A Voice of The People of Nottingham

There is a Historical Place
Near the Large Wall on Manvers Street, Sneinton Hermitage.
A Lot of Physical Work went into Making this Place interesting...

Now -
The Authoritys have left it to Rot. And now it's Another Place for drug Addicts to Sleep.

So What is the Point of people taking Interest in this City's History?
Why is this Historical City so Dirty?
The Council House is filthy and it never was...

the Town Smells
Because of Drug Addicts etc.
Doorways Smell -
Buildings etc. -

This is Why We Fail with the Tourist.

Anon

These ancient caves in the sandstone cliff are some of the few remains of the original hermits' dwellings that gave the Hermitage its name. In the early 80s, Sneinton Environmental Society members cleared them and they were opened to the public on Bank Holidays, but since returning to City Council management they have remained closed for many years.

CRASH CORNER

(Eyre Street & Sneinton Road near Sneinton Market)

Many times the same happens - last week a terrible accident - two cars involved, both new BMWs.
Thank God, nobody was injured.
The cars both had been write-off.
So it's very dangerous to cars there - if a person walks through, there could be an accident and they could get killed. Old people, children have to cross there.
Nobody bothers to read the sign
"Give Way" - there's something wrong. It's someone's job to check it out. Many times there are accidents. Sometimes the drivers stop and argue with each other.
They go thinking they're safe, but they're not safe.

Going, Going, Gone!

For too long the route into Sneinton along Sneinton Road was spoiled by graffiti on a wall by the Wheatsheaf pub.
29 tags have now been painted out by Council workmen.
The possibility of removing a faded and crumbling mural on another road into the area (Sneinton Hermitage) is also being investigated.

Local Issues and Concerns - such as these that East of the City has been asked to report - are raised by Community Representatives at meetings of the City Council's Area Committee (now called Area 6, St. Anns and the Dales).

The Area Co-Ordinator's Office then follows them up with the appropriate Council departments and outside agencies.

The new Area Co-Ordinator is Dorothy Holmes
Tel: 915 0378.

Assistant Area Co-Ordinator is Imoogen Denton
Tel: 915 0395.

STAIRCASE OF SUFFERING

Only yards from the sunny Chase, Council tenants face a depressing scene when they open their front doors on to the communal staircase of Locksley House, an old and decaying block of flats. The floor is littered with rubbish, syringes and silver paper and a trail of fresh blood spots. When Council officers come to call the rubbish is swept down to the cellar level which no-one can get into as the key has been lost.

Following an increase in the level of Anti-Social behaviour at Locksley House, a block of 12 flats that is owned by the City Council, a site visit was made by Tyron Browne, Assistant Director Housing Direct together with Staff from St Anns District Housing Office.

As a result of this visit the following actions have been taken:

Two Caretaking staff spent three days on site cleaning the flats inside and out.

A mobile caretaker is currently on site to ensure that cleanliness is maintained throughout the block.

A new, more secure bin cupboard door has been installed.

The door entry system has been serviced and repaired to prevent unauthorised access into the flats.
One Notice seeking possession has been issued.

One letter has been issued threatening the serving of a Notice Seeking Possession.

These actions have been taken to ensure that our tenants are allowed to live in the environment they would expect to and also to send out a positive message that perpetrators of anti-social behaviour will have action taken against them.

Ian Perry Local Housing Officer

We should get compensation for living in such filth and misery for so long.

They move in people who beg on the streets - then they attract more of the same. If they can't get in, they yank the door open at the bottom and come and use the stairs. We used to clean it up but it's a losing battle so we don't bother.

Resident

At one time it was beautiful round here. We never used to have any trouble like we have now. The Council have more or less neglected these flats. Why should we have to put up with it?

I always thought taking drugs was an offence - so why hasn't anything been done about it? They go in where the bins are because the door is open. They yank the security doors to the flats open if they haven't got a key. If they can't get in they shove the bin next to the railing to get over the top. The intercom goes at 2 in the morning - they're trying to get in, stoned out of their heads. It's been reported but I can't get anything done.

You daren't say anything to them cause you don't know what they'll do. There was six of them on the stairs yesterday dinner. When I say something they give me a mouthful. They say "What are you going to do about it?" The woman next door caught a girl giving another a needle yesterday. Folks don't come here to see us because the staircase smells of wee. My daughter says she doesn't know how we stop here - but why should we have to move? We went to the health people but nothing got done.

RESIDENTS ASSOCIATIONS

Around the Area

HILLTOP TENANTS AND RESIDENTS ASSOCIATION

Everyone wants a nice area to live in. We the residents of Linton Rise are no exception. After a few problems with vandalism and anti social behaviour a Neighbourhood Watch group was set up by Lee Mills, solving many problems and giving the community encouragement to form The Hilltop Tenants and Residents Association for the Cardale estate area - a bigger voice for the local community.

We were amazed at the amount of support received from local officials and community services. The benefits were felt almost immediately. 300 leaflets were distributed inviting residents to a public meeting. We now have a very positive steering committee working together to improve our area. We welcome any involvement from local residents to support us in our exciting future plans.

Youth workers are now engaging with local young people, visiting Linton Rise every Thursday organizing activities and outings, etc. Plans for younger children are going ahead, both schemes very positive.

Housing improvements, Security and traffic calming are also issues being discussed. As a group with optimism we feel we can achieve the right results. We pride ourselves on being a community and by getting together we can improve the place we live in. So can you.

STONEBRIDGE TENANTS AND RESIDENTS ASSOCIATION

First of all may I introduce myself. My name is Cathy Blore and I am Secretary of Stonebridge Tenants and Residents Association. We first started our group on the 11th June last year. Maureen Graham our Chairman and I and a group of Committee Members got fed up the way the area had become and we had a meeting and invited Councillor David Liversidge along and told him our worries and concerns. He suggested why don't we form our own Residents' Group, which we did.

We are a very strong group and we support one another and we are trying to make Stonebridge Park (that's what we want to be called) a safe and happy place to live in.

We meet regularly with Councillors and Police to try and sort some of our problems out. We know there is a lot to do in our area and we are not going to solve the problems overnight.

We have also started bingo once a month in our Community Centre for our residents and their children, and they can win little prizes and they really enjoy it and so do we.

We feel we are doing something for our area.

SNEINTON TENANTS AND RESIDENTS ASSOCIATION

The Sneinton Tenants & Residents Association, which covers an area within Sneinton Dale/Sneinton Boulevard/Colwick Road/Lees Hill Street, was formed at a Public Meeting on 25th April 2001. Committee Meetings are held usually on 1st Tuesday in month and anyone may attend. We have held 3 Public Meetings, have distributed 3 Newsletters and had a stall at The Sneinton Festival for the past three years.

At our Meetings we receive regular reports from the Police and about housing issues. We have been active in drawing attention to the appropriate authorities on several issues which affect the community, such as empty/derelict properties, the poor standard of some of the conversions of shops into houses, accumulation of rubbish in the streets, cars being abandoned and set on fire, blocked drains, problems with bad neighbours and contacting the Police.

Representatives of various Council agencies have been to Meetings and spoken about their work. The Association is represented on different City Groups.

Two issues concern us at the moment - the number of Hostels in the area and the level of support given to their residents, and the Waterside and Eastside developments, both of which we will be pursuing at future Meetings.

Eileen Jones (Secretary) Tel: 9117327

Raw Talent started out as a school tour raising funds for the NSPCC. The schools wanted workshops - so we decided to do an event where schools would send pupils. We set up a Raw Talent Youth Night at Easter 2001 at Victoria Leisure Centre. It was city-wide, bringing together youths from different areas, with plenty from St. Anns and Sneinton.

The youths showed off their talents - some DJing, dancing, mixing, MCing, singing and rapping. We picked 8 of them to start doing recording with. We worked in different styles - R & B, hiphop, UK garage, with different combinations of young people. They were all from separate areas and it was good getting them to work together.

They came up with an idea to do a movie/documentary and music soundtrack called 'Stop the Violence' to show young people from different areas can work together in harmony. At the time, the shootings occurred. Artists were keen to get involved with such a positive campaign - Ms. Dynamite, Mis-teeq, Oxide & Neutrino, Morefire Crew, Omar and Artful Dodger.

The CD single 'Stop the Violence' came out in April and we've shifted just under 3,000 units - the profits go into setting up different workshops and activities. The movie/documentary has been shown so many times on different TV channels.

The MTV Blues and Soul tour heard about what we're doing, saw the movie and heard the story and wanted us to get involved in their tour - dedicating it to the Stop the Violence Campaign. Some people were blaming violence on music - this was a response to show that urban music could be positive. We went on a 16 day tour of 10 venues with Ms. Dynamite, Lisa Maffia, Big Brovaz, Sha Abba, Zena (ex Mis-teeq), Phallacy, Exceptional.

At the end, a lot of artists were well impressed with Raw Talent and talking about collaboration work. A couple of artists from Raw Talent are going to Germany to do our songs on stage, and we are going to Rhodes in the summer.

Tales from the

Riverbank

You may have heard of the grand plans for development along the River Trent or taken part in the consultation events - but are wondering why nothing has happened yet. For the past two years Nottingham Waterside Ltd., a partnership between the City Council, emda, British Waterways and the private sector, have been developing a scheme for the Trent Basin area. A planning application is going to be submitted in the near future and Nottingham Waterside Ltd. would like to invite people living and working in the east of the City to view the proposals.

So if you would like to see how the proposals for the waterside measure up to your expectations please come down to the Greenway Centre, Trent Lane, on Weds. the 17th of September between 4 - 7pm to view the models and plans and meet partners from Nottingham Waterside.

BACK TO RECYCLING

Thanks are due to Peter Haas - 'Super Manager' at Sneinton's Kwik Save store for solving Sneinton's re-cycling problems - namely lack of facilities. Since the loss of the Windmill Lane bins I was (like many local people) fed up of having to cart glass, clothing, newspapers, etc. for miles to recycle (to Carlton Rd. Co-op, Netherfield Morrisons and Sainsbury's at Castle Marina).

However after one brief conversation with Peter and a quick call to Chris Bailey (Recycling Team Manager) the bins were back! Kwik Save Car Park now has glass, newspaper and can banks - thank you Peter!

PLAYING WITH DYNAMITE

Photos of Raw Talent by Assunta Del Buono

The Young Ones is based at Sneinton Hermitage Community Centre in Sneinton. The age range is 25 and under for young parents and parents to be. The group gives people the opportunity to do things they've never done before or can't afford to do - like trips and outings - and the opportunity to meet other young parents in the area. Fathers are welcome but we don't get many.

The sort of things we do are go to the zoo and IKEA, and we're going to American Adventure soon. We do cooking sessions to help people to learn to cook things they might not do at home like Jamaican cooking and Asian cooking. We're doing it with Ida, a cookery teacher. We start from the basic ingredients and prepare things like mutton curry and rice and peas - today we're doing vegetable curry, chicken curry and pakoras.

The people who run the group are five Millennium volunteers. We had our idea to set up a group last April and got together last September. We got about 13 to 14 people a week and about 8 children and babies. We aim to do things parents can do with children, not leave them in a crèche. A nurse comes to give advice about parenting and development and weighs the babies. There's going to be a course in First Aid and nail art soon. Now and then we have a meeting to discuss what's going on and agree. How we run the group is to get everyone involved taking turns. We meet every Wednesday from 12 - 3 unless there's a trip.

The Young Ones

We went on a residential weekend where we took where we took part in abseiling and gymnastics and did a workshop for students and social workers. We showed them how it was to be a mother - we gave them crying dolls and showed them how it was to look after a baby.

A WOMAN OF MANY TALENTS

My first encounter with mental illness was post-natal depression. My thoughts and fears were still quite confused and things did not get any better. My depression and anxiety got worse until I was seeing my psychiatrist weekly. Life continued the same for approximately ten years, until my psychiatrist told me that he was moving on. My first reaction was one of complete and utter terror. But as time wore on I saw other doctors, less frequently now, until a community psychiatric nurse took me on as one of his clients.

Life started to change almost immediately. I was no longer being pulled along by the professionals but was actually being worked with. My CPN and I sat down and talked about what I wanted. From these discussions came my first visit to the Day Centre.

How I hated my first encounter at the Day Centre with other clients and staff I didn't know. I felt I was out of control again. However I stuck it out until I got used to it.

I was approached by a member of staff asking me if I would like to join a group that dealt with matters arising at the centre. Then I was asked if I would like to be a member of an interview panel. This made me really excited. But was I good enough to do this? Why have they asked me?

As I did more and more interviews I became more and more excited. I was receiving positive feedback from the staff involved, which made me feel more positive about myself. About a year afterwards I was told that there might be a job available at the Community Outreach Team, using the skills from doing the interviews, my administration skills from my previous jobs and my experience as a patient of the mental health services for a long time.

I first started out as a volunteer until I was granted therapeutic earnings, but it was a real struggle to actually get some money. Work became more of an incentive when I started to get paid. I felt I could hold my head up high and look people in the eye and say I have got a job.

I am now working for NAG as a woman of many talents. I am co-ordinator of a short-term project on the Care Programme Approach and also doing Admin Work and Research.

Course(s) wanting to register to attend etc

I used to go to dance classes at a community centre when I was 10 years old - jazz, acro, ballet, tap and modern. I saw people dancing on TV and wanted to dance like them. When I was 16 I had my own dance group at school - I taught the year 7 and 8s. I got a job when I left school teaching dancing drama and music at the Zone. Then I left when I got pregnant.

My grandma and great aunt are Spanish. When we used to go to visit them in Spain they were always dancing round the table and in the kitchen. I think that inspired me a little bit. I've always been creative and good at making music. I don't dance the way I was taught to dance, I have my own style - I call it urban jazz. It's all different styles of dance put to music.

When I lived here I got a flier through the door about the Greenway Centre and nipped in. I mentioned I did dance and that was it. I started a dance troupe up, Lush, in April 2001. I started with 4 girls and we've now got over 30. We've performed at the Council House, Market Square, Palais and of course the Sneinton Festival. I was volunteering as a Millennium Volunteer for a year and a half and was nominated for national volunteer of the year. I won it for the East Midlands and had to go to London to pick up the award in March.

This year I'm chairperson of Sneinton Festival and I've helped set up dance events this year like the Day of Dance with different styles from different countries. I've been working in Greenwood Junior, Greenwood Infants and William Booth Schools teaching dance work with age 5 - 13 year olds - but older teenagers are easier. I'd like to have more of a permanent slot in schools doing dance and choreographing music videos.

FAMILY FUN DAY

After months of planning the day finally arrived. The birds were singing, the sun was shining and all was ready for the hordes of people who would be knocking down the doors of the Chase Neighbourhood Centre to enjoy the celebrations to mark the Centre's 6th birthday.

The attendance was very good with around 150 people turning up. Young people took full advantage of the face painters, who were working non stop, as was the clown who spent all day balloon modelling. The henna painter was also busy.

STAA Allotments were there busy selling of their wares from the allotments as were a variety of people selling bric a brac. To end the day we were lucky enough to be entertained by the group "Raw Talent" who sang, spoke, rapped out a number of songs for at least an hour. They gave a great performance of their single "Stop the Violence." Thank you for a great job.

It was a great day which was enjoyed by all who attended. Our thanks to the Renewal Trust, Surestart St. Anns and all the others who are too numerous to mention. See you all again next year.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

My family left Glasgow in 1973 and moved down to Meadow Lane by the Magpie Pub, where we lived on Moreland Street. My name then was Stephen, but on my first day at Greenwood Junior School, the kids in my class called me Scotty and it stuck. Someone in a broad Sneinton accent said "Ooooooerrrr! Dun't e tawk funnnnyyyyy!" I'm pleased to say that having been here thirty years I still haven't picked up the accent.

In Glasgow, all I knew was Catholics and Protestants and they were at war. Here, in Sneinton, there was an amazing mix of people - Indians, Italians, Ukrainians, Vietnamese, Bangladeshi's, Poles, Caribbean's, Pakistani's, Irish, Scots and English. A wonderful kaleidoscope of nationalities, and great place to grow up and learn.

When our home got knocked down in 1976 and the entire community was moved up to the Marmion Estate off Carlton Road in St. Anns. Carlton Rd is where St Anns and Sneinton meet, and like all roads it led to Sneinton Market. There was always a lot of activity around the market, like the city centre for St Anns & Sneinton. A lot of the people I grew up with got jobs on the market and the old wholesale market. Some now run their own stalls there like the Peggs, Piketts, and the Gallaghers. I never thought I'd end up running a market stall so close to here.

I've had more jobs than I've told the social about, but ended up working in the entertainment industry. I spent several years as a performance poet - I had my first gig in the Pretty windows! I ran comedy clubs, became an agent for comedians, bands and was involved in the old Rock & Reggae Festival. I've worked and travelled all over Britain and Europe, but I always come back to Nottingham, it's home. In 1985 I wrote a play about the St Anns Race Riots, and am now 50,000 word through a novel about a twat from Sneinton who's on the run on Berlin building sites.

A passion of mine has always been food, so it made sense that I got a job as a food development worker on the allotment project. In a nutshell, to get a tomato from Holland or an onion from Spain into your supermarket, it takes an enormous amount of fuel. Growing tomatoes and onions here in St Anns for the people of St Anns and Sneinton makes sense. There's something spiritual about growing food to eat or sell, and besides, it's nice to be able to do a bit of payback for all the damage I committed up the allotments when I was young and daft.

We'll be running stalls at a variety of different places this summer selling the produce from the allotments, such as the Caribbean Carnival, the Riverside Festival and the Community Orchard Harvest Day on 19th October. Come and support us.

THE FAT CLUB

The inspiration of this course is to get the local residents to exercise due to lack of health and fitness education and knowledge. This will lead to less cases of heart disease, osteoporosis, obesity, lack of energy and depression.

The club will be coming soon, and will give the local residents the opportunity to get fit, healthy, to get nutritional advice and knowledge, weight loss and best of all, you will meet some new friends and have fun. The Fat Club will be similar to the one that was on TV. Each session will consist of a body fat % check, activity workout and then a 15 minute questions and answers session at the end.

Make no mistake the six week course is hard work, but the benefits will leave you glowing.

Martin Gooden

The next course will be starting in August and will be at the GREENWAY CENTRE (SNEINTON). Interested? Call Martin on 07971 31 2690 or 8479052.

Better or Not?

Most people wax lyrical when they talk about the past. They speak about how good life was, it was simpler, people were closer, there was very little crime, neighbours lived in close loving relationships. In all life was easier, but was it?

I was born in 1927. Looking back at the 30s and 40s, life was harder in those days. It was hard during the war, especially for Women. People had to deal with the same problems that women have to deal with to-day, how to look after their families, keep them clean (no washing machines and other labour saving devices), no super markets selling cut price food. The nearest to that was shops like Home & Colonial and the Maypole.

It was in the late 19th Century that the Co-op came on the scene. The Co-op's policy was to sell pure food to working class people. Customers of the Co-op could buy a £1 share. After joining the Co-op they got a number and each time they shopped at the Co-op they got a little docket showing how much they had spent and their Co-op number on it. Shrewd housewives used to put them on a string and hang them in the kitchen. When dividend time came they knew to a penny how much they had to draw. A small sum of money was kept back to pay the membership fee. The Co-op was a great influence on setting standards in other fields. Members were invited to take part in educational and cultural projects. The Co-op Arts Theatre in Nottingham is a tribute to the contribution made by its members to improve the lot of working people.

Let's look once more at food. Were our fears about food justified? I was very fond of a certain cake that had a layer of Cream and Jam. My father would not have it in the house. He called it Sawdust Cake. He maintained they hadn't used all flour, hence the name. We seldom had shop cakes or pies. Although my mother went to work full time once a week she baked. This was supposed to last all week but seldom did. A lot of women made their own bread. This was hard work. The taste and smell of home made bread is something one never forgets. On a Sunday, because we had a big dinner, tea tended to be bread and butter. It was no hardship. What has happened to bread to-day? I wonder if they use some chemical instead of yeast to make the bread rise.

Another source of food was to be found in the countryside. This was free food – better still. In the summer we would go in Colwick Woods blackberrying. Very few blackberries got taken home – most were eaten on the way. It was the men who harvested what free food was to be had. The men went into the woods poaching – they usually went in pairs. One kept watch whilst the other did the business. Usually they had a ferret which they sent down the rabbit hole to force the rabbit out, then they filled it. Another way of getting free food was to go out early in the morning to gather mushrooms from the surrounding fields in the open countryside. Most of the places they went to were privately owned land. If they were caught they would be in trouble for trespassing.

In the 1930s there were around three million people unemployed. How did those in work fare? My father was a railway man. He told me that when he came out of the army he tried to get on the railway. In those days goods used to come in to Nottingham by train, then they would be delivered to the shops and firms by horse and dray. When he left school he had worked on a dairy farm, and in the war he had been in the Veterinary Corps, so he tried for a job with horses. Each morning he would go down to the LMS goods yard on Carrington Street. He had to stand in line, the man in charge would pick out the men he wanted, the rest would be sent home. He was working as a casual for two years before he got a permanent job. This was a custom in many big firms. A retired road sweeper (Ted) told me Nottingham City Council worked on the same basis years ago (employing people by the day). This had consequences for the people employed on this basis. The working week included Saturday, the worker was not allowed to sign on for Dole money if they had worked for three days during a working week.

How did folks deal with medical problems? A lot of people could not afford a doctor. Children could be treated by the school clinic, adults tended to get medicine from the chemist or herbalist. Many older people will remember Manfull's in Sneinton. Mr. Manfull also used to stand the old Central Market. Chemists used to make their own medicines up. One local chemist made a cough medicine called Gas Mans Cough medicine. One could get free free treatment at the dispensary. I understand to get free treatment one had to get a recommend from someone on the board of the charity. My parents paid into an organisation called Foresters, there was also another organisation called Rechabites. Organisations such as these provided a kind of medicine insurance.

What about crime? Was there less crime? There probably was not. Working class families had very little in the way of material goods. Their experience of crime was someone breaking in to break open the Gas and Electric meters and stealing the money in them, people stealing their washing off the line, etc. one crime that has always been with us was sexual attacks on women and girls. Like to-day, many women afraid to report it, they were afraid of being accused of encouraging the man.

In 1939 the Second World War broke out. This event brought many changes. Life began to change for working class people. They were needed in the services, in the factories making munitions, etc. As more men were called up, women took their place in industry and other fields of employment that before the war had been dominated by men. Legislation was brought in and people who were eligible for call up were directed into employment that was categorized as essential. It applied to all people and classes that were eligible for call up.

The gross inequality that had characterized British society before the war was changing. Many working class people were entering a phase of history that promised to make life easier. Technology has certainly made housework easier. People's expectations on education, employment, etc. have risen. We have more rights. In all, life to-day is not bad. I wouldn't want to go back in time. Would you?

I'd Like to Know More...

I've lived in Sneinton 20 years. I've settled very happily but find it very difficult to find out any of the history from the 1900's onwards. I don't want to know about caves and medieval history (I had enough of that at school) it's more recent history. Why were the streets named after the Boer War? I'd like to know about Sneinton before I got here.

Last week I was in Darlington – the first thing I noticed was no wheelie bins to be seen on the streets. Not on the terraced streets, private houses or council estates. I asked my friend I was visiting "Why don't you have wheelie bins?"

She told me "You have to put them away as soon as they've been emptied or you get fined."

They've also got a great recycling system there with the council collecting newspapers. And their rates are £200 a year less than ours.

Mary Michalak

Mary Michalak, then Mary Millhouse, left school at 14 (St. Mary's in the Lace Market). She was a musician and toured with the Hames Hague Accordion Band for a year. They played at Trent Bridge and on the Embankment every Sunday in Summer and supported the war effort. The photo shows her grandfather, father and uncle outside their shop at 16 Trent Road in Sneinton. Mary lived in Kingston Street, then Sneinton Boulevard and Colwick Road.

When she got married she worked with her husband in his shoe repair and handbag shop, and stood Central Market with him. She later worked in local government for 28 years. In 1989 she received an Open University Honours Degree in Social Sciences.

She was Secretary of Bakersfield Community Centre for 13 years and ran the Co-Op Women's Guild there, but has now retired due to disability.

Her passion is her writing – she is the only person to win the Elizabeth Allen Award two years running, for essays on set subjects – and has been a great letter writer to the Evening Post. Of her writing on the past, she says "You try to make the stuff you write come alive – a living history that means something to the people and they can identify with it. People want to know what conditions were like, what made people tick."
