Reports have been coming in over the last few weeks of large numbers of arrests in lavatories around the city with the main focus of activity in Theatre Square cottage Nottingham, with up to 40 gay men arrested in a week, as well as a number of arrests in Trinity Square cottage. Witnesses confirm men being seen frogmarched away by police.

OUTRIGHT has obtained information from a number of independent witnesses and sources within the Police itself which confirms that a crackdown has been mounted. Council employees were told of a three month 'clean up' operation which began in September.

Recently, the glass-walled attendant's cubicle in Theatre Royal Cottage has been covered with brown paper, leaving only a black peephole visible from the inside.

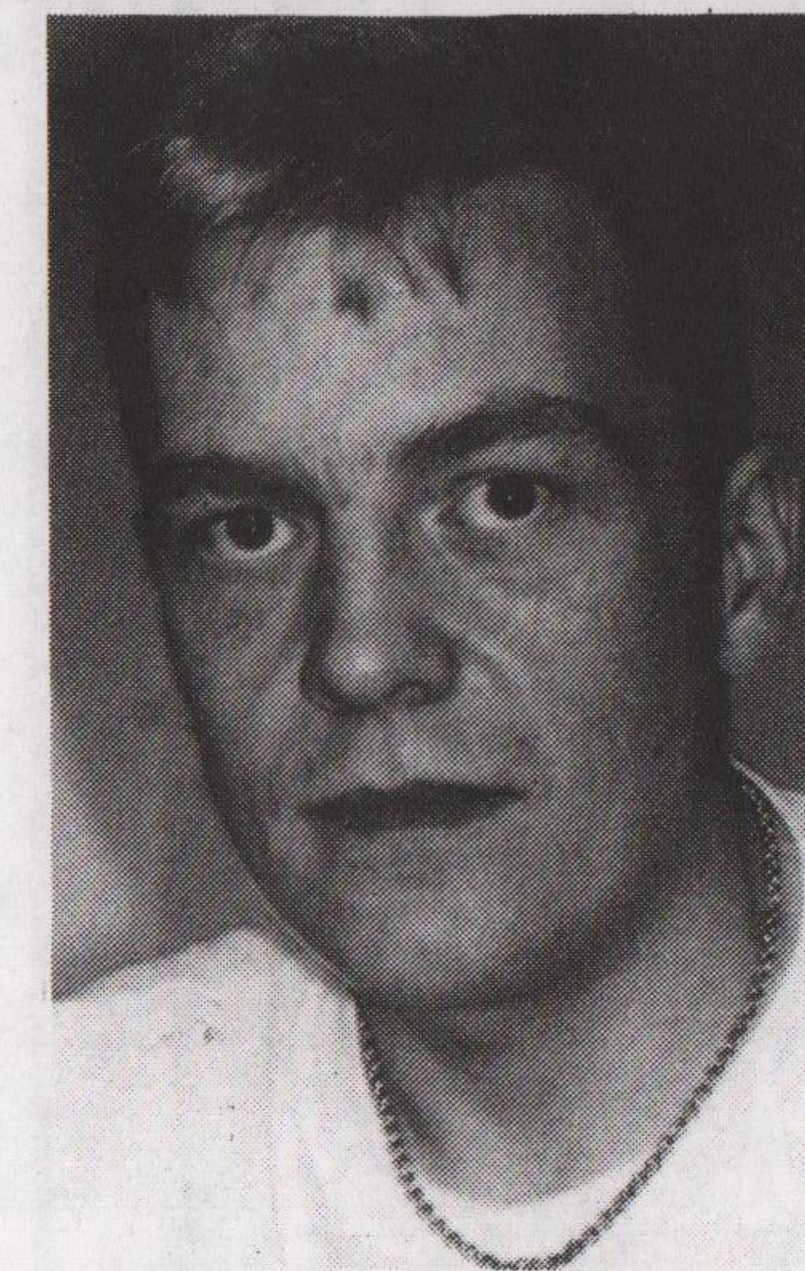

One witness says: "I went in to the cottage there two weeks' ago. There were two men standing at the top of the steps as I went in. When I came out I decided to follow one of the men. He went down King Street, and out of sight of cottage, pulled out a radio."

Several other witnesses have independently testified to OUTRIGHT. One said: "I saw two police in plain clothes come hurriedly out of the attendant's room, it was previously darkened. One stood in the disabled toilet tying a shoe lace, a note was passed to him under the door. He told the punter not to flush the chain and to open the door".

A further witness takes up the story: "Two men were lounging around the sinks trying to blend into the furniture. I thought at first they were rent boys. Suddenly the door of the attendant's room opened from the inside and two men came out and made for a cubicle. I went to wash my hands. There was a light in the room and I could see a low table with a list of names, some checked off."

A friendly police officer confirmed that the Theatre Royal management had given the police permission to watch the lavatories from the Dress Circle Bar and Foyer. (continued on page 3)

BRITANNIA WAIVES THE RULES?

Three bar staff were sacked from a Nottingham pub recently because, it is claimed, they 'appeared' to be gay. The allegations were made by Kevin Doran (pictured), Manager of the Britannia Inn, Huntingdon Street, who claims he was told to sack three members of his staff. One of them was a gay friend, another a lesbian friend and the third, his brother who is not gay.

"I was so angry, but the only reason I didn't leave the job then was because I had organised a charity night to send a twelve year-old Leukaemia sufferer to Disneyworld and I wanted this to go ahead. However I told the Director of my company, Tenancy Services that I was also gay and what I thought of their attitude. They agreed I could continue with the benefit". Kevin claims that when he turned up on the night two of the Directors were present and one of them, Colin Chamberlain said "I'm not having any more queers in this pub".

Outright contacted Scottish & Newcastle Breweries and spoke to Area Manager Tony Mee, who said he couldn't comment. Later Ms. Jo Hutchinson, Marketing Manager phoned Outright and said that they had no jurisdiction over decisions taken by Tenancy Services as they leased the premises to them. (continued on page 2)

FRAGMENTS

from twenty years ago

NOTTINGHAM: La Chic, the new gays-only members' club was reported to be recruiting non-gays as bar staff. "The staff will have to be straight. We daren't have a gay boy as a barman because the customers would probably chat him up instead of letting him get on with his work" one of the joint owners, John Greenaway, was reported as telling 'Gay News.'

from fifteen years ago

LEICESTER: The National Union of Journalists condemned the editor of the Leicester Mercury who had banned advertising from Leicester Gayline. "We have rejected their advertisements, for we do not believe that their activities are a proper subject to set before readers in the family home" said editor Neville Stack. On 1st November 1977 two members of Leicester Gay Liberation Front had argued against the Mercury's stand on a BBC radio phone in.

Outburst!

Dear Editor.

Congratulations to Peter Noble for his safer sex initiatives at Freddie's Bar in Derby. However, in fairness we must point out that bars in Nottingham are not "shy" about promoting safer sex. Safer sex stalls have periodically taken place in most lesbian and gay pubs and clubs.

These have proved highly popular with customers and staff. The limitations on increasing this are based around funding. We are pushing for more resources to try to increase this.

Far from being "a bit tacky" safer sex promotion in Nottingham has always been enthusiastically welcomed by all lesbian and gay venues and we are grateful for their energy and enthusiasm in supporting such initiatives.

In addition, anyone wanting free condoms, KY, or Hepatitis B vaccinations can also get them free at the Nottingham Health Shop in Broad Street, Hockley during the day.

Yours sincerely,
Ashley Fletcher, Andy Griffiths,

In any event a number of our staff are gay and we do not have a problem with this" she said.

Outright spoke to Colin Chamberlain who claimed the trouble had arisen because Mr. Doran had left the premises with one barwoman in charge at 9pm and while he was away £300 was snatched from a till. "We offered to retain Mr. Doran on the staff but with the addition of a co-Manager but he refused this offer" he said. He also denied being abusive to Mr. Doran. Meanwhile the Britannia Inn is closed and awaiting a new Tenant.

LIFE IS not THE SAME IF YOU'RE GAY.

The laws surrounding pensions make it difficult for unmarried couples to plan for retirement. When you are gay, it is not only the law that makes it difficult, it is the misconceptions surrounding intestacy and trusts. In other words, if you think you may ever want a partner to benefit from your pension plan in the event of your death you cannot leave it to chance.

Your independent financial adviser should not only inform you of the costs involved of any particular pension policy, but the size, strength and past performance of the pensions office. Financial advice however, does not stop there.

EVERY BIT OF IT by Jackie Kay (pictured) tells the story of two strangers taking the early train out of town. Conjuring up images from the past they find they are inextricably linked through their love of Bessie Smith. Suzanne Bonnar sings Bessie's songs of triumph and despair. Georgia, played by Elizabeth Quinn, is deaf, but the memory of Bessie's voice still changes the shape of her silence. Cathy has tried to laugh away the truth which rings in Bessie's words, yet continually recognises her own life evoked through the timeless power of the blues.

Jackie Kay's lyrical poetry and an original score by Claire van Kampen harmonise in a bewitching evocation of the Power of the Blues, full of live music and haunting imagery.

RECORD ROUNDUP

by Simon Smalley

Owner of one of the sophisticatedly smooth voices to come to prominence in the mid-70s, soulful crooner Al Green has a greatest hits collection out at the moment. Although highly esteemed 20 years ago he is now not held in such high regard commercially as his contemporaries James Brown, Geno Washington et al. It's easy to see how the nouveau white slick soulsters (come in, Mick Hucknall) were inspired by such a classy, laidback approach. Turn out the lights and turn it up.

Still on the subject of prestigious vocal talent, in the racks now is a delicious double CD set charting the course of swoonsome-toned quintet The Platters. Unfortunately only noted by many of their obvious biggies 'Smoke Gets in Your Eyes' and 'Only You', this release gathers together the commercial top-end of their extensive career. Along with the likes of Nat 'King' Cole and Ella Fitzgerald, you just don't get such vocal purity of this calibre any more. Angelic harmonies and cascading string arrangements make this a joy to hear.

Ever improving with age, the B-52s have more good stuff out shortly in the form of 'Is That You, Mo-Dean?', the third release from their latest album. Given the subject matter (UFO encounters) the video should be a wow to see. The CD single comes in a limited edition hologram sleeve. Astral projection indeed.

Chucked out of the band "Dignity" for being crap, chart-topping warbler Tasmin Archer certainly has shown 'em, hasn't she, pop pickers. I remember meeting Tas (as close friends call her) at the record company shindig to launch her soon-to-be number one single. There were many sceptics there rattling on about does the weird, wild world of pop really need another Tracy Armatrading Joan Chapman, but the quality of ...er what's her name's work showed through. Rapidly rushed out to capitalise on the single's success, Tassie's offering will rank alongside other fave females' first forays into popdom.

What happened? I'll tell you what happened. As a companion to the excellent tapes of the 'Round the Horne' radio series, some bona ohme at the Beeb has compiled the Jules & Sandy sketches onto a bijou double cassette collectionette for your delight, heartface. Two dozen priceless classics of polari-spouting campness including 'Bona Seances', 'Keep Britain Bona', 'Bona Bijou Tourettes' and 'Le Casserole de Bona Gourmet' (and that is yer actual French). Essentially fantabulosa. And that's yer lot. Ta Ra!

BACK TO THE DRAWING BOARD

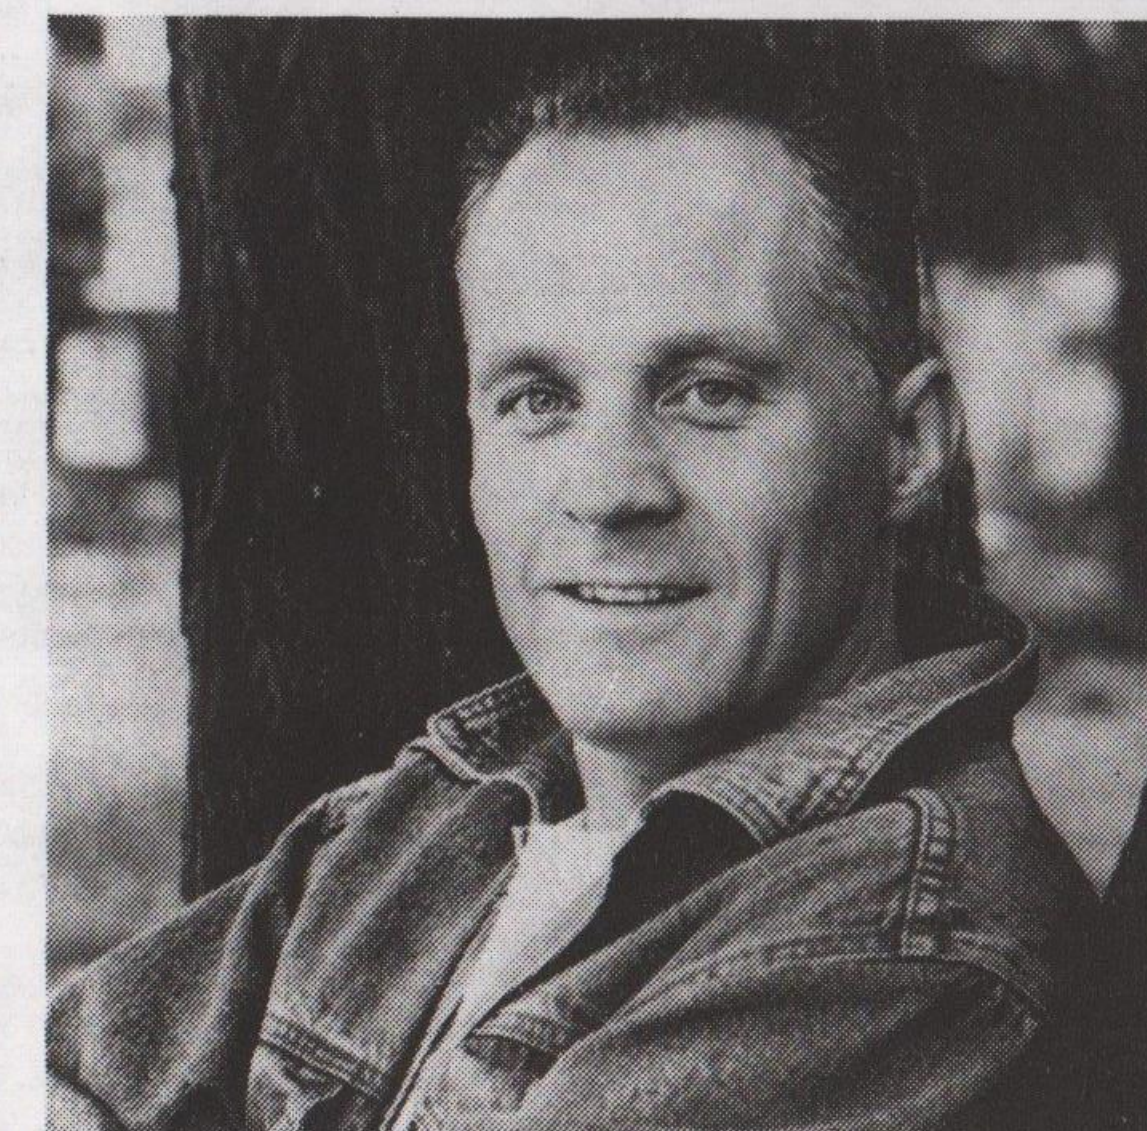

Michael Cashman appears in a major new version of Christopher Marlowe's compelling tale, 'Dr. Faustus' the story of a man who sells his soul to the devil. Many will remember Michael as gay graphic designer Colin in 'East Enders'. "Once you leave a long-running soap" says Michael "you have to hone your career, and rebuild it to change your employer's perception of what you can do otherwise you're forever typecast". But that was some-time ago and Michael has moved full circle. Richard McCance caught up with him between rehearsals at Nottingham Playhouse to find out that he is more than pleased to be celebrating another gay man's work. Indeed, Marlowe helped launch Ian McKellen on his career in 'Edward II' not so many years ago.

His eyes light up as he enthuses about 'Dr. Faustus'. "It will excite your eyes, tastebuds and combine elements of Spielberg, the classics and Francis Bacon with a very strong cast".

But Michael the actor and Michael the campaigner are indivisible. Michael is a self-styled "establishment socialist" who, with Ian McKellen, founded the Stonewall Group, the lesbian and gay rights campaigning organisation. Michael believes that pressure on the government needs to come from all sides and therefore Outrage! and ActUp are equally important.

He was born in the East End, when it was definitely not fashionable, and unlike some, he regards his roots as important. "My mother was a cleaner and my father a docker. They had to fight for their rights and I have never forgotten that". On the day we spoke, the news of the pit closures was announced and he had plenty to say about that. "It's obscene to be shedding all these jobs as if it had nothing to do with the individuals involved. If all the Notts miners had stuck together they would be in a stronger bargaining position than they are now".

Michael appears as Mephistophilis at Nottingham Playhouse until the 28th November. His next television appearance is in 'Casualty' some time in January 1993.

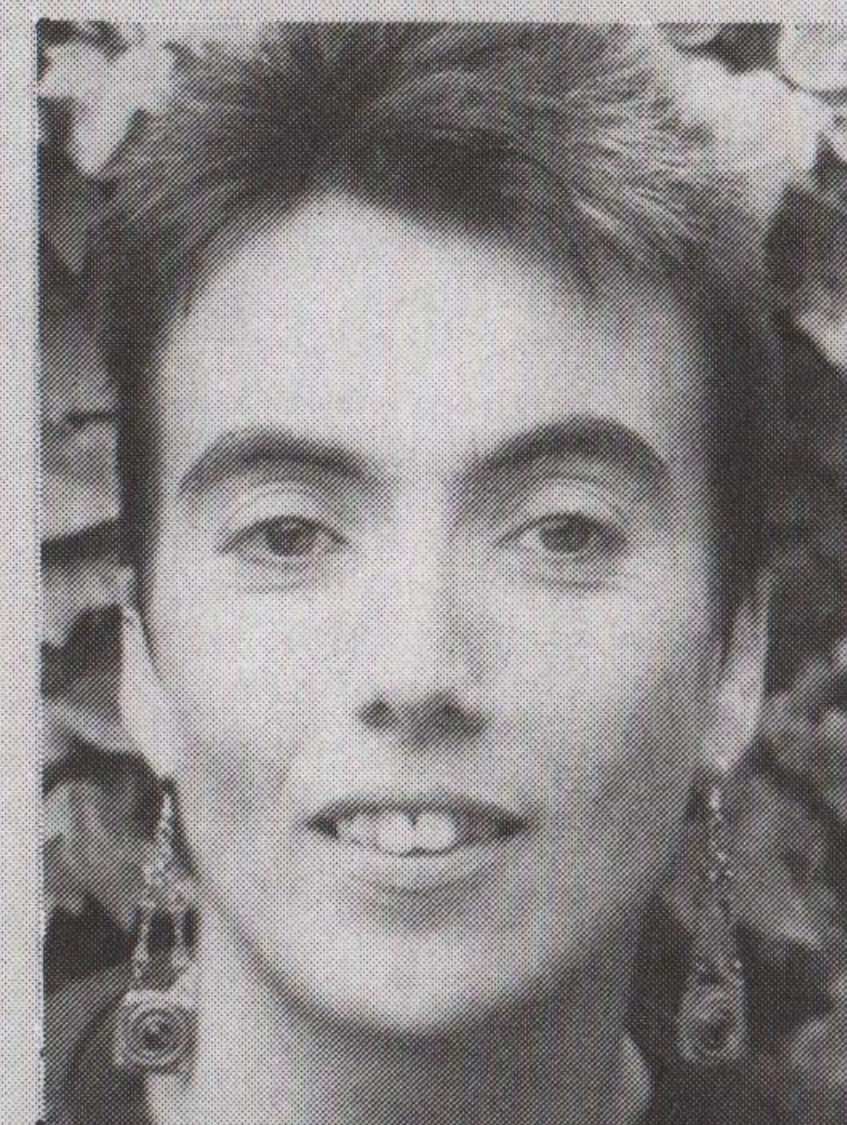

BOLD AND BEAUTIFUL

Sarah Kirby has lived in Derby for the past five years, working from her studio in the city where she produces prints and pastels of bold, beautiful yet strong women and the places that surround them. An out lesbian, Sarah's openness is reflected in her work. Her women are powerful and the environments in which they appear are as special as the women, controlled yet fantastical, in beautiful colours and clear, bold images.

Sarah's work is shown in a major exhibition of linocuts and pastels at the Drey Gallery, Kings Road, London between the 7th and 21st November. Further details from (071) 351 2921.

NEED A GRANT?

The Pavilion Trust was established in 1985 with money accrued from the residue of the Pavilion Club at Shardlow which was burnt down. The Trust has the object of giving assistance to gay individuals and organisations within the local area. One recent beneficiary was the Outhouse Project, with a very welcome donation of £40 towards the costs of the 'Out In The Fall' festival.

The next Trustees' meeting is in March 1993, so if you or your organisation is in need of a financial boost why not put an application in. Applications should be addressed to John Hardy, Hon. Sec. Pavilion Trust, One B, Belmont Avenue, Breaston, Derby DE72 3AA.
