

BYKIN' DYKES

A group of volunteers are pictured setting off on a four-hour cycle ride to raise funds for LesBeWell, the Birmingham-based initiative for lesbians.

LesBeWell came in for some criticism for the inclusion of bisexuality as an issue for discussion at the summer 'Dykenosis in the Flesh' Conference. The conference report acknowledged that "whilst bisexuality can be a contentious issue in lesbian groups, it is not our intention to exclude people from LesBeWell. We work on a basis of self-definition and we welcome all women who feel that LesBeWell is relevant to them."

Among a number of workshops was "Growing old disgracefully". A poll was taken before the conference on perceptions of older lesbians and their lifestyles. Three stereotypes of older lesbians emerged from this, were discussed and then debunked! They were that all 'older lesbians' allegedly have allotments, smoked dope and have slept with all their friends! The ensuing discussion centred around images the participants have, or would like to have, of themselves and the issues that ageing raised.

Being seen as well adjusted, comfortable with themselves, confident, proud, strong, independent and sexy were some of the things mentioned, along with the right to get angry, feel impatient, be visible and be healthy. The overall message from the workshop was that older lesbians are here to stay and will be heard! You can be put on the mailing list by contacting LesbeWell, PO Box 4048, Moseley, Birmingham, B138DP.

OUTRIGHT!

October 1996 Issue 78 for gays, lesbians and bisexuals free

IT'S QUEER UP NORTH!

Over 70,000 punters poured in to Manchester's sixth carnival and fund-raising bash for the Village Charity. It rained most of the Bank Holiday weekend but nobody cared as thousands took to the streets partied, and raised a cool £125,000. This year broke all records, the biggest crowds; largest funds raised, and Europe's biggest all-nighter on Bank Holiday Sunday at G-Mex which attracted over 10,000 ravers. And nearly 9,000 people attended the Vigil in Sackville Park, closing what is fast becoming Britain's favourite gayfest. (Photos: Jenz Zimmermann).

CHAINED UP IN DERBY

Disabled campaigners chained and padlocked themselves to a bus outside Derby's Council House as part of a weekend of action last month, in a bid to draw attention to the lack of disabled access on public transport in the city. Members of the Disabled People's Action Network (DAN) demanded to see council leaders about their commitment to disabled people's rights. The non-violent protest followed a meeting with the City's Chief Executive, Ray Cowlshaw who said he would try to change things in the future.

Refractions - An internet project

Refractions is an interactive discotheque on the Net. Developed by the Foundation for Art & Creative Technology as a Collaboration Programme Project between Merseyside's gay and lesbian writing group Queerscribes, and artist Kath Moonan, the site explores the sophisticated codes of identity, language and style experienced within gay culture. It is an internet project, somewhere between oral history and gossip - a gay network; an information zone where you are invited to exchange news and gossip, to make new acquaintances, to support each other and to celebrate life. Refractions is online until 31st October. <http://www/livj-m.ac.uk/queerscribes/>

NEWS FROM BICON 1996

One weekend at the end of August, over 200 people converged at Kingston University for the fourteenth UK BiCon. BiCon is the national bisexual conference/convention, for all "bisexuals, their friends and allies". It's a part social, part political event, with workshops or panel discussions in the daytime and partying at night.

This time as usual the atmosphere was hectic and friendly. One panel discussion was on "Lesbians, gay men and bisexuals working together in unions", with two speakers from Unison. Another was on Queer media, with representatives from the Pink Paper, Bi Community News and Thud. About 60 other workshops were designed and facilitated by conferencegoers - some were on subjects directly relevant to bi people, some just interesting or entertaining in themselves.

"Off the fence and on the wall", an exhibition of postal art by bi and bi-friendly people, ran throughout the three days of the conference. On the Sunday, an auction of the art raised an amazing £700, to be split between the two bi phonedines in London and Edinburgh.

BiCon's unusual, for such a big event, in being organised by a different group of people each year. One new development this year was the formation of an advisory group to provide continuity from year to year. It'll be getting a post box, web site and phone line soon.

COME AND PLAY WITH US!

Leicester now has a brand new gay football team ranging in age from 18 to 45. It doesn't matter how good or bad you are, or if you haven't played since you were at school, everyone is welcome, says Gareth who set up the team. "We've played three times so far, with 16 different people attending, averaging 10 a week. The team is also building up a faithful band of spectators, mainly parents and partners of players. The 'friendly' games have all been very keenly and skilfully fought - so much so that I've just been out this week to buy some shinpads!"

The team play every Tuesday evening at St. Margaret's Pastures between 8pm and 9.30pm. Spectators are very welcome to attend. The team play each other for the first few weeks, five, six or seven a-side, depending on how many turn up. There are regular breaks for cigs, etc. And there are no rules about kit. Trainers are most suitable for the surface, and generally people will wear shorts/tracksuit bottoms and t shirt or sweatshirt. The pitch is outdoors and floodlit. Changing rooms/showers are available.

There is a large free car park by the canal and park entrance. The pitch/changing rooms are reached via the car park. The cost of the pitch will be split equally between everyone playing, probably £1.50 to £2.50, depending on how many turn up. (St. Margaret's Pastures are on St. Margaret's Way next to Abbey park). You can just turn up or call Gareth on 0116 270 0137.

Brenda and Other Stories

Art + HIV + You
21 September - 17 November

So what is an alternative way of getting the message across...how about art?

'Brenda & Other Stories' is a highly-charged, emotive exhibition. The bold images, which include the moving tribute to Brenda Woods, who died in 1989 and waterpistols filled with the artist's own blood, along with the crazy 'The Ameliorative Love Machine'; an elaborate scientific experiment pumping pink liquid through glass pipes and test tubes, do make you sit up and take notice.

Yes it makes a statement, and yes, it's controversial. How else can an exhibition, centred around such an emotive subject, get its point across?

A whole range of activities aimed at reinforcing the safer sex message are staged throughout the show's run. These include the GAI Project, which will be staging a series of evening sessions, tours of the exhibition by health workers, an evening of music and poetry reflecting upon themes of love and death, and staged in association with the Peterhouse Trust, along with Attending a recent course about the awareness of HIV and AIDS, I was alarmed and saddened at the level of ignorance still surrounding the contraction and spread of the disease. When asked if he felt he was better informed after the four hour course, one chap replied, "Well, yes I suppose I am, but it doesn't really affect me does it?"

How one puts the message across in terms that inform, but at the same time uses 'street-wise' language, making the recipient wanting to hear what you have to say, I don't know. We've had the government's message, along with other safer sex speeches by well-meaning individuals, but if the word isn't reaching those that it should - that is to say - those that really are at risk - then these methods clearly are not working. Maybe it's time to try something new.

lunchtime tours of the show from both an arts and an HIV and AIDS perspective.

Who can say if 'Brenda' will succeed where others have failed. One thing is for sure, you're going to hear a lot about this show both against and in support of it. Go and take a look for yourselves - tell your friends about it, and encourage debate about the exhibits afterwards, for I feel the only real way to make people from all walks of life understand the ethos of 'Brenda' is for them to be educated by the educated....us.

Kevan Jackson

'Brenda and Other Stories' is showing at the Nottingham Castle Museum and Art Gallery until the 17th November. Open daily 10-5pm (Fridays during Nov. 1-5pm) Weekdays FREE, Weekends, Adults £1.50, Children 75p.

HEALTHY G'DAY

Chesterfield, home of the bent spire, has its first gay health fair on Saturday 26th October.

Healthy Gay Day, hosted by Marsdens Bar, Marsden St. Chesterfield, is an exclusive event for the gay and bisexual men of North Derbyshire. The event is organised by the CASH (Community Action on Sexual Health) Project, part of North Derbyshire Health Promotion Service.

Richard Marriott CASH Co-ordinator, promises an informal and relaxing day. "We can't promise that all comers will instantly transform into fit, healthy, confident, successful, witty and relaxed gay or bisexual men but we are offering a free buffet lunch, free entertainment and free condoms and lube."

Healthy Gay Day will include tips for an all round, well-toned healthy gay lifestyle. Attractions include health and fitness testing, sexual health checks, aerobics, aromatherapy, massage, reflexology and condom demonstrations. What more can a man ask for apart from a workshop on safe and successful cruising, self-defence sessions, free legal advice and the opportunity to talk to a trained counsellor? There'll be all that and more too.

CASH will also be launching several new initiatives on the day including a Gay and Bisexual Support Group, the Safe and Sexy Cruising Campaign and the CASH Services Guide - listing all the useful local services and agencies.

Healthy Gay Day starts at 1pm and ends late into the night. For more details contact Richard or Darren on 01246 559431.

SOMETHING TO SHOUT ABOUT!

The SHOUT! Centre is the new health and community centre for gay and bisexual men in Sheffield. Funded by Healthy Alliances HIV prevention money, this project has been led by the community group SHOUT!, supported by the Centre for HIV and Sexual health.

The SHOUT! Centre will be offering a range of social, health and welfare services from the 23rd September for four sessions a week. it will be somewhere to pick up your free condoms, meet other gay and bisexual men, get involved in events, find out about other services, or just have a coffee. if you're someone who's just coming out, or need someone to talk to about your sexuality, this is a place for you.

Based in the city centre, it will offer its services from Voluntary Action Sheffield at West Bar Green. To find out more contact Anthony or Rob on 0114 267 8806.

ANOTHER POSTCARD FROM EDINBURGH

Now that I've returned, it seems amazing that I was ever in a sunny, grand historic city containing 150 Fringe Festival venues, with 1200 shows to choose from, a mainstream Festival offering several dozen larger events, a Film Festival and a Television Festival all at once with actors and company members often themselves directing offering you handbills on almost every corner. A magic world.

I won't bore you with details of everything I saw. One "old" favourite I can't omit is 'Chloe Poems' Healing Roadshow. The Gingham Diva, a Tory MP by day, a socialist transvestite performer by night, is performed with amazing energy and warmth. With dynamic lascivious poems, with a devastating take-off of sexist 'old drag', with gingham ribbons and healing meditation, this is a night to remember. A pity that the audience was so amazingly small - while across the road Scott Capurro, talented but pretty stereotypical is packed out. This show deserves to be famous!

"The extraordinary mixture of Shirley Temple and pornography."

Simon Fanshawe
Scotland on Sunday

written and performed by Jenni Potter

directed by Gary Padden

Another comic highlight was, 'Think no evil of Us - my life with Kenneth Williams' performed by David Benson. Benson, aged 13, 21 years ago, had won a competition to have his story read on 'Jackanory'! he had written the story with Spike Milligan in mind but it was read by Kenneth Williams. Benson was heavily taunted at school the next day, but was from then on fascinated by Williams. In this show, the impersonation is so good that you really feel that KW is back, alive in front of you. There are many hilarious scenes, but then the awful suicide, and Benson, in one of several personal sections including a very funny portrait of his own headmaster looks in sadness at where Williams corpse has lain, and wishes that the star had learned to love himself and thus be able to love others. I'll give this one five stars.

'Trial Run' was Louise Say's first venture into playwriting, performed by Emma Weeks (continued facing page) who had been thrown out of the Navy and was now a compulsive mover, going from flat to flat. She began running around the stage packing, and was thus of breath for the first few minutes that she was addressing the audience. A number of good gags were thrown away with never a titter from the audience, as Emma Weeks seemed to have little idea of timing or use of voice. I found myself wondering whether she was professionally trained. A great disappointment, as this was the only piece of lesbian drama I managed to find in Edinburgh, and it was potentially very topical.

Finally, 'Charlie's Angel', was a one-man play about twins - one gay, the other a macho homophobe, played with chilling realism by Jonathan Rice. The homophobe comes on first, and proceeds to verbally abuse a 'plant' who was sitting beside me.

The transformation when the same actor appears as the brother was breathtaking. The gay brother cares about his twin, and can remember early closeness; the homophobe hates his twin - but, he is queerbashed it appears, raped. This he cannot speak of or manage and the end is tragic - the show is only 40 minutes long, but the disintegration of the straight twin is chilling and the whole is a commendable tour-de-force of acting by Jonathan Rice.

I could tell you about heaps of straight comedy and drama, Fringe Sunday, Festival parties, incidental delights. But, the best thing is to experience Edinburgh for yourself. Tony Challis

The following poem is written by one of our readers Colin who is currently serving a long sentence in a local prison: -

Proud to be

Why look at me this way -
Whether I'm straight/bi or gay?
Treat me for who I am,
Not what I am
whether I'm a woman or man.
you chose, as do I,
And I chose to be Bi.
Call me mixed up - not sure,
But with neither could I be pure.
For there is in each, an essence,
Which leaves me wanting more -
So I move two, into one door.
In doing so, how can I be alone?
Don't examine and doubt -
curse or shout,
I am the way I chose to be,
And there isn't nobody telling me differently!

Towards the Millenium

Over seventy people came along to Leicester Lesbian, Gay & Bisexual Centre's Open Day last month to view the proposed new premises in Wellington Street and heard a presentation from the Centre's Chair Chris Wroe and Treasurer Mike Evans. Chris Wroe said they were very pleased with the numbers that turned up and a lot of questions were asked following the report. "We hope to be in a position to make a final decision shortly, which will obviously take into account the comments from the open day", she added. The four-floor building, just round the corner from King Street has a lift and is fully wheelchair accessible which contrasts dramatically with the present first and second floor cramped but cheerful King Street premises which are not accessible to wheelchair users. Over the years the organisation has well outgrown the building. A number of factors have made the proposed move possible, including reviewing how their current income is spent and whether it could be used more effectively. The Centre has also recently instituted a 'Friends of LGB Centre' scheme, where users and supporters can pledge regular payments to the Centre funds which provide additional income. We shall have more news next month. (Among those pictured at the presentation are Helen Gyngell Leicester City Council Project Officer, Deb Watson, Leicestershire Health Authority, (from right) Mike Evans, Centre Treasurer, (4th from right) and Chris Wroe, Chair (2nd from left)).

Ken Chu is a gay Asian-American artist, whose two installations explore a variety of issues including race and gender which was shown at Angel Row Gallery, Nottingham recently. "I wanted to do a project which reflected the diaspora of Asian-American people in English speaking countries and which also encompassed men and masculinity,"

There are six round plastic dining tables covered in turf. On each table is a menu. Football strips in saffron and brown line the walls and are taken directly from popular culture. And that's it! "The art is a statement in itself. I want to make it accessible without the need for acres of written text", says Ken.

Ken is currently working on his next project, a piece of work about being queer, linking this with masculinity also. Ken came out in 1976 in San Francisco before making New York his home and getting involved with ACT UP. He also set up a support group for Asian American artists called 'Godzilla'.

"If you are an HIV gay man you have to put aside your life's hopes and dreams, to fight for a cure. We are 16 years into this epidemic. Most of the people really important to me have died. Generations get wiped out and whole histories are lost. Our future lies with the new young queers".

NOTTINGHAM SELF-INSEMINATION GROUP

Are there any women out there interested in re-starting the Nottingham Self-insemination Group? The group was for women who are thinking about, using or have used self-insemination or donor insemination, and included lesbians, bisexual and single women. Some women want (or had used) anonymous donors whilst other women chose known donor, and some women consider using donor clinics.

The group discussed issues and implications of using self or donor insemination, and offered support and information. Some women just came to one meeting to get information whilst other women came to every, or most meetings. They were also looking at the possibilities of making links with donors so the group could put a woman in touch with a donor or act as a go-between if she wanted an anonymous donor.

The original founders, Kathy and Lorna are willing to help out but don't want to take on the whole job of keeping the group going and need help from other interested women who would help make sure meetings happen, answer enquiries and maybe develop links with men willing to be donors. More info from Kathy on 0115 970 2879 (daytime) or contact via the 'Self-insemination post tray, c/o The Women's Centre, 30 Chaucer St. Nottingham, NG1 5LP.

Award Winner addresses AGM

North Notts. Pilot Project

North Notts. Pilot Project for men who have sex with men is going well. Men have been able to get their condoms from Paul, Gary and Tony, the outreach workers. A new social group has recently started, running each Monday from 8pm in the Portland Rooms, Mansfield Woodhouse. a big World Aids Day event in the North of the county is also being planned. Lets hope that this badly needed project will be able to continue beyond December, 1996 when its current funding runs out.

Chesterfield Women's Centre

A group of women met recently to discuss the need for a women's centre in Chesterfield. Women from several organisations attended the meeting including representatives from Single parent Network, and North Derbyshire Women's Aid. A women's centre would aim to provide space for a creche, coffee bar training/education, advice/information rooms for voluntary groups, and a quiet room/library. An initial grant has been awarded from the Enterprising Charities Fund, part of which will pay for a woman to work approximately 10 hours a week for 10 weeks to co-ordinate the setting up of a steering group to work towards establishing a Women's centre in Chesterfield. This post is being advertised, and the successful applicant will be experienced in working with women, computer literate, with an understanding of the causes and effects of women's oppression. For details of the above post or anyone interested in being a member of the steering group contact. Alison or Fay, Chesterfield Women's Centre Group, c/o North Derbyshire Women's Aid, PO Box 131, S40 1TU. 01246 207199/864177.

The Funky Junction

0990 134 345

ALL CALLS AT STANDARD RATES

The new voice mail and fax-back service bringing you personal contacts and a range of other messages

How to place an advertisement

Just complete the form on page 15 as you would for a classified advert. Fill in the details at the bottom of the form, send a cheque/postal order for £5 to outright! You will receive from us an exclusive voice message number and unique password. This guarantees privacy and confidentiality. You can then dial the Funky Junction number, follow the recorded instructions and record your two minute message. It will be on-line for a month.

Handy tip! Write your message and practice first.

How to listen to replies to your advert

1. Ring the Funky Junction on 0990 134 345 using a touch-tone phone, then enter your voice message number.
2. You will be asked to enter your password after which you will be told how many replies are waiting for you.
3. Listen to the replies. You will have the option to replay or delete messages you have listened to.

Handy tip! Have a pen and paper handy to make notes.

How to reply to a Funky Junction advert

Just ring the Funky Junction on 0990 134 345 and follow the recorded instructions. These are briefly:

1. Choose the voice message number of interest to you. You'll find this at the end of each advert in the Funky Junction voicemail section on page 15.
2. Ring the Funky Junction using a touch-tone phone. When prompted enter the voice message number you have chosen and listen to the advert.
3. Record a reply (maximum 2 minutes), delete it or re-record it, or return to the main voice message menu where you can choose another message to listen to and leave another reply.

Handy tip! Two minutes can be a hell of a long time so - have a practice and don't rush or muffle your message.

Another first for the Funky Junction!

The Funky Junction enables advertisers to place an extensive description - 250 words of your choice. Your fax stays on-line for three months for only £5.

How to place an advert using the Funky Junction Fax - Back Service

1. Send your description (max 250 words) to outright! enclosing a cheque/postal order for £5 payable to outright! Also include a maximum 24 word 'taster' advert using the form below which will be printed with your fax document number.

How to receive a Funky Junction Fax - Back

1. Call the Funky Junction on 0990 134 345 from the handset of your fax machine. The handset must be switched to tone.
2. When prompted, press 1 on the keypad of your handset. If you wish to receive an index of all Fax-Back advertisers (which will include the 24 word 'tasters') press 1 again to select the index document. Wait to hear a fax tone and press * on your fax machine. Once you have the index you can call the system again to choose the document or series of documents you want to receive. This is done by following the simple instructions you will hear.
