Northampton moves closer to Centre

Northampton Lesbian & Gay Alliance moved a step closer to having its own premises and workers for a lesbian and gay resource centre, following confirmation from the town council of a three-year £36,500 grant. The centre is to be rented from a private landlord and planning permission has already been approved. "The money is to fund three workers to help prepare the way for the centre and we have already appointed a centre co-ordinator and an advocacy worker", said Steve Young, spokesperson for the Alliance. The third appointment will be made shortly.

The centre is expected to open in late September. Meanwhile the Alliance have been getting in some practice at running their own drop in facility which has been operating as Orton's at the Roadmender Arts Centre since December, 1994. (Pictured are a group of users of Orton's who were around when we dropped in). With an outdoor terrace to promenade on when it's fine, and a smoking and non-smoking room its popularity is well established in the town. So if you are in the area why not pop in. The Roadmender is at 1 Lady's Lane, in the town centre and it opens from 12 midday to 4pm, (Saturdays only).

WIND OF CHANGE

Nottinghamshire councillors debated lesbian and gay rights for nearly three hours at their July meeting. Eighteen councillors contributed to the discussions, which ranged from inequalities in pension rights and life insurance through the ban on gays and lesbians serving in the armed forces to the personal and social consequences of discrimination.

Moving a resolution calling on the Government to implement equal rights legislation for lesbians and gay men, Cllr Leon Unczur (Lab) said he was 'not asking for the earth, merely the right to be treated fairly' on the age of consent, employment, pensions and taxation. His wish that the debate should be conducted without homophobia was greeted with laughter from the Conservative opposition, but his well delivered speech ended with a round of applause from Labour Councillors.

Cllr Joyce Bosnjak (Lab) seconded what she called 'this long overdue motion' with examples of the personal effects of homophobia, and asked all Councillors to be willing to examine their consciences and admit their own prejudices.

On behalf of the Liberal Democrats, Cllr Ray Poynter welcomed the resolution, in particular 'because it treats lesbian and gay rights in their own right and is not tacked on to other rights'.

Opposition came from Cllr Stuart (Con) who declared that lesbians and gays were 'capable, fit and healthy and able to look after themselves without the need for legislation'. He proposed an amendment to remove all mention of discrimination against lesbians and gays and called on the Government to carry on with its good work in promoting a classless society. But Cllr Martin Gawith (Lab) responded that 'for a classless society it is necessary to recognise what divides society and discrimination against lesbians and gays does'. The amendment was defeated. Only the Tory group supported it.

PARENTS' PRIDE 1995

By Betty from the Leicester Parents Support Group - a support group for parents and friends of lesbians and gay men.

This is the second year that the Leicester Parents Support Group have joined Pride and we again experienced overwhelming feelings of love and pride.

It was both a pleasure and a privilege to join families and friends on this very special day.

The atmosphere, the pride of the bearers of banners displaying their groups, the pride of mums and dads wearing T-shirts with 'I love my gay son/daughter' boldly printed, made this a day to remember.

We know that some parents are alarmed at the sight of our 'outness' with our T-shirts. What alarms us 'out' parents is the way our young people have had to face and fight prejudice and homophobia from a very early age and continue to do so. What astounds us is how they become caring and law abiding adults as often as every-one else.

We were interviewed by South East TV, Radio 5, photographed many times, hugged by strangers, and clapped by people as we passed by holding our banners high. Yes, we are proud of our lesbian daughters and gay sons.

As we made our way home our legs ached and our feet were sore, but our spirits were very high. It was worth every step, and our T-shirts have been put away for next year.

Betty and the Leicester Parents Support Group can be contacted on 0116-235 9774.

Coming Out in Leicester

Taking the first wary step into the gay scene in Leicester? Not sure how to go about it? It can still be a difficult move for gay guys of all ages. With this in mind, Leicester Gay Group now invites newcomers to fortnightly social evenings, every other Tuesday at 45 King Street. It's about as easy and as discreet as you could wish for, and the number of newcomers pressing that front door bell suggests a real need in Leicester for a welcoming introduction to the company of gay men.

Leicester Gay Group has been about for a number of years, with more than 40 members currently, ranging in age from mature distinction to youthful high spirits. Apart from the newcomers' evenings, the Group offers a regular programme of outings, theatre visits, meals, walks, evenings at members' houses and weekends away. Members come mostly from Leicestershire, Nottingham and Derby, but all are welcome. The Group also provides a confidential helpline. Details of any or all of this from Chris (01509) 415272 or Neil (0116) 251-5810.

BOOK REVIEW - BREAKING THE BARRIERS TO DESIRE

Polyamory, Polyfidelity and Non-monogamy - new approaches to multiple relationships. Edited by Kevin Lano and Claire Parry. Five Leaves Publications, £5.99. Reviewed by Andy Nash and Ange Taggart (partners in crime).

Not many pictures, no diagrams in the group sex section. A bad start when you are flicking through the bookshelves looking for a D.I.Y guide to running successful multiple relationships. Trouble is, finding the non-monogamy section in W.H. Smiths is harder than getting Mattel to admit that Barbie, Ken and Cindy have been at it for years.

So, ten out of ten to Nottingham's Five Leaves Publications for finally offering a serious alternative to all those yukky 'How to Improve Your Relationship' guides. You know the ones: those that assume you will only want one at a time. So, if you're the sort of person who ends up eating a whole packet of biscuits when you are only supposed to have a 'couple' then this could be the book you've been waiting for.

In fact, 'couple' is a dirty word in this book. And just when you thought it was safe to come out of the politically correct language closet this will bombard you with a whole load of new terms. Worry not, your credibility will be saved by the glossary at the back. If you thought polyamory was just a name for an affectionate parrot then not only will this book broaden your vocabulary but it may well open up a whole new range of loving possibilities.

There are chapters which draw upon personal experiences, together with articles presenting a more theoretical approach. All in all it's an honest and pioneering book that gives attention to a much neglected area of sexuality. It needed to be written. For copies of the book, send a cheque for £5.99 made out to 'Five Leaves Publications', Outright, PO Box 4, West PDO, Nottingham, NG7 2DJ.

TRENT CAVES IN

Nottingham Trent University seems set to cave in, this time in response to protests from the public, sponsors and academic staff from the Trent University and around the country, following their 11th-hour banning of Robert Pacitti's performance of 'Geek' at the Powerhouse, Nottingham last month.

In a reply to Mick Wallis, Lecturer in Drama at Loughborough University, the University Vice Chancellor, Professor Ray Cowell denied that the performance had been pulled because 80% of a Nottingham Evening Post readers' poll wanted the show banned. He admitted the reason behind the ban was because the printed programme for the event carried the warning that aspects of the performance might cause offence, and in the circumstances there was no option but to cancel it!

Mick Wallis said that he found these latest excuses both 'hilarious and alarming'. Many performances carry disclaimers and there was absolutely no valid reason for cancelling this show. Professor Cowell must be living on another planet", he said.

Sources within the Trent University admitted to OUTRIGHT that they made "a terrible error of judgement" in banning the play and are planning to invite Robert Pacitti to make a return visit. As we went to press Trent University were also planning a conference on 'academic freedom and censorship'. It is not known whether Pacitti will be invited to perform 'Geek' or whether the conference is likely to be open to the public or closed.

Outburst!

I am writing to thank the OutHouse Project's excellent organisation of the coaches to Pride. I had a great journey and everybody was helpful. I am disabled and when I needed the occasional helping hand, most of the other passengers were only too pleased to assist me. (I find it very difficult to travel on long journeys because of my condition.) However, there was one thing that did spoil my day and that came in the form of two men who constantly complained and moaned about everything they could think of. My movement is severely restricted by chronic arthritis and I have great difficulty in moving and sitting but I got on with enjoying my day instead of whittling on like a pair of old biddies.

Outburst!

My partner and I purchased advance tickets for Pride 1995. On the day we were both treated unethically, despite the fact that we were both wearing leather jackets with identical Leather Club badges. Passengers barged in front of us, leaving only one seat at the back and I resented the fact that I had to sit separately from my boyfriend for the first 89 miles as far as Toddington Services. We begged stewards to find us a double seat, so that we could be together for the rest of the journey. But when they did find us a seat, the only available seating was in the double decker's smoking area. Again, people on the lower deck would not move for us. Things turned sour again for the journey home. After boarding the single deck coach ahead of everyone else to get a double seat, a group of lesbians including two men, and the steward, adopted an unethical attitude by trying to force us, and an asthmatic upstairs to allow two lesbians, who demanded their seats back, and seemingly questioned our right to be on the march, and said we had interfered with their lives. Their social needs are far less important than physical and health needs of the disabled.

Under protest, we will not be travelling with Outhouse again. Additionally, we shall not be using the Gay & Lesbian Community Centre whilst there is a presence of unethical attitudes toward fellow gay men, especially the disabled.

Samples by Simon Smalley

It seems that it's not exclusively mad dogs & Englishmen that go out in the midday sun...record company marketing men appear to have been subjected to massive overdoses of ultraviolet recently. The first waves of hot weather hit Blighty & it's time for those 'summer' albums to hit the shops. Out of the destined-for-the-sales-bin rehashes is a collection with the admittedly obvious title 'Sunny Afternoons', which crams some of pop's summer specials into a veritable picnic basket of tan-tastic treats. The sizzlin' sixties are well represented with a bronzed adonis soundtrack for those lazy hazy crazy daze of summer. Sparkling amongst the obvious hits you do get some classics not usually included on these compilations like 'Paper Sun' & the triplicious 'Hole In My Shoe' by Traffic, the finger cymbal fantastica of Scott Walker's 'San Francisco', a couple of poignant cuts from the incredibly English Kinks and the mellow man himself, Donovan, plus the long-forgotten 'Jessamine' by the Casuals.

Probably by the time you read this we'll have been plunged once more into a summer of rain and gloom but, screwing your earphones into your tabs and cranking this up will momentarily release you into a blistering world. Summer's here and the time is right for dancing in the streets!

Tony De Vit's second single release hits the streets on August 14th and is even more frantically pounding than its predecessor. 'Starlight' careers along at such a pace that you'd need a 2lb bag of speed to dance to it, adopting almost Soft Cell "Tainted Love" bass synth drops amidst squiddly synth FX. Trying to calm down and flipping the 12" over, the B side 'To The Limit' goes past the limit of dancing feasibility - an old school Hi NRG thumper with a resounding beat that sounds like someone's belting on the side of a large cardboard box with a hob-nailed slingback, and on each side you keep waiting for a Man 2 Man "Tips in my G-string made my living" sample to be thrown in. Both tracks are a tad overlong but no doubt the Tradeheads will whoop it up once more to this revved up release.

The HEALTH Column

As gay men, just exactly what do we get in return for all the taxes that we pay out? I am referring to the article of Saturday 15th July in the Daily Star. The headline 'Scandal of the Gay Sex Officer' is followed by a flimsy attack on 'barmy Health Chiefs' paying for a health worker to give advice and condoms to men using public toilets for cottaging. The sum involved is £28,000, fortunately I am not so naive as to believe all that is written in the papers. I am more interested in what was missed out. Tory Councillor Neville Saunders states 'This is a complete waste taxpayers money. It distresses me to see cash squandered like this when it could be spent more usefully elsewhere.'

I would like to point out to Mr Saunders that gay men are also tax payers and unlike our heterosexual counterparts will not get a nice juicy married mans tax allowance. We are also paying for services we will never use and indirectly paying to support those who do use them. Seldom will you hear a gay man complain that the government is wasting taxpayers' money on maternity units, paediatric wards, creche facilities, child benefit, education or supporting single mothers on state benefits. Most gay men will not become fathers and so will have limited need, if any, for these services, but we are not so small minded as to believe that just because we don't need the services and support that they should be deemed a waste of taxpayers' money.

This article may offend some people, I hope it does, I find nothing more offensive than the trite, unbalanced rubbish printed in the Daily Star. On the whole, we do not get a choice on what our money is spent on and personally I am disgusted at the paltry amount spent on gay men's health at a time when the government have re-targeted gay men's health as a priority and at a time when the number of HIV infections among gay men is on the increase, is seen as money that could have been 'better spent'.

Finally, lesbian health issues are slowly beginning to appear on the agenda, let us hope that we do not get a repetition of this homophobic and journalistic crap and that lesbian health will finally get the proper consideration it deserves.

The debate was remarkable for the number of Councillors who spoke knowledgeably and constructively on a wide range of issues, taking to heart the seconder's call to bring out their own fears and prejudices, citing examples of homophobia that they were personally aware of, and practical measures that could be taken by local and national government.

The only opposition from the Labour side came from Cllr Brian Smith from Warsop who, describing himself as 'old fashioned' declared that gay men suffered from 'an excess of sexuality'. He was clapped by the Tories and loudly heckled by several Labour councillors.

Some Councillors had followed Cllr Stanley (Con) to the bar when the debate began and weren't seen again until they stumbled back in again for the votes. Perhaps the most lucid, though hypocritical, opposition came from Cllr Hayes (Con) who, declaring himself 'a red-blooded heterosexual' said that 'the problem' had arisen 'because there is a minority who want to flaunt their sexuality'. After three decades of hedonism he wanted less talk about 'rights' and more about 'responsibilities'.

In the final recorded vote all Labour and Lib Dem councillors supported the motion, with the exception of Cllr Smith who abstained. All Tory councillors voted against.
