10 April, Police ambushed a convoy of buses carrying peasants to the town of Cuernavaca, where the Mexican President was giving a speech. One peasant was killed and 18 wounded, but the development has been stopped and 6 policemen have been charged with murder and 54 others with abuse of authority.

Venezuela: March 1996 saw a series of riots, demos and strikes against State austerity measures.

Argentina: An 8 day revolt at Sierra Chica jail ended in early April, with 1,000 prisoners gaining concessions including being moved to jails nearer to relatives, sentences being reduced to take into account time served before trial and guarantees of no reprisals. Prisoners at three other jails in the Buenos Aires Province revolted in solidarity.

apologised for attacking him and agreed that the workers could elect their own union representative.

The final outcome at JJ's itself was disappointing. Boss Kamil flouted the Industrial Tribunal ruling, declaring that there would be no union recognition and that he could make the workers work from 5am till midnight if he required.

The workers walked out again, but the TGWU ordered them to accept Kamil's contract. The Union officials' main aim was union recognition, while the workers' main goal was improved wages and conditions.

"We believe a world without war, without exploitation, without classes, is possible. It is we, the workers, who will create it....Solidarity is the way forward. Workers of the world unite," from JJ worker's speech to Liverpool dockers' rally 2.12.95.

On 18 March, 12 of the original 42 sacked JJ workers returned to work, with full back pay and the right to union organisation - but without the improved conditions. The other 30 workers decided not to return, but all 42 remain committed to the continuing fight at JJ's and elsewhere.

These disputes show what can be achieved when workers ditch the Union bureaucracy, ignore anti-union laws and take struggles into their own hands.
