LAWRENCE OF ARABIA (PG)

G.B. 1962 Director David Lean (222 mins)
With Peter O'Toole, Omar Sharif, Alec Guinness,
Jack Hawkins, Anthony Quinn

Broadway's tribute to David Lean, one of the finest filmmakers Britain ever produced who died in April this year, here showing in Lean's own restored full-length version. Not a second of screen time is wasted in this glorious cinematic biography of T.E. Lawrence. Never has the desert been filmed with such splendour and beauty and Lean uses its vastness as a perfect backdrop to the magnificent, tragic drama of Lawrence's life, embellished by Maurice Jarre's appropriately grand, memorable music.

HAIRDRESSER'S HUSBAND (15)
subtitled
France 1990 Writer/ Director Patrice Leconte (85 mins)

With Jean Rochefort, Anna Galiena

Following his remarkable thriller Monsieur Hire Leconte serves up a warm, stylish and sexy romance. Anthony (Rochefort) is a man obsessed by lady hairdressers who meets Matilda (Galiena) the owner of a local barber shop, and fulfils his childhood dream by marrying her. A delightful, bittersweet exploration of passion and romantic commitment set in the fascinating confines of Matilda's cosmopolitan salon.

Produced by the Merchant/Ivory team this is actor Simon Callow's confident, intriguing debut as a director. Based on Carson McCuller's offbeat novel, The Ballad of the Sad Cafe is about a tempestuous love triangle set in the 1930's Deep South of America. Miss Amelia (Redgrave) is the ruling Southern Belle of a small town whose life becomes tremendously complicated by the amorous attentions of both her cousin Lymon (Hubbert) and her estranged husband Marvin (Carradine), out of jail and looking for love. With whiffs of Tennessee Williams, Callow's film is an unusual, intense tale, given real depth by the exceptional acting of Vanessa Redgrave.

HEALTH AUTHORITY BACK YOUTH GROUP

Nottingham Lesbian and Gay Young People's Group have received a one-off grant of nearly 2,000 from Nottingham Health Authority, plus a start-up grant of 250 from Nottingham CVS. The idea is to set up a phone line especially for land staffed by young lesbians and gay men. Geoff Whitaker of the youth group said: 'The Authority realised that there were no outreach projects promoting womens issues around safe sex and so this will help towards putting on a workshop day for lesbians and safe sex. All our referrals come via Nottingham Gay Switchboard at present and we hope this will continue but we also want to ensure that young people contacting us can speak to other young people.'

A VIEW FROM THE TOWPATH

GONE SHOPPING

Now that Shopping Centres seem to be sprouting in Leicester like Potemkin villages it is probably too late to speculate on their effect. However that is the fate of all critics. This does not seem to be a deterrent to the art so let us plunge on. Perhaps we should anyway because it has been observed that in the 80's there was nowhere to go except the shops, which still leaves the 90's up for grabs.

Wandering round Debenhams new store in Leicester can be a very confusing experience. The Men's clothing alone produces such an effect because of the sheer variety. The Women's section I leave to those better qualified than myself. You can be sporty, ruffian, gentleman, preppy or whatever. I suspect the problem for many of us will be deciding which to be and that, no doubt, will be different to last week anyway. In addition there are signs everywhere inviting us to handle the goods. In this respect, at least, shopping is an advance on the situation in many Gay venues.

There is something both satisfying and frustrating about shopping. We are offered all manner of attractive images which we can adopt, although those of us who have seen the latest offerings in Next may disagree with this. At the same time the state of one's bank balance usually ensures that we are limited to indulging in wishful thinking. In addition these emporia are usually decorated by a few attractive assistants, which presumably is their function in life when not studying for their GCSE's. For some of us there may be the hope of an encounter with one in the local Club, where many of them seem to find their way.

Not that the two places are very different. Being a shop assistant is actually very difficult. It is not merely the serious risk of flat feet as a result of spending long hours upright. Nor is it the problem of keeping a sense of humour while dealing with a collection of humanity consisting principally of indecisive, persistent, deceitful or just downright bloody-minded. It is doing all this while remaining fresh and on display. The only factor in your favour is that customers are not allowed to touch the goods. Even that cannot be guaranteed, as can be discovered if you stand in front of one of those customers who have claws instead of fingers.

You see, despite spending many hours in Athena, my sneaking suspicion is that very few of us like being on display. As the Women's Movement have been telling us for a long time, being stared at all the time is not very pleasant. Instead of being human with all that implies, we are turned into a one-dimensional object. As eyes roam over us we are fixed then manipulated into whatever the observer desires. Now some may relish this because it gives them the opportunity to turn the tables and manipulate others through their appearance. But I doubt if many of us find satisfaction in a life where we relate to others purely by manipulation.

Sticking to shopping is a lot simpler. At the same time it deprives us of the satisfactions as well as the pain of a fuller relationship. The challenge is to break out of the clothes that bind us and develop what lies beyond. To do this requires more than just a Shopping Centre.

FEAR!

Fire on fire. White hot intense flames. Satan itself. "Hi, my name is Fear. I exist to the degree that you human beings believe in me. But see, I've been a bit overworked lately." Five times greater and hotter than the sun. Fear was born from the loins of Ignorance. "I mean, I love to scare the Hell out of you lot, but things have been getting out of hand!" Heat Ray eyes project dark light suddenly into a sleeping man. Asleep in more ways than one. "And it could get worse before long," rumbled Fear, "Look..." The sleeping man got out of his bed, dressed himself, and wandered unconcerned down a stair case. He approached presumably his front door, picked up a wad of letters that were scattered on the floor, and went through another door that turned out to lead to a kitchen. He sat at a kitchen table and picked up a post card that stood out amongst the usual bills and junk mail. It was short and concise and it read like this:- "Dear sir, You have just tested HIV Positive. Please report to your local quarantine camp within twenty-four hours. Yours, Ministry of Health." Then the man awoke but not completely. "Get the picture?" Fear sighed. "I'm not prepared to go on doing this. My job is to manifest fears that your media, your governments, and ultimately yourselves have. But as I have said I'm overworked, Now," Fear paused to inhale as if he was working toward a climax, "I'm not saying you should be irresponsibly nice or, Heaven forbid, actually caring, but," he gasped for air again, "how about a little Compassion for the sick?" "You see Compassion is a personal friend of mine. Now here is someone who isn't over worked at all!" KYE ROBERT.

BEING GAY & ASIAN

Everytime you look at yourself in the mirror all you see are two things: an Asian and a gay man.

You cant do anything to change your colour or sexuality but there are times when you want to change one of them. Why is it, oh, why is it Asians cant accept me as a gay man?

Does it bring shame on them! Hey, what a joke they mostly all do it behind closed doors but they cant do it openly because it is a sin.

It is a religious sin. Every religion ignores issues around sexuality between two men or women but it still goes on, why is it so?

A relationship between a man and a women produces a child but a relationship between two men or two women produces nothing tangible.

They say I am abnormal or sick in the mind. But it is the other way round - they are abnormal and sick in the mind because they cant accept me for what I am and for what I stand for.

Many Gay Asians dont tell anybody that they are gay because of the fear of being discriminated against or rejected by their family and society generally, because once you have been rejected you are never allowed back in the closely knit society again.

I havent exactly come out but I am fighting for my rights and the rights of others as well for the right to be gay.

You can try to be accepted by another gay Asian but they themselves hold a barrier up to stop you coming any closer because if anyone sees you both together each will be humiliated.

You think only Asians are prejudiced against you but you get prejudice from other nationalities (White British) gay and lesbians and all you want is someone to talk to or love.

At first I thought I was the only gay Asian in Derby suffering in silence but then you see there are loads who are too afraid to step out and fight the oppressors through education in a non-violent way.

I know this fight will take a long time to win but I will carry on until it does.
