introduction

Welcome to issue one of "Visions", which has taken about a year to get out, mainly due to the fact that we didn't want to make it a band/interview zine, cause who wants to know what coloured socks people wear? There are small bits on bands in this zine as you will notice, because they are committed bands, and most have hardly any coverage at all. If anyone wants to write or write an article for the next issue (some chance) please do, cause communication with fellow human(?) beings is necessary if anything worthwhile is to be achieved. See you next issue (perhaps).

Cyclist hurt in collision

A young Dunfermline cyclist was taken to hospital yesterday after an accident in which he was thrown over the roof of a car.

Steven Gray (17), 47 Shamrock Street, was riding his cycle in Halbeath Road, when he was involved in a collision with a car turning into the service road to the Asda supermarket.

He was taken to Dunfermline and West Fife Hospital where he had stitches inserted in a scalp wound before being allowed home.

Time at last.
'The Courier' 29/6/83.

Today, there are many Christians such as Mother Theresa who work unselfishly for others in terrible conditions. Many Christians are becoming involved in the peace movements, third world charities, etc.

I don't think that a lot of anarchists who sit in the pub most nights, can criticise them. It is not in fact Jesus that is bad, but the people who say they are Christians, and say they preach Christ's words and twist them for their own aims, that are bad.

YOUTH IN ASIA have a great tape out, called Sex Object. It is an 11 track studio tape, with booklet and badges, available for £1.50 from - 1 Palmerston Road, Walthamstow, London E17 6PQ.

In March, we organised a collection for Greenpeace's 'Save The Seal' week. We held a street collection in the town on a Saturday lunchtime, and raised a total of (as far as I can remember, £190. Thanks to all who helped in the collection and those who donated money. It is really easy to do a collection. Pick a worthwhile organisation to raise money for (Hunt Sabs, Greenpeace, etc), ask them to send you collecting kits, ask your local council for permission, get some friends to help, and then you're all set.

ANTI CHRIST DOGMA.

I am weary of reading anarchist-punk anti-christ or anti-religion dogma. I agree that the established churches and many people who claim to be Christians should be criticised, but to say that Christ in particular, Christianity, and religion in general is evil is a narrow minded and naive attitude.

The majority of churches throughout history have supported cruel regimes, oppressed, exploited and tortured populations, caused and fought wars, while gaining land for themselves. They have also compromised on moral issues such as war, nuclear weapons and the state. The hypocrisy of the church is as great as the hypocrisy of politicians, union leaders, and big business.

There is however another side to this story. Firstly Jesus Christ preached love, compassion, tolerance and self sacrifice for the good of others. He opposed the state, materialism and war. Many people have called him the first liberal or the first socialist, but he could really have been called the first anarchist.

FOR PACIFISTS EVERYWHERE AND ANYWHERE.

I don't believe that a major change towards a non-government/police state society in this country as a whole will come about by a 'peace-ful' revolution. I think this for several reasons: public opinion on it's own will not be strong enough to oust out a government without replacing it with another, because too many people (millions) have been brain-washed into becoming satisfied with their systemised lifestyles, and would only do something about the world they live in if lots of other people did. (punks, anarchists, and radical reformists who believe in what they are doing are regarded as a threat to society to these people, and therefore do not count as lots of other people) For instance, though some nazi's may be converted by either listening to lyrics or through conversation, i think that they all deserve to be shot. I don't give a shit if that's supposed to make me as evil as them, because I don't think it does. How can you compare an Asian family made homeless by racial violence, to a nazi being made lifeless? No contest. Mrs Thatcher wouldn't consider giving up her job if you sent her a bouquet of flowers and a note saying - 'go away please' But it might cross her mind if you sent her a bomb. (sorry about the pacafist/peace-flowers cliché) I do believe, that an army/government/police force/system is not necessary, providing the people in that environment have respect for each other and are willing to co-operate and help each other. It would be great to live in a society where everyone believed that they could do whatever they wished, so long as they didn't infringe anyone else's right to do whatever they wished. I am all for working with people who do not share my militant views as we are supposedly working towards the same aim.

Dave Apostle.

Apparently the apostles aren't very popular cause of their militant views. Why, I do not know, cause surely everyone is entitled to their own beliefs, be it militant or pacafist. Write to them, because they have some very thought provoking hand outs and write good letters. You should give them a chance, because as dave says, "we are supposedly working towards the same aim. They have a great ep out which is quite hard to get hold of, so i would advise getting it direct from them. For handouts, info on how to get their ep and (many) tapes, write to The Apostles, Box 4, 136 Kingsland High Street, London E8.

Anarchy Barmy Army.

I've heard all the protests of the anarchy barmy army
Broken promises don't sound like anarchy to me
That what you despise is the way we must think
You use the systems tactics and your punk appearance stinks
Your sincere macho image is nothing but a farce
While your shouting out your mouth your talking out your arse
This macho image is hypocrisy when you sing of anti-war
The violent means you possess leaves another body on the floor.
The message is lost because you try to play to fast
Next year you'll be nothing as your politics will never last
Everyone begins to realise you never meant what you said
The 'conflict'ing ideals you invented forcing others to be led
c. Weeny.

Weeny does 'A System Partly Revealed' and the above is a song of his group - 'Admit your shit'. The zine costs 20p +sae from 50A Erith Road, Belvedere, Kent, DA17 6EY.

'Flowers In the Dustbin' have a good demo tape out with a lyric book for £1.50 from - Gerard, 13 Orchard Grove, Orpington, Kent.

... Brigade have a relatively new tape out - 'Cod the tape', for a tape and sae. Address elsewhere in the zine.

Mutual Fear have a demo out for a tape and sae from - John, 43 Pittencrief Street, Dunfermline, Fife.

The Sea Shepherd Campaign to — Orkney. SAVE THE SEALS

In November, 1982, there was a concentrated attempt by "Sea Shepherd", to halt the uncalled for slaughter of grey seal pups in and around "Orkney" and Western Isles.

"Sea Shepherd" is a break-away group from "Greenpeace" They were cheesed off at the inactivity of "Greenpeace" in the direct-action field.

The campaign was due to start near the end of October. 5 campaigners went out checking the seal colonies, and found that the pups still had their white fur. This meant that the hunt wouldn't start for a couple of weeks because the pelts are most valuable when they are turning grey.

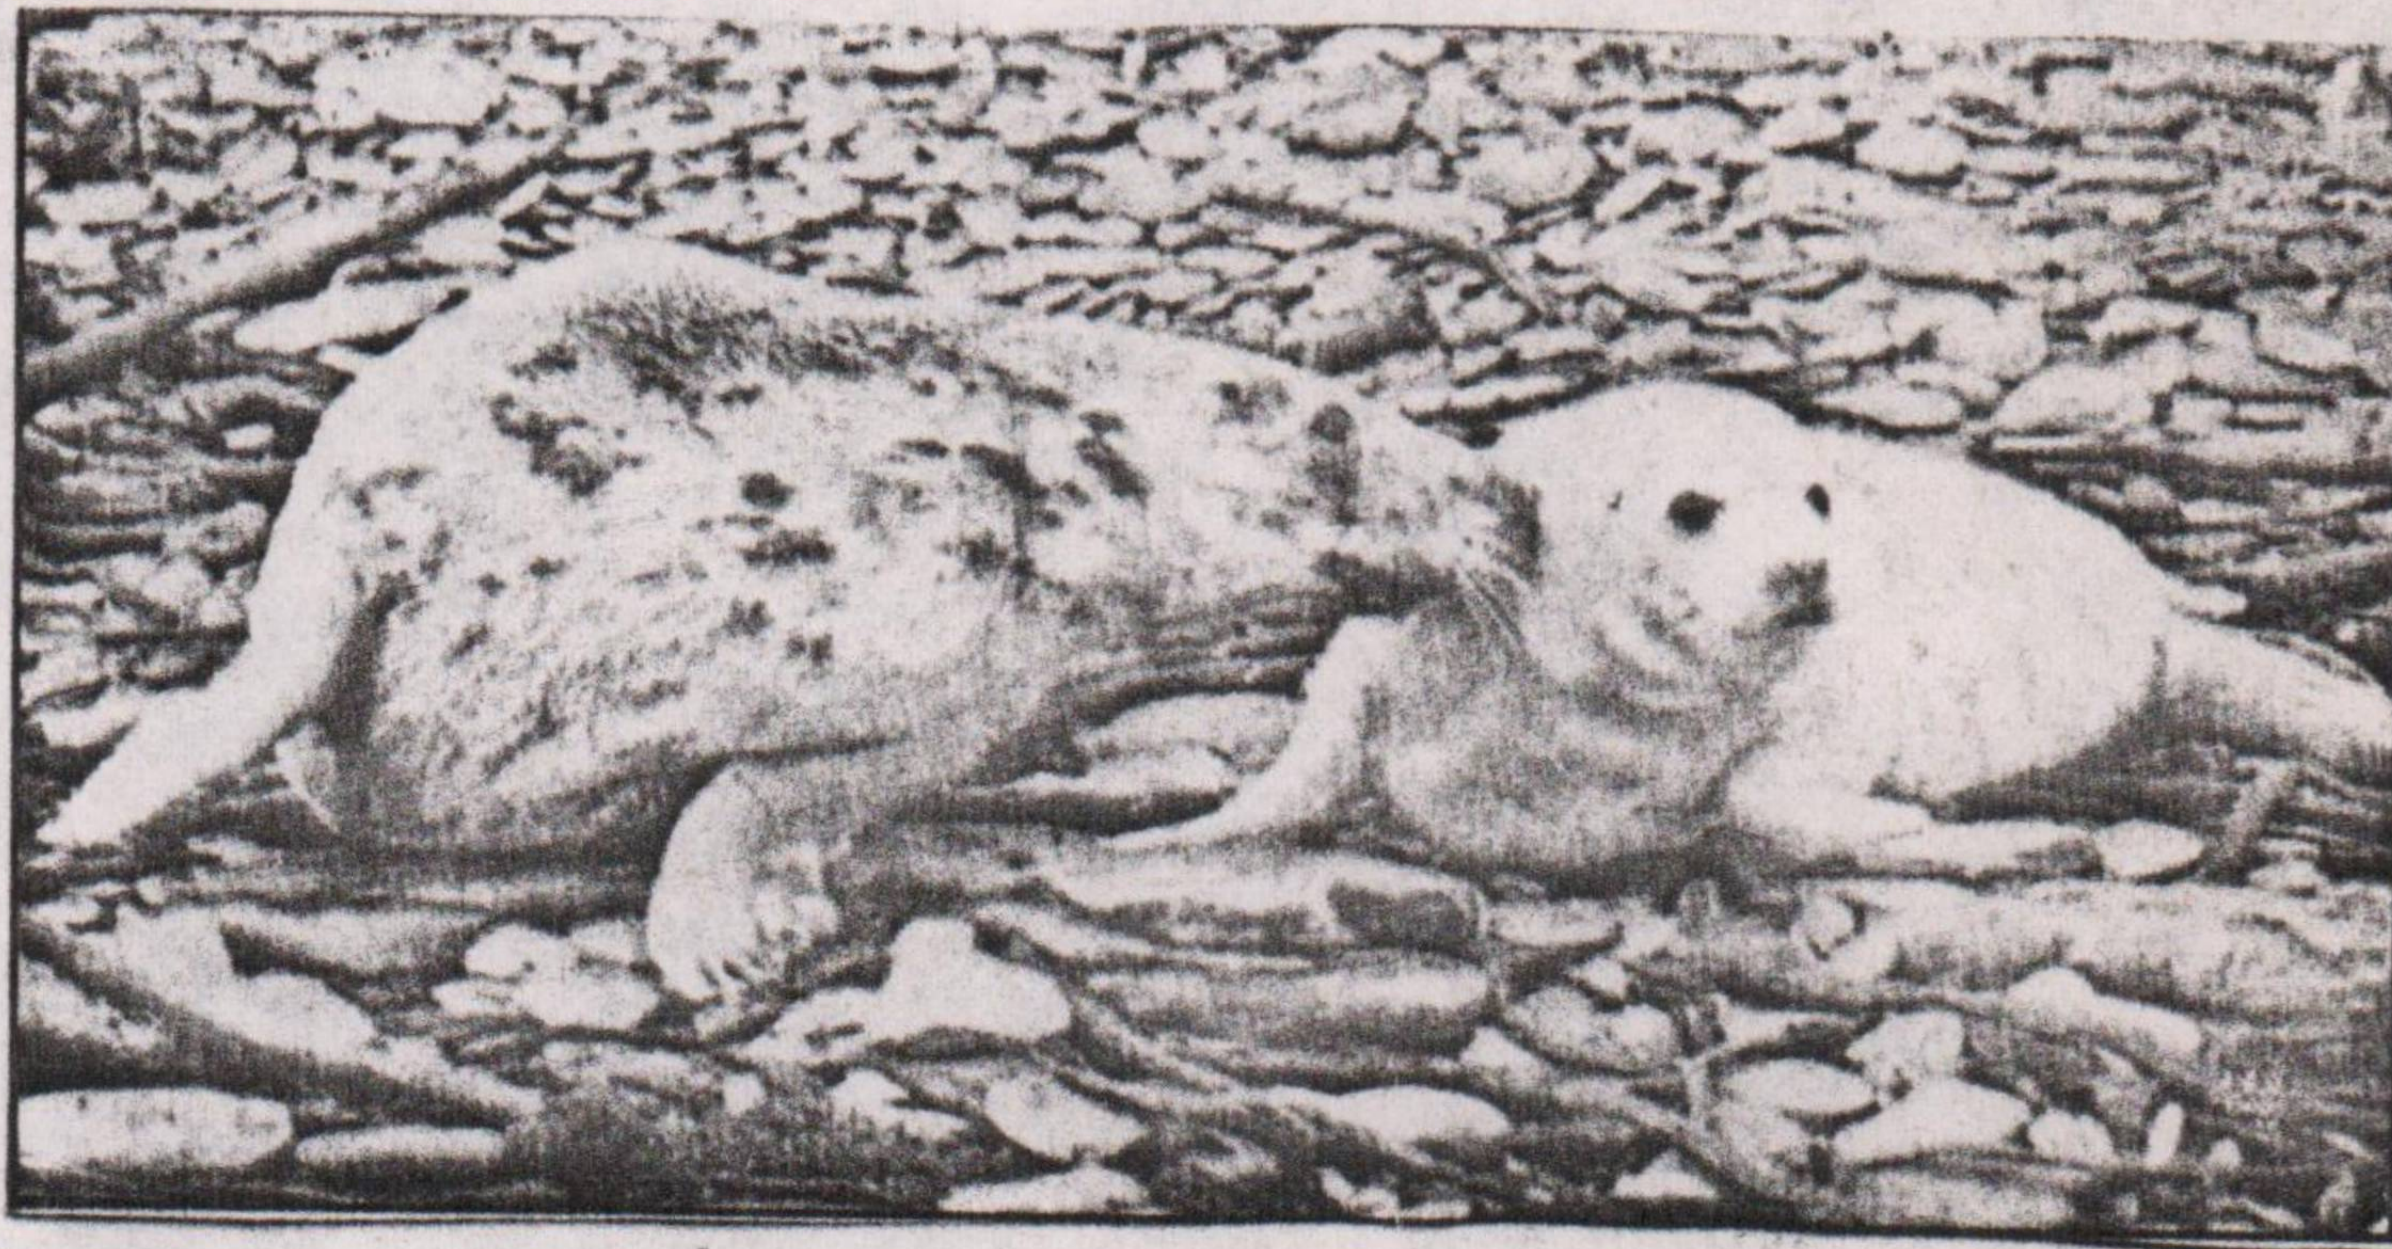

"Sea Shepherd" had rented a cottage on "Orkney" from which to base their operations.

Unknown to them, on November 2nd, 300 seal pups were murdered on the islands of "Rusk Holm", "Faray" and "Holm of Faray".

On Nov. 3rd, the two "sea riders" went out with 5 campaigners in each. They spotted the hunters on the "Holme of spurness". The hunters had finished on that island. The first sea rider (alpha) had to delay the sealers boat for as long as possible so it couldn't get to another colony. The boat was escorted by 2 police launches and the "Department of Fisheries and Agriculture" boat.

The alpha sea rider managed to harass and delay the hunters boat for 45 mins. till the sea riders prop. was badly damaged. They asked for police assistance, which they were given. 5 mins. later, they were arrested and charged with attempting to ram and capsize the hunter's dory* (*raft on which pelts are towed)

The second sea rider (bravo) arrived to find the crew of alpha being arrested. The hunters by this time had landed on other islands—"Luckie" and "Little green horn". Several seals were shot, as the police helped the hunters. 2 campaigners tried to stop the huntsmen from taking the corpses, by lying on top of the dead pups. Another one attempted to over turn the dory, and one threw a bucket of salt water over a hunter's gun to render it useless. All were arrested and charged with a breach of the peace.

Sea rider bravo, confronted the hunters at sea. They attempted to snag the boat's prop with a rope. A can of oil was thrown into the dory, causing at least 20 pelts to be rendered valueless.

On arriving back at "Kirkwall" harbour, the crew was arrested and charged. That day, the hunters killed a total of 350 pups.

Nov. 4th. With the 2 sea riders impounded by the police, and the most experienced crew members in court, the hunters kill 50 pups unopposed on "Holme of Hulp".

Nov. 5th. Sea shepherd members found a skinned seal carcass on one of the islands. The hunters are supposed to skin the pups away from the islands and not to leave any corpses, so that the mother seals don't get distressed.

The campaigners marched through "Kirkwall" with the carcass in a mock coffin, and leave it on the doorstep of the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries. 3 people were arrested and charged with breach of the peace.

Nov. 6th. Onwards. With only one avon left fully operational, the remaining campaigners traveled to some of the seal colonies, and sprayed pups with dye.

Nov. 16th. The campaign finally ended.

BLOOD ON THE ROCKS

During the cull, shops selling seal products, were daubed with anti-cull slogans, by the Animal Liberation Front. The Scottish Office and various shops were picketted.

Of the quota allowed, 1150 seal pups were slaughtered. Well below the 2000 maximum. The value of the pelts has dropped from £45 each (3 years ago), to £10-£15 per pelt. The estimated total cost of policing the cull is thought to be about £23,500. More than 3 times the profit of the hunters. This means that the british taxpayer PAID for those seal pups to be slaughtered.

Sea Shepherd now believe that the grey seal cull in british waters will soon stop, because of their direct-action campaign and the public outcry at this "traditional" hunt.

During the campaign, 18 people were arrested. 8 have already been fined (total £185). Ten more have still to appear in court in "Kirkwall" in February on more serious charges.

PRESSURE MUST NOW BE KEPT UP BY ORGANISATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS, WITH YOUR HELP AND SUPPORT, SEA SHEPHERD, CAN ONCE AND FOR ALL, PUT AN END TO THE "ORKNEY" AND "WESTERN ISLES" SEAL CULL.

YR ANHREFN

For 700 years, Wales has been ruled by an english government. During that time successive attempts to eradicate the welsh language and to crush national identity have failed.

Now in the 1980's the Welsh have their own tv channel, their own newspapers and so on. Of course many of these operate to repress us (in our own language) in the same way as the english system represses everybody on these islands.

Wales, Scotland, Cornwall etc. have an unique opportunity to regain self rule by learning from the 'Bloody Revolutions' that have occurred all over the world. Just look at Ireland, this is the sort of mess that fucks up the whole idea of freedom.

In other words, don't expect Plaid Cymru or the s.n.p to give you that freedom. They may help preserve Welsh or Scottish culture, But the people will still be instruments to be used by a new authority. The answer is real self rule for each individual - freedom to do what you like, as long as it doesn't infringe on the freedom of others. By averting the 'Bloody Revolution' we will have real self rule.

The cultures and languages of Wales, Scotland, Cornwall etc. will develop naturally. English as a second language would be useful but we would all have our native language - it is ours - it is mine and it is yours!

English socialists, and even English anarchists often fail to understand different cultures. But with different cultures we will learn to respect the the cultures of others, and thus also learn to respect other individuals. There need be no "superiority" as has been the case with the English rulers.

Wales has shown the way towards a peacefull world on many occassions but we must act fast and show the way towards freedom for each individual, before a ruling class emerges who want Welsh independence and people will then say that the language is safe and that everything is ok. Welsh is a beautiful language, one which has always represented a resistance, it must therefore now be carried further as a resistance to all authority and not only the English government, if it is to develop naturally. The same goes for the other Celtic cultures, countries and languages.

The answer is self rule - but beware of politicians. Their answer is self rule and "we rule".

The above was written by the singer of the Welsh group, Yr Anhrefn. They were formed in mid-Wales, and have been going since 1980. They have released 2 tapes so far, the most recent being "Stwffich Y Dolig Ddim Y Twrg" (Stuff christmass, not turkeys) This tape is a nice change from the usual anarchist bands, so i would advise you to send away for it.

They do gigs all over Wales, of which most are benefits for causes and organisations like - "Welsh language society", + "Campaign for civil Liberties".

Just recently, there has been a spate of arrests connected with the burning down of holiday homes. Seemingly, the state has been arresting totally innocent people, and holding them without a trial under the prevention of terrorism act.

Some have now been released on bail, and preparing themselves for court cases in the summer. These will be very important because if they are convicted, it will pave the way for more conspiracy trials.

Meanwhile, Yr Anhrefn have been keeping themselves busy by writing articles for zines, playing gigs, visiting prisoners, and working on tapes. There is a chance that they will be playing in Scotland some time near the end of summer.

The tape costs £1, and is available from-

Rhys,

Pford y Iwnt,
Llanfair Caereinion,
Powys, SY21 OBH.

A book worth reading (or rather-books) is the "Chronicles of Thomas Covenant, The Unbeliever" by Stephen Donaldson. They are compared with Tolkien, but personally, I think they are far superior. There are six books altogether, which adds up to quite a lot of money. But you can get them from your local library.

The next issue should be out in the Summer of 84. It will hopefully have a lot more articles, and no bands. If you do want to contribute to the next issue, write to one of the addresses at the front.

THE STENCH OF DEATH HANGS IN THE AIR. THE WARM BLOOD COVERS THE CERAMIC TILED FLOOR. IT FLOWS IN DEEP RED RIVERS ACROSS THE ROOM. RACKS OF CORPSES ADORN THE WALLS. IN THE ROOM NEXT DOOR THE SLAUGHTER TAKES PLACE. HUNDREDS OF LIVING? BREATHING? ANIMALS? ARE HERDED TOWARDS THE STAINLESS STEEL SLAUGHTERING UNIT. THE AIR TENSE AND ELECTRIC. CHARGED WITH TOTAL FEAR. FEAR. SEE. HEAR. SMELL. TASTE. FEEL THE FEAR. THE CRIES OF THE PETRIFIED ANIMALS MIXES WITH THE CRUEL LAUGHTER OF THE MEN WHO PERFORM THE ACTS. THEY SMILE BROADLY AS EACH CREATURE IS HELD IN PLACE BY THE SILVER BARRIERS...A BOLT OF COLD GREY STEEL SHOOTS AT GREAT SPEED INTO THE ANIMALS HEAD. SMASHED. SHATTERED. BROKEN SKULL. STUNNED IT FALLS DOWNWARDS. THE SUPPORTS DO THEIR WORK. THE ANIMAL IS HOISTED UP TOWARD THE CEILING BY A PULLEY...IT SWINGS FROM SIDE TO SIDE LAZILY. A MAN IN A ONCE WHITE COAT STANDS IN HIS PLACE. THE LIMP BODY SWINGS SLOWLY TOWARD HIM. IN HIS HANDS HE HOLDS A KNIFE. EIGHTEEN INCH BLADE. SHARP AS A RAZOR BLADE. IN HIS HANDS. WHOSE HANDS? HITLERS? THE RIPPERS? MANSONS? OR THE FAMILY BUTCHERS? IAN BRADY THE TRADITIONAL FAMILY BUTCHER. HE RAISES HIS RIGHT ARM. HE SWINGS THE SHARP KNIFE ACROSS THE THROAT OF THE STUNNED ANIMAL. THE BLOOD BEGINS TO FLOW STEADILY...THE ANIMAL IS FINALLY DEAD...IT HANGS THERE FOR A TOTAL OF TWELVE MINUTES. JUST LONG ENOUGH FOR THE EXCESS FLUID TO DRAIN AWAY. THE LIFELESS LUMP OF MEAT CONTINUES ITS JOURNEY ALONG THE RAIL TOWARDS A TANK OF BOILING WATER. EACH ONE IS DUNKED TO STERILISE IT. THOUSANDS PASS THIS WAY EVERY WEEK. SO IT IS NOT SURPRISING THE ODD FEW ARE NOT DEAD WHEN THEY REACH THIS STAGE. BUT NONE SURVIVE THE STERILISING UNIT. THE END. FREEDOM. DEATH. THEN COMES THE SKINNING. MEN WITH BLANK FACES AND CHAINSAWS. THEY HACK AWAY AT THE CLEAN CORPSE. 'CAN I TAKE YOUR JACKET SIR?' THE OUTER FLESH FALLS AWAY. IT IS PACKED INTO CONTAINERS TO BE SORTED LATER. BY THIS TIME THE NAKED LIFELESS THING IS HEADLESS. HOOFFLESS. WHAT WERE ITS LAST THOUGHTS BEFORE DEATH? BEFORE THE FINAL NUMBING SENSATION. DID THEY FORGIVE. THE SMILING MEN IN THEIR BLOOD SOAKED APRONS? FORGIVE THEM LORD FOR THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO. BUT OF COURSE THEY DO KNOW. THEY ARE VERY WELL TRAINED. THEY ARE TRAINED TO BE UNFEELING. COLD PEOPLE. THEY REFUSE TO SEE THE ANIMALS AS LIVING BEINGS. ITS ONLY A JOB. MOST OF THE MANUEL WORKERS ARE CRIPPLES. THEIR FINGERS CUT OFF BY THE VICIOUS AND DANGEROUS SAWS AND KNIVES. THEIR EYES ARE BLIND TO THE COLD REALITY OF DEATH. WILL THEY FACE THEIR OWN DEATH IN THE SAME WAY? DEWHURST THE MASTER BUTCHER KNOWS EXACTLY WHAT HE IS DOING. HE IS GETTING RICH AT THE EXPENSE OF ANIMAL LIVES. LIFE IS VERY CHEAP. DEATH MEANS MONEY. MONEY MEANS LIFE TO MR DEWHURST. HIS HANDS ARE CLEAN. THEY ARE NOT SOAKED IN WARM BLOOD. HE LEAVES THE DIRTY MINDLESS KILLING TO HIS WILLING WORKERS. THEY HAVE TO CLOSE THEIR MINDS AND COLDLY MURDER. THEY HAVE CHILDREN TO KEEP. FAR TOO MANY CHILDREN. PRODUCTS OF THE DAYS WHEN HE HAD NO WORK TO GO TO. PRODUCTS OF THE DEPRESSED TIMES. FREE MEAT. PERKS OF THE JOB. WORK IN A BUILDERS YARD. FREE CEMENT. FREE BRICKS. WHEN THE BOSS ISN'T LOOKING OF COURSE. IN THE ABATTOIR THINGS ARE DIFFERENT. THE BOSS JUST SMILES AND BIDS HIS WORKFORCE GOODNIGHT. AS THEIR GREEDY HANDS CLUTCH TIGHTLY THEIR CARRIER BAGS CRAMMED FULL WITH THE SPOILS OF THEIR LABOUR. FREE CORPSE TO FEED THE STARVING CHILDREN AT HOME. WHILE THE AFRICAN CHILD CHOKES TO DEATH ON HIS LAST FEEBLE BREATH. HE HAS NOT EATEN PROPERLY FOR THREE WEEKS. IF GRAIN WAS NOT GIVEN TO ANIMALS TO FATTEN THEM READY FOR SLAUGHTER. THAT SAME GRAIN COULD FEED EVERY STARVING INFANT IN THE WORLD. BUT THAT WOULD NOT MAKE MR DEWHURST RICH WOULD IT? SO HE IS NOT INTRESTED IN STARVING CHILDREN. JUST HIS INDEGESTION. HE HAD A FIVE COURSE BUSINESS LUNCH WITH DRINKS. HIS STOMACH IS NOW FIGHTING BACK. AS AN ANIMAL DIES AN AFRICAN DIES. LIFE GOES ON. DEATH GOES ON. ITS A VICIOUS CIRCLE. A CIRCLE THAT LEAVES MR DEWHURST LAUGHING HIS SWEATY HEAD OFF. LAUGHING ALL THE WAY TO THE BANK. IN THE BUSY HIGH STREET THE REFRIDGERATED VAN IS PARKED NEXT TO THE BUTCHERS SHOP. A SMALL LINK IN A LARGE CHAIN OF DEATH. ITS DOORS ARE FLUNG WIDE OPEN. INSIDE THE CORPSES OF TWENTY SIX DEAD ANIMALS HANG ON SHARP HOOKS. THEY ARE NOT COWS. THEY ARE NOT SHEEP. THEY ARE NOT ANIMALS. THEY COULD BE CORPSES FROM THE FALKLANDS. OR LATE ARRIVALS FOR THE VIET CONG. BUT THEY ARE THERE. AND WHATEVER THEY ARE THEY GO TOTALLY UNOTICED. NO ONE SEES THE COLD SLABS OF RED MEAT. THEY SEE ONLY THEIR SHOPPING LISTS. THE PROGRAMME ON THE TV LAST NIGHT. FLICKERING IMAGES OF WAR. JOHN WAYNE THE HERO. BRUTALLY KILLS ANOTHER INDIAN. THEY WONDER WHY THEIR MEMORY WAS JOGGED AT THAT MOMENT. THE THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE THAT WALK PAST THE OPEN VAN. SEE NO EVIL. HEAR NO EVIL. SEE NO PAIN. HEAR NO PAIN. THEY FEEL NOTHING. GADZOOKS!

JUST THE THING FOR NIPPING DOWN TO THE SHOPS.

SO VERY, VERY YOU.

The industrial nations and the poor countries dominated and exploited by the industrialised nations all rely on the growth economy. This means that industrial production must always increase, ie, the numbers of fridges, cars, stereos, dog food, nuclear power stations, tv's, psychiatric hospitals. produced has to be constantly increasing.

On a finite planet, this is of course impossible, as there is only a small amount of resources such as coal, oil, tin, iron, aluminium etc. The most widely used resources are almost completely used up. Some will have totally disappeared within ten years. Pollution is constantly increasing and reaching unbearable limits. If things continue the way they are going, society (I avoid the use of the word "civilisation") will completely collapse, leaving only chaos.

In order that production increases, people must be persuaded to buy more.

The two main methods are advertising and planned obsolescence.

Advertising methods include the tv, (not just the adverts) cinema, papers, magazines, books, radio, billboards, shop displays, salesmen etc. This business in itself makes use of such emotions and activities as sex, vanity, pride, appearing to be rich, the urge to conform. We are constantly being assaulted by adverts which tell us we smell, we are ugly, a semi-turn off, poor, unhappy, odd, abnormal, shabby, and unsuccessful in life.

Planned obsolescence is a subtle technique, which manufacturers use to keep up a steady or increasing demand for their products. Products are built to break down after a specific time. Usually a small important, inaccessible, unreplaceable part.

Technology has a major role in today's society. In fact, our society is based on technology. Technology, contrary to what we are always told, is not politically neutral on any scale. This makes it a very powerful weapon of exploitation and the lust for power. For example, workers in Britain, work when it is convenient for the machine they work with. They are an extension of the machine. This causes many problems of alienation and boredom.

Governments are increasingly being influenced if not run by a small centralised technical elite who do not necessarily have to be part of the elected government, eg. the nuclear power lobby.

At the moment in the U.K. (and other European countries) there is overproduction of electricity, yet the government wants more nuclear power stations. The major reasons for this is to drastically reduce their dependence on the militant coal miners for energy and put power into the hands of a small elite. The other major reason is to provide plutonium for nuclear weapons.

Only recently a senior research scientist, Dr Ross Hesbeth, at the Central Electricity Generating Board's Berkely Laboratories in Gloucestershire, claims, that because he raised questions about the use of civil plutonium in nuclear weapons, he has been isolated, summarily dealt with by a "kangaroo court" and removed from his work.

All this complied with the increasing loss of personal freedom and privacy brought about by increasing sophistication of information retrieval, processing technology and techniques, ie, computers etc, makes George Orwell's predictions about 1984 very frightening.

Suiboku.

The paintings reproduced in this fanzine were done in imitation of the Chinese style of painting. Rather than oilpaints being used to paint landscapes (as in Western style painting), waterbased inks were used. This painting in ink (or Suiboku) was greatly influenced by the art of calligraphy (style of writing).

There are several major differances between Suiboku and western style painting. Many Chinese paintings were done using a limited amount of colour. This meant that more emphasis was placed on the brush strokes to depict the shape and form of an object rather than using colours to do this. In Western art, a landscape would be painted in a true perspective and have a fixed vanishing point. Chinese landscape has none of this. Instead each rock, hill, or tree would be drawn to show its most ideal aspect.

In Suiboku painting the materials that were used also affected the finished painting. There are four basic items of equipment used in Suiboku, and they are as follows :- the ink, (Sumi), the inkstone, (Suzuri), the brush, (Fude), and the paper, (Kami).

Sumi ink comes not in bottles, but in solid sticks. To enable Sumi ink to be used, it has first to be ground on the inkstone (which has been half-filled with water) until the correct consistency of ink is made.

When using Chinese brushes an arm action rather than a finger and wrist action is used. The brush is held in the middle of the stem, between the index finger and thumb. The middle finger is placed below the index finger which enables the brush to be twirled without losing control. Using this method of holding the brush it is possible to achieve a wide variety of tones and lines.

Writing was usually included somewhere in the corner of the picture. The inscriptions were not just the artists name, but they were also used to dedicate the painting to someone, or even to add a piece of poetry or description of the painting. This careful placing of the calligraphy and its relation to the painting enhances the appearance of the scroll. It was also common for the artists personal seal (in red) to be stamped on the painting. Because artists used differant names (literary and real names) the seal could bear a differant name from that which was signed on the painting.

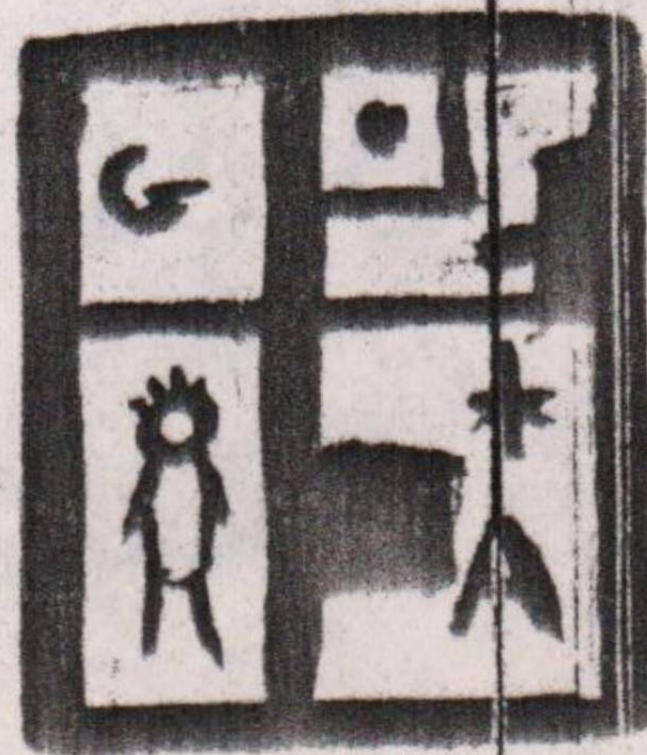

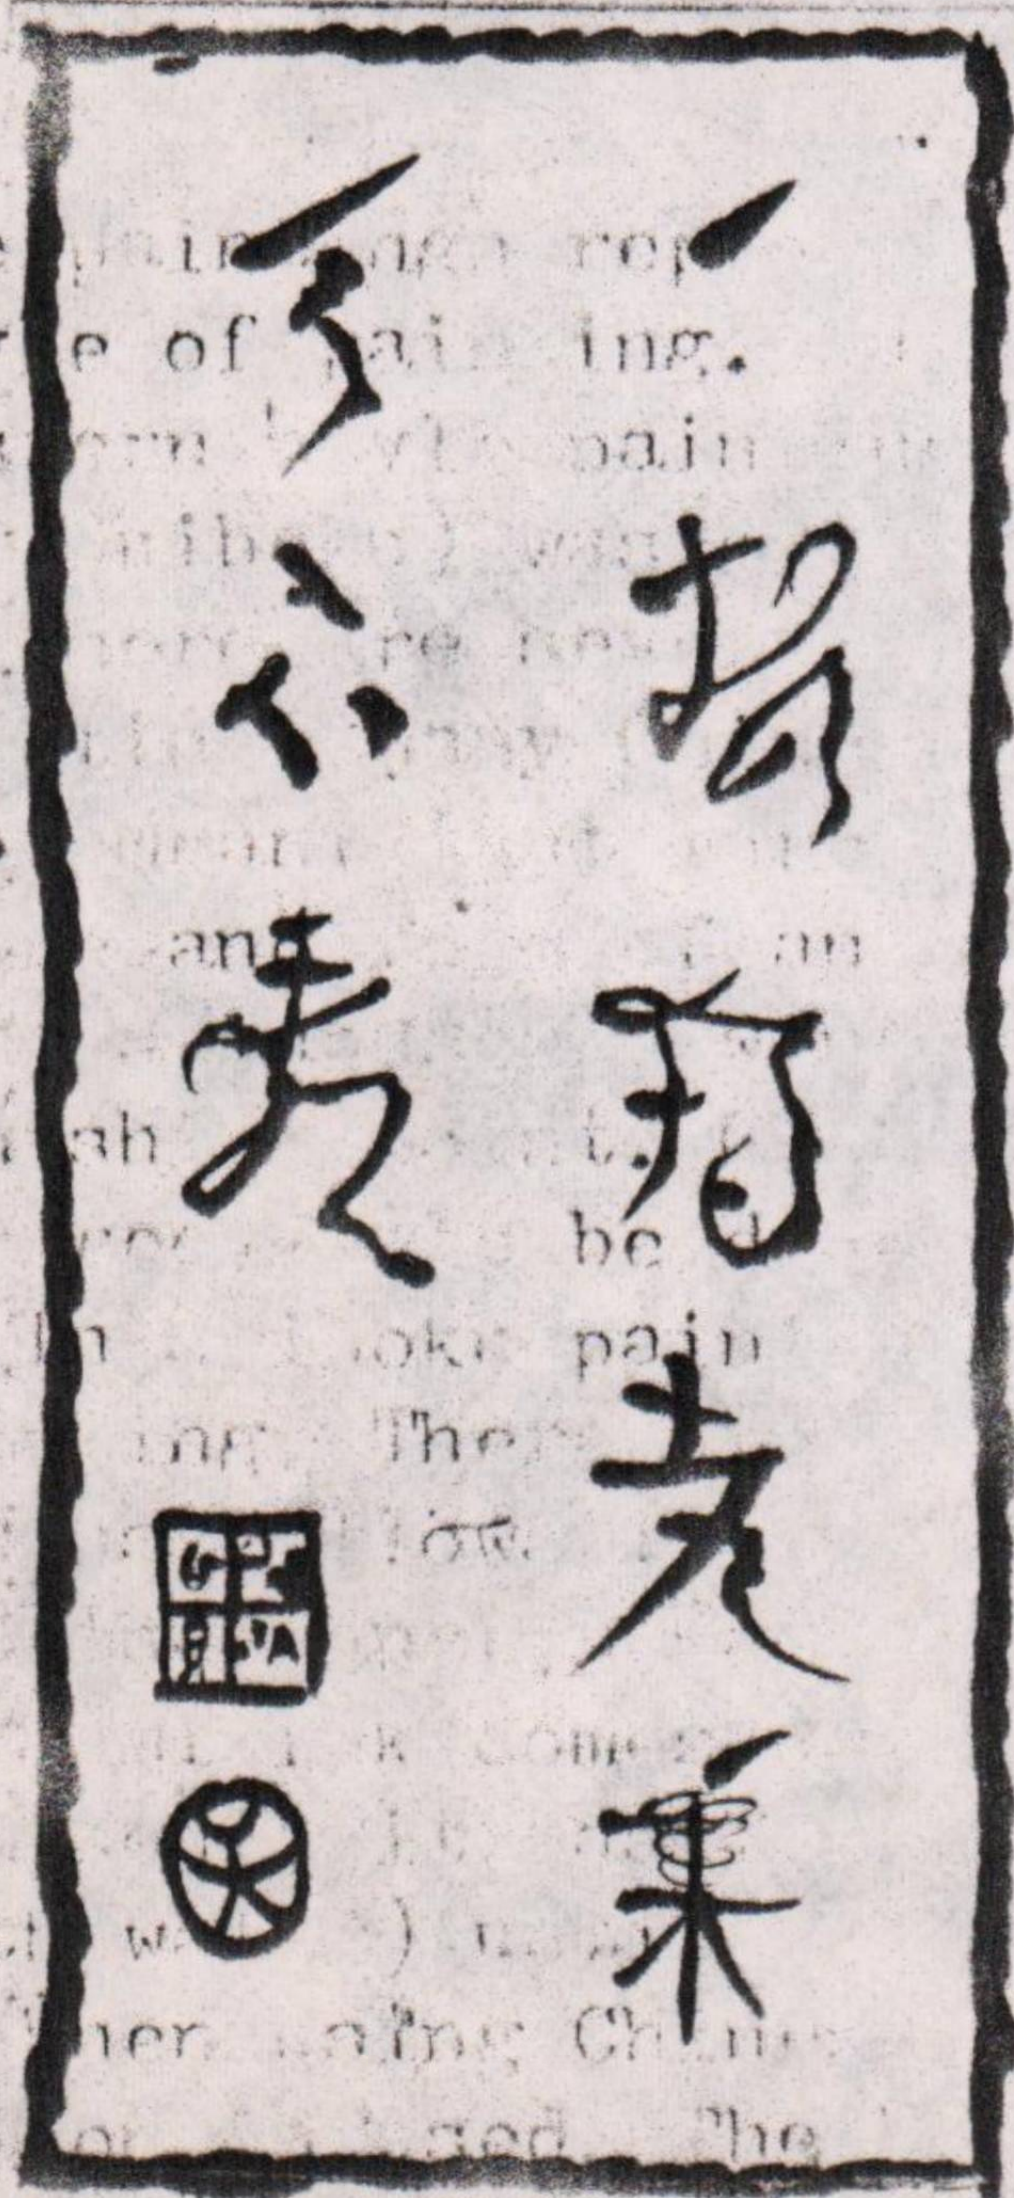

Hopefully these few short notes should give you an idea into Suiboku.

My personal ambition within Faction is to hopefully touch a few people with my lyrics and make them think a bit, and also entertain them with our music. We all write lyrics, but always separately as then the message receives no compromise as it would do if colaberation was our way. By writing this way, it allows us total freedom in our expression. The song printed on this page "No fun No truth", is based on the Northern Ireland situation, but at the same time by not mentioning Northern Ireland by name it leaves a song which can be related to other situations. It's basically about the way the press only ever seem to report the gore. "The blood has covered the sun" :- a double meaning here; the good news is constantly overshadowed by the bad; and the stories of pain make the news (the sun)..... The dead that pave the streets; a similé to gold paving the streets, the gold being 'money', the good times are just not shown to the people outside Northern Ireland..... The verse that mentions the hand being quicker than the eye, is just about the subconscious/conscious censoring by the press. The last verse just emphasises the fact that where there's blood there's MONEY.

Our Exploitation Of The Third World.

How do we exploit the third world? We must look first to the historical background to this problem.

Several hundred years ago, parts of Africa, Asia and South America boasted several highly developed countries and civilisations, which amazed and enchanted the first Europeans to visit these countries, from their own barbaric and despotic states.

Africa had several well ruled coastal trading cities and countries; one of which exchanged ambassadors with Portugal. South America had the Incas and Aztecs; though they had barbaric religions and customs. Asia had several civilisations and well established cultures, notably the Chinese who had an excellent, virtually corrupt free and fair civil service.

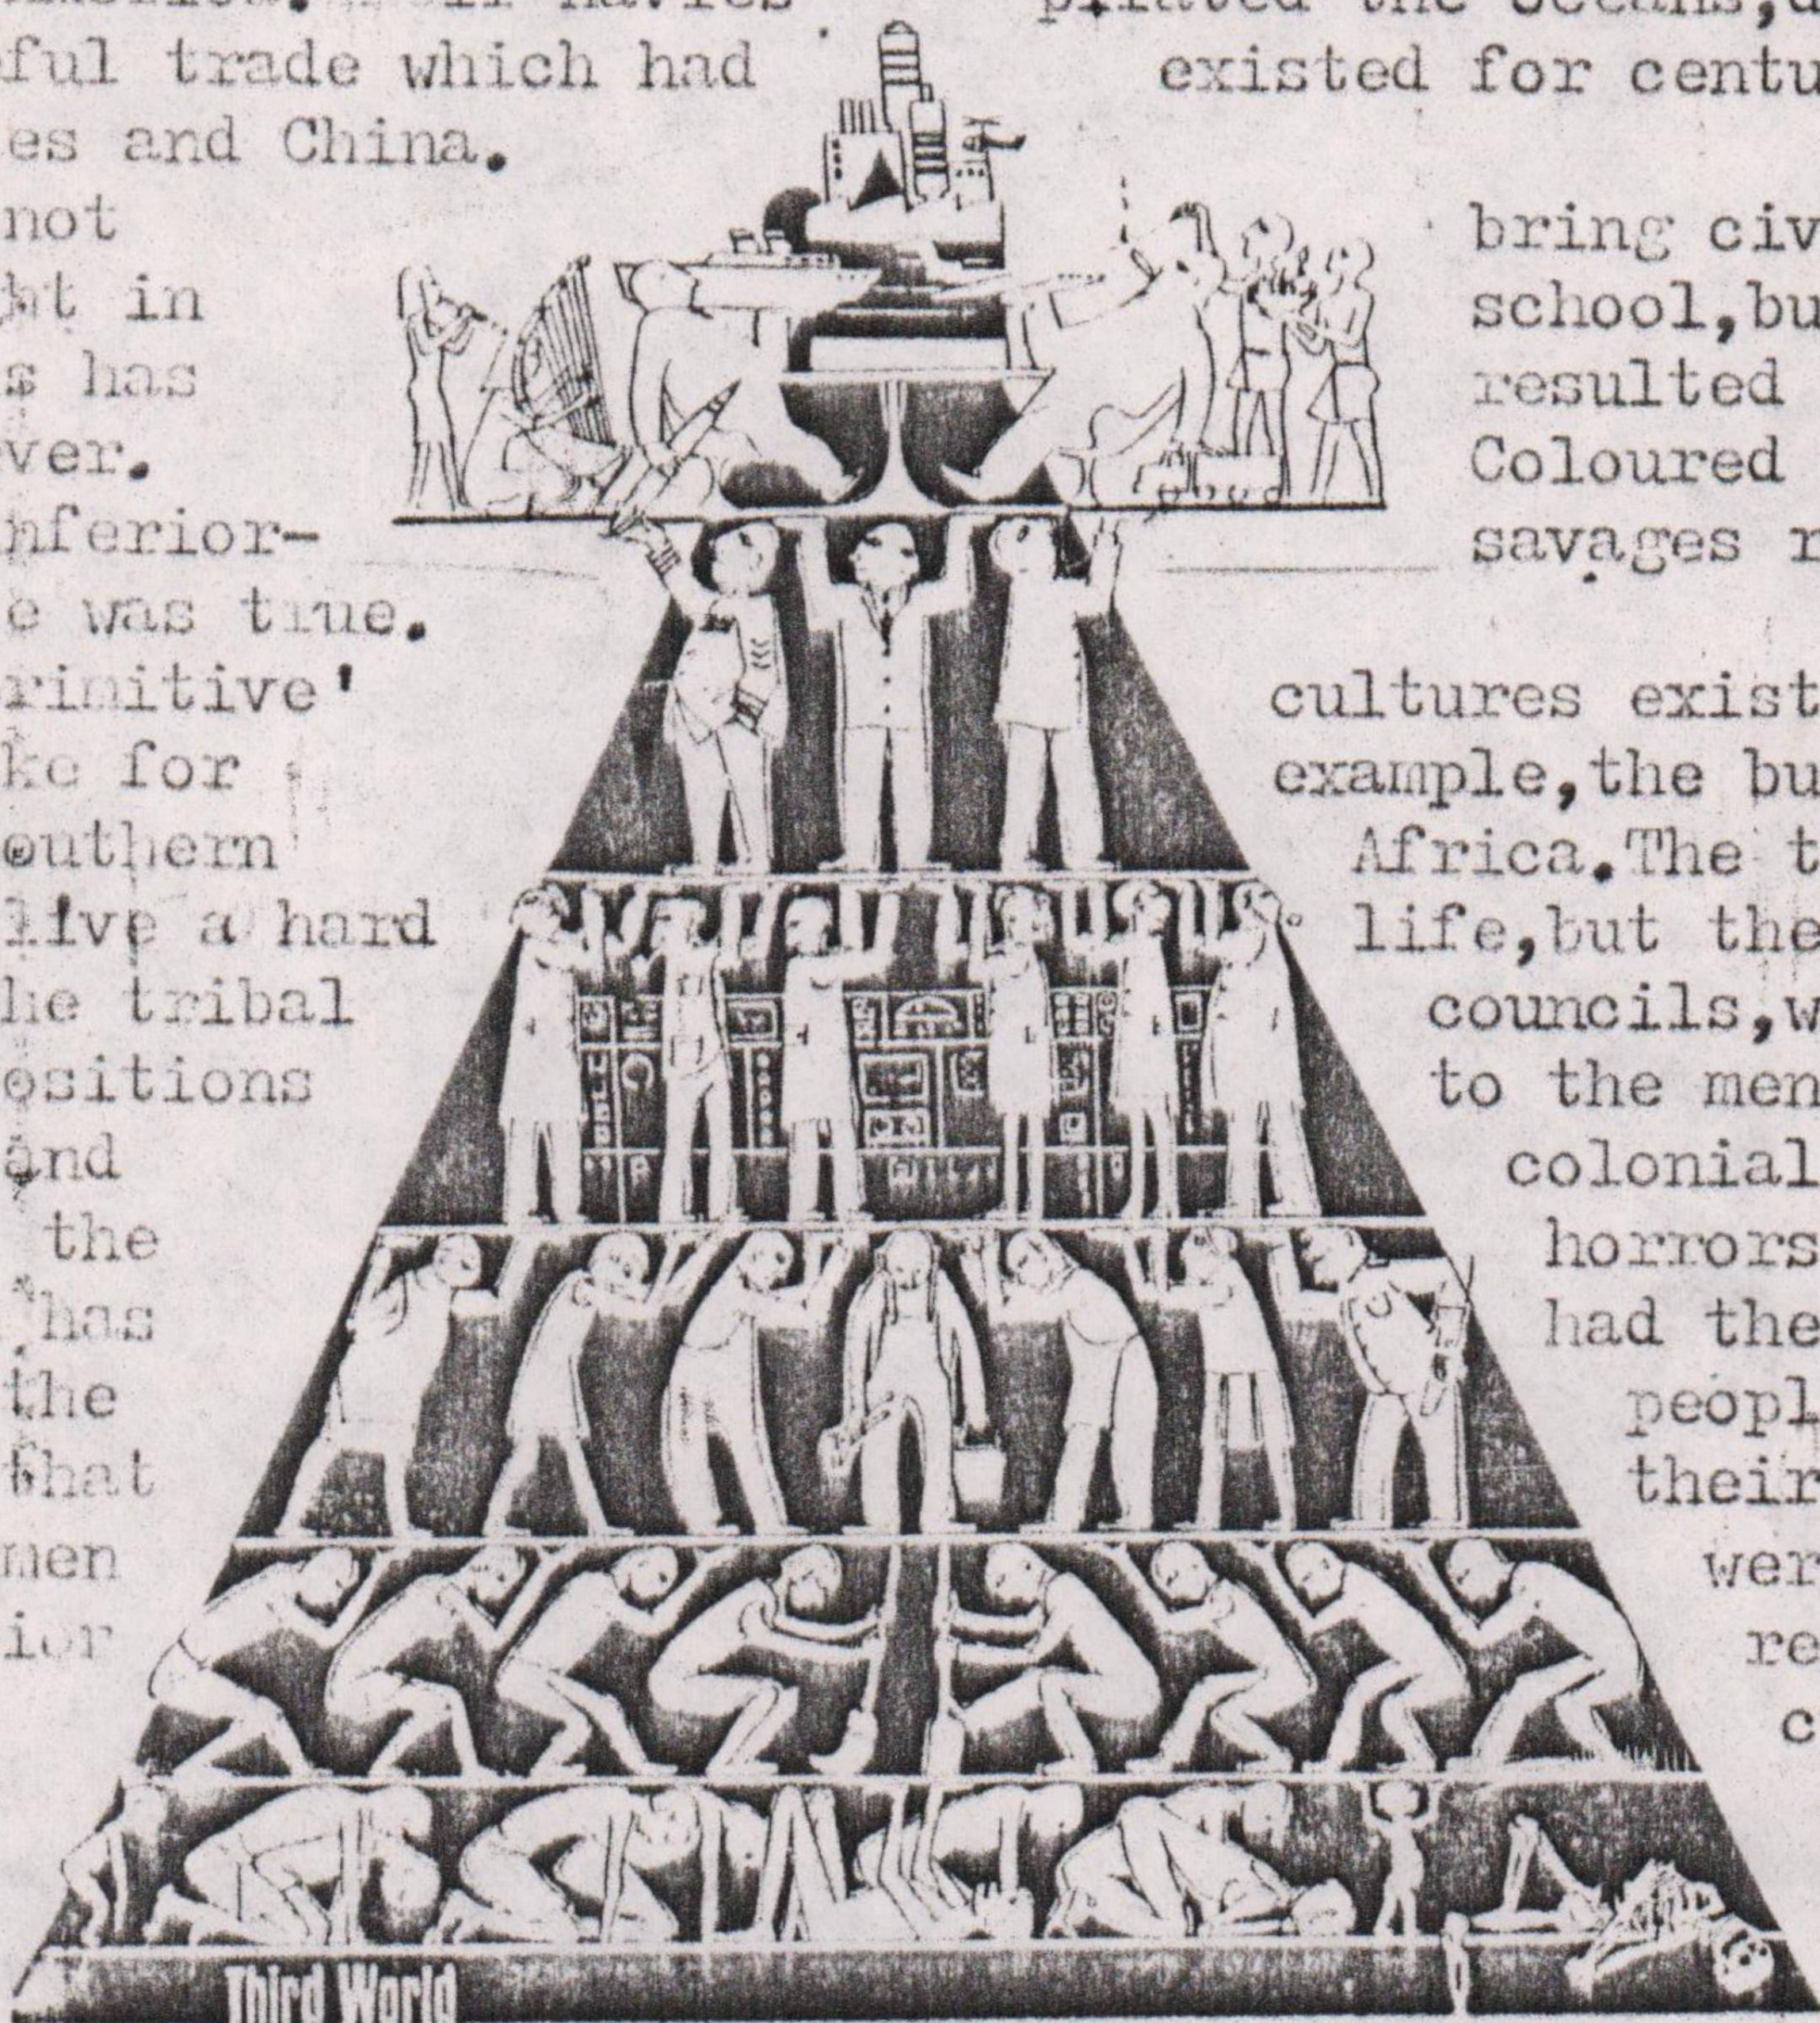

But soon, the greedy, barbaric and warlike Europeans had conquered and laid waste much of Africa, South America. Their navies pirated the oceans, destroying and taking over the peaceful trade which had existed for centuries between various African + Indian states and China.

The Europeans did not bring civilisation to these places, as we are taught in school, but destroyed where-ever it was found. This has resulted in the greatest historical cover-up ever. Coloured people and nations were looked upon as inferior-savages running around naked, when the reverse was true.

Admittedly, many 'primitive' cultures existed and still exist in the third world. Take for example, the bushmen of the Kalaharie Desert in Southern Africa. The tribes men have next to no possessions and live a hard life, but they have no war. Their government is the tribal councils, where women have equal influence and positions to the men.

Next came slavery and colonial exploitation. Though is known about the horrors of slavery (and had the effect, that in many parts of Africa, the people are genetically weak, due to the fact that their strongest and were taken as slaves. The althiest men and women resulted in the destruction of many cultures, and peoples. dignity, self reliance and confidence.

Colonial exploitation. The British Empires and other European nations wealth was built upon the plantations slaves, cheap labour, mining, and deforistisation of the third world.

cultures existed and still exist example, the bushmen of the Africa. The tribes men have next life, but they have no war. councils, where women have to the men.

colonial exploitation. horrors of slavery (and had the effect, that in people are genetically their strongest and were taken as slaves. resulted in the cultures, and peoples and confidence. and other wealth was built slaves, cheap deforistisation

Today, the economic and political exploitation continues, as our consumerist society needs to exploit and dominate the Third World to survive. Even after Third World countries became independant, European and American companies still exerted a stranglehold on their governments, economies and trade. The rich nations keep the price of Third World goods low, while their own are kept high.

Multinational companies set up factories or plantations in the Third World, and employ the local inhabitants, virtually as slaves, earning next to nothing.

Take for example, the international grain trade, of which 90% is controlled by 5 Multinationals: 2 American and 3 European. These companies set up flour mills in the Third World, and distributed free grain, persuading people to eat wheat instead of their more nutritious home produce, which was 100 times cheaper as well. Consequently grain corporations can exert great pressure on Third World countries.

Nobody made a greater mistake than he who did nothing because he could only do a little.
Edmund Burke

Various myths are used by people in the rich nations, to explain Third World poverty and starvation. One excuse that is used is - 'the problems are caused by overpopulation in the Third World, which consumes most of the world's food and resources.' This is rubbish, because the Third World eats next to nothing compared to the consumption of the rich countries.

There is enough grain produced today, to feed every man, woman, and child on this planet. This does not include all the fruit, vegetables and flesh of murdered animals that is produced.

The money required to provide food, water, health and housing for everyone has been estimated at 17 Billion dollars a year - about as much as the world spends on arms every 2 weeks.

International Aid is like a black joke. Money is given so that goods can only be bought from the donor countries, whether needed or not. Alternatively, it can be used to build luxury hotels or nuclear power stations. The west uses aid as a political and economical force to further its own aim and ends.

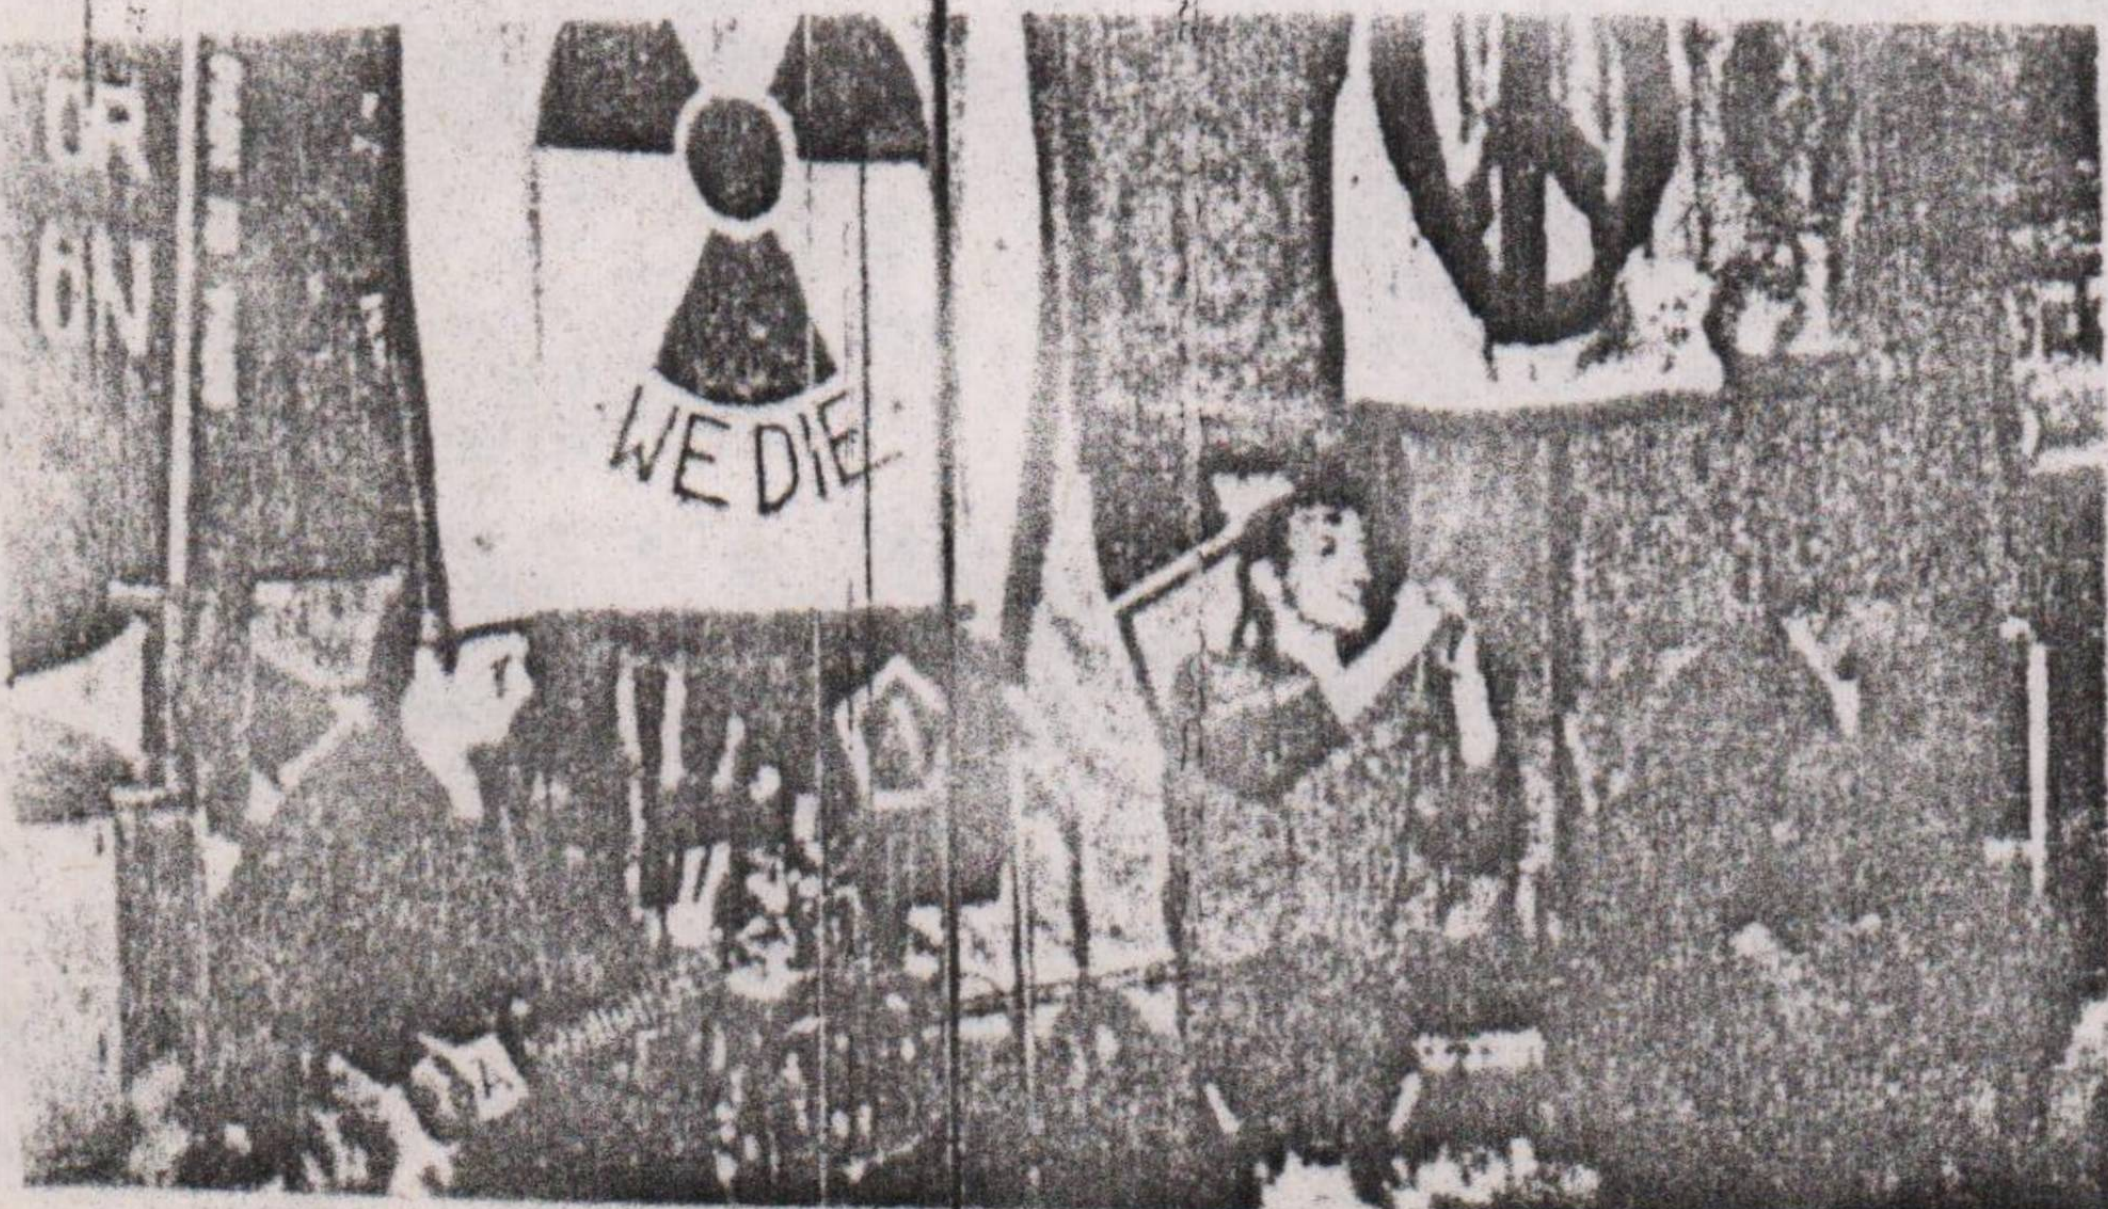

ABOUT 15 MILLION PEOPLE DIE OF STARVATION EVERY YEAR. 28 CHILDREN UNDER THE AGE OF 5 DIE EVERY MINUTE OF EVERY HOUR OF EVERY DAY FROM STARVATION.

On June 11th, about 80 hunt saboteurs from Scotland and England held a protest against a so called mink hunt (should be called 'otter hunt'), in the borders. Upon seeing us, they cancelled the hunt, and claimed that they don't hunt anymore. Weekends following, sabs have been going down, and contrary to their claims, they have been hunting, and also said that they have killed otters. Never trust these people.

ANARCHIST PROPAGANDA, ISSUE 3 SHOULD BE OUT SOON
- SKINZ, 5 KINKELL AVENUE, GLENROTHES, FIFE
KY7 4 QJ.

(I FIND IT VERY HARD TO COMMUNICATE MY THOUGHTS IN WRITING. HOPEFULLY THE GIST OF WHAT I'M HAVING ON ABOUT SHOULD BE MADE CLEAR. ANYWAY IT GOES SOMETHING LIKE THIS :

There are now, probably more than ever before, more punk bands today who would call themselves, or are classed as 'anarchist'. They all strive for, or pay lip service to, that elusive eutopia, now centuries old. Although most of these bands produce admirable lyrics they are practically, without exception, negative. I don't count vague rumours of: "yeah, @, @, and Freedom man, thats the way to be" constructive.

The latter type of comment, quickly quickly becomes bland cliches to be memorised..... then instantly forgotten. Surely, it would be much better, and constructive, for a band in one of the statements they so fondly deliver, instead of writing vague generalisations ("Until men cease to kill, there will be war" type of thing) They could concentrate on some topic, perhaps more specialised, which would contribute to the actual forwarding of a plausible future.

I feel (and as an 'anarchist' surely my view is as valid as anyone else's) that to say "Ah well, but @ stems from the individual and only he/she can decide" is a cop-out, a way of evading the issue. The 'anarchist movement' has been dogged, and shackled by a lack of concrete, plausible suggestions and ideas, which can be discussed, changed and then acted upon. With the exception of a few fanzines and periodicals (and books) and the occasional band, it seems taboo to actually discuss what a future, idealistic society would be like and actually FUNCTION. You know, hopefully we might be able, one day to act out our dreams, and if all these consist of simply, "like everyone living together in peace and harmony" then it really would be chaos. Let me ask you this, if you woke up tomorrow, and all institutions, authority and oppression was gone, would you still be able to function, live your life? What would you do? If you haven't got a clue, perhaps you should think about it; i mean, you never know, it worked once in Spain, where in some collectives, they even abolished money!

This is not a plea for an end to spontaneity, just for a little constructive thought, not just criticism, worthwhile though it is. (I do not claim to know any answers, or indeed even publicly indulge in constructive ideas. The band i am in, unfortunately have few such 'constructive' lyrics. For the most part being your average anti-war rehashes, cause thats all i can write. It is very difficult to be positive when writing lyrics. Personally, i have great difficulty in expressing myself in song form. But I do feel that a great many people have never even considered such things. What is needed, via bands, statements, fanzines etc, is a genuine debate on how we should organise our lives) Two books that consist of more than vague generalities, but are constructive ideas on how an @ society MIGHT work are : "Anarchy in action" by Colin Ward, and, "The floodgates of anarchy" by Albert Meltzer. (Available from alternative bookshops, or write to Housmans Bookshop, 5 Caledonian Road, Kings Cross, London N.1.)

'So you arrogant little turd', I hear you cry, 'What are your views on @' Well, if you've borne with me so far, perhaps i can rant and rave for a bit longer.

Firstly, @, will never, certainly not in the foreseeable future work on a large scale. Why? Walk down any street, look at the people. They must want @ if it is to happen nationally. Yet, on a small scale, @ can and is working for many people.

Personally, the nearest thing i can see to @ today is the squatters movements, especially on the continent. They are so large and well organised, that they can openly challenge and resist authority. (Who hasn't heard of the squatters riots in Berlin or Amsterdam). In Amsterdam, there are roughly 30,000 squatters, who by all accounts, have their own total way of life in the city. They have organised their own food co-op's, cafes, cinemas, schools, radio stations, and for a short time, their own T.V. station. Thats what i feel gives hope for the future. If other people have different ideas, which doesn't infringe on other people, then good luck to them, only, please make it CONSTRUCTIVE.

We first thought of Rosyth Naval Base a few months ago, when Greenham fever was at it's height, and a lot of women were bemoaning the fact that due to lack of money or other obligations, jobs and children, for instance, there was no way that they could travel the 400+ miles to get there. We suddenly realised "My God", what are we doing, we have a nuclear base just around the river, surely to carry out our commitment to the peace movement to the West, we should be concentrating on that and showing people that they cannot ignore the nuclear threat any longer, that it's not "way down south" we'll be all right, it's right on their doorstep.

The next two months were full of trepidation, feeling really confident one moment, and the next really unsure of whether we would get any support at all. We found a piece of land belonging to Fife Regional Council which is Labour run, and has declared Fife a Nuclear Free Zone, and on May 22nd 1983, we took one caravan and a hand full of tents and camped there. We had no idea what the reaction of the surrounding towns would be, but I think most people expected a lot of bad feelings towards us.

in one way or another. Rosyth Naval Dockyard employs over 7,000 civilian workers, and about 2,000 Naval personnel, apart from this, it also sub-contracts many small firms to work there. Apart from the base, there are also large firms like Ferranti, Marconi, Philips, Lucas, which all have a large workforce and all do a large amount of work for the Ministry of Defence, designing and building weapons. These factors do not make it easy going for anyone doing peace work in this area. We approach it from different angles, but one which seems to be very important to people working within these places is Alternative Defence Expenditure, trying to point out to people that the money spent on weapons, building and maintaining them (at cost's 96 million to refit one Polaris sub) could be spent on creating a better community for everyone. The problem of "I don't want to work there, but it's a job isn't it" seems to be very real to the majority of people here. It can get really depressing sometimes, but it also makes me even more determined to fight the system. The local reactions that we are getting are on the whole very good, and very supportive. Even a few people in the forces have said that they are supportive. Most people here seem to realise that it's not our aim in life to take their jobs away, but to create a world where instead of building weapons of destruction, you are building something creative and useful.

The area around the base is absolutely riddled with arms depots, fall out shelters and military bases.

WHY A WOMENS ONLY PEACE CAMP.

This question is asked so many times, by as many women as men. It is for many reasons, I can only give my own personal feelings and I do not speak for anyone but myself. I believe that the nuclear situation has arrived through the male values of domination and that to dominate, you must be stronger and bigger and more armed than anyone else. Women only events give women the assertiveness that is needed to stand up and say no, we as women are not going to stand for this any longer, while traditionally men have left home to go to war, women are now leaving their homes for peace, because they believe it's the only way the human race can survive. Women have been oppressed over many centuries, and I believe that Nuclear Warfare is the ultimate oppression. By standing up together women are not dividing but uniting the world, because we don't just want to get rid of nuclear weapons, we want to change the society that has created these self destructive weapons, and create a better world for everyone.

Down — and out

ONE woman was arrested, and 23 others forcibly removed by Police from Rosyth Naval Base, when they staged a "die-in" during Sunday's Navy Day.

About 40 women were involved in the protest, most of them from the Rosyth Peace Camp, and some from Glasgow, Edinburgh and Greenham Common.

Quietly singing, 23 of the women lay on the site of the Royal Marine Commandos display, while their fellow protesters formed a circle.

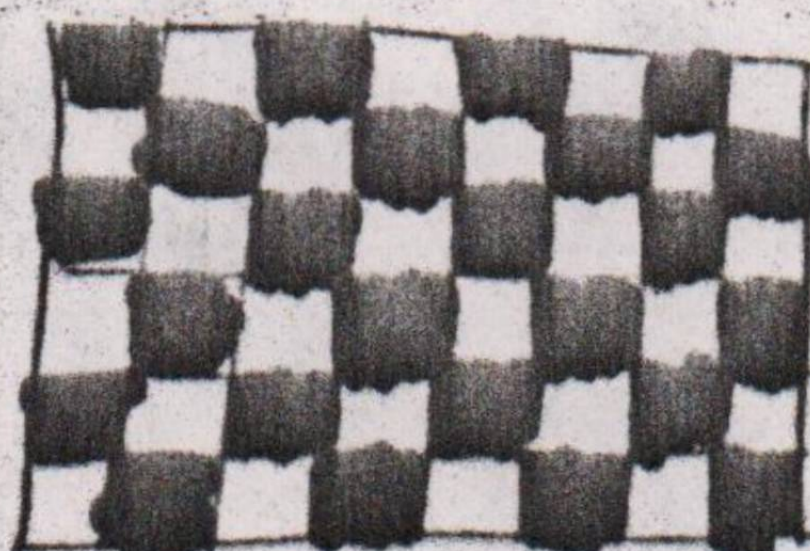

After refusing a request by Ministry of Defence Police that they leave the Naval Base, the "dead" women, still singing, were lifted into Police vans, taken outside the Base and released.

The women received little support from the crowds of onlookers, who shouted and jeered as they were driven away.

Once outside the Main Gates, the women began to block traffic going to and from the Base. They left, when asked to do so by Ministry of Defence Police.

One woman had been arrested within the Naval Base, and charged with committing a breach of the peace. She was later released, and the matter is now in the hands of the Procurator-Fiscal.

Performing Animals

Circuses have their origins in the past, and could be described as a valuable part of Britain's heritage and tradition, but this has clouded our judgement.

Just suppose circuses with performing animals had never been thought of. Then somebody came along with the idea of a circus with performing animals. Animals doing tricks, obeying commands, playing games and dancing. The reaction would probably be one of horror and disgust.

When you were a child, you were probably taken along to the circus. You probably marvelled at the courage of the 'lion tamers', the grace of the horses, and the size of the elephants. So, the child that circuses are normal, and an unalterable institution. But it isn't normal—the life of a circus animal is harsh and demanding. Hours, even days are spent travelling from site to site. Even if the travelling is well organised, the animals will still suffer through confinement and restriction of movement. Even at the actual circus, movement is restricted by chains.

But it is in the training, that the most cruelty takes place. Neither Council Officials, police, or R.S.P.C.A. inspectors are allowed to watch the training without prior notice. A common argument is that animals love doing tricks. Well, pets sometimes do tricks, but forced to do something unnatural and difficult, in front of an audience, twice nightly, and timed to the split second, it wouldn't. The pet would know that you wouldn't hurt it, and isn't afraid of you. An animal wouldn't stand on its head, dance, cycle, jump through a blazing hoop because of kindness and a lump of sugar. Reported cases of cruelty in training follow—

"The trainer was trying to teach a camel to rear up, by first burning the pads of its forefeet and then sticking pins lightly into the pads, so that they pressed deeply into the tender flesh each time it put its feet to the ground." (Former circus worker)

"I observed that in training, the elephant hooks are placed on the backs of the legs to force the front ones up in the air, or to force the back legs up behind, so that the full weight of the elephant is on its front feet.

There was also a man holding an elephant on the floor with a hook pulling at its ear. I have seen the aforesaid instrument draw blood from the elephants." (Ex circus elephant groom)

"The polar bears were in great distress and weaving furiously; the outside temperature was 85 F and these bears were cooped up in cages so small, that they had difficulty in turning around. Those trying to lie down had insufficient room to stretch out their legs except up the sides of the cages. There were no bowls of drinking water in their cages, let alone a pool of icy water in which to swim." (From a report by the deputy director of PADI following a visit to a circus training quarters)

"The lions were being cruelly treated. After the act, some of them would leave the cage with blood streaming from their noses where they had been cracked with the whip. I could not stand seeing animals treated like that." (Apprentice lion tamer)

The laws governing performing animals are ridiculous. The Performing Animals (Regulations) Act 1925 allows trainers to not have to specify how and what apparatuses they use for training, when applying for a licence. It also safeguards the circus from spot checks by local authorities and police. There is no law controlling the size of cages or conditions under which the animals are transported.

The animals are often captured and taken out of their natural habitat, and taken to an area of the world which often has a different climate to that which it is used to. The circus maintain that animal acts are part of the tradition of the circus, and cannot be omitted. They are in fact relics of a bygone age of cock-fighting, bear-baiting, child labour, which were once considered traditional, but were abandoned as people became more enlightened.

Circuses have no need for animal acts. Many circuses have no animal acts, and do just as well as ones that do.

The activities of circus animals can never achieve any worthwhile goals in either education, research or conservation.

Not only do circuses inflict an unnatural way of life on animals, they degrade and humiliate them. There has never been a greater need to protect the world's wild creatures. Now can we possibly recognise this, and still allow animals to be exploited by circuses.

20. MEAT DOESN'T MEAN A FULL STOMACH - MEAT MEANS MURDER!

ARE YOU A HYPOCRITE?

How can somebody talk of peace in the same breath as eating a dead piece of flesh. Are the majority of c.n.d. campaigners selfish in that they call for peace in the world, but never talk of the mass destruction that goes on behind the walls of slaughter houses.

Is this not a war of worse atrocities than a nuclear holocaust, where the victims are slaughtered behind closed doors, like that in Auschwitz, and that it is done by a select few for the many. Is the slaughterer not your hired hit man, dealing in the blood and gore so you can keep your hands clean.

Are you not acting in the same league as the politicians you elect. They send of our "country men" to Argentina. At least the soldiers had a say in the matter!

The poor animal lives out it's short life, then goes to fuel your campaign drive.

"Give peace a chance and pass the beefburger maaaaan, i'm hungry, and i have no respect whatsoever for the life of anything unless it talks and walks around, abusing everything in sight."

Animals bleed the same as us, and they feel a tremendous amount of pain in death; as we do. So shouldn't we treat them as equals on this beloved earth of ours, or don't you care as long as it's not your flesh being consumed.

The Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament is hotting up, and is starting to take effect.

Ordinary people are starting to take note. Ordinary animal-eating people are getting concerned for their safety, as all predators do when they are under attack from a superior force and strength. People are becoming concerned for the safety of their pack, and their ultimate self. You are starting to feel like the animals you consume from your plate every night.

Shouldn't your compassion also extend to the creatures you commit war upon every time you sit at the table, the dead corpse you pacifists would lay to the ground if it was of human form.

I ask the question, are you not losing your morals?

Are you not a hypocrite?

Are you not against everything you are fighting for?

Why war?

Veganism is morality, and war upon want.

Freedom and Peace for all, not a select bigoted few.
